Five die in New York copter crash

by JOSEPH GAMBARDELLO

NEW YORK (UPI) — A New York Airways helicopter suddenly topped over on the roof of the Pan Am Building Monday, cutting down waiting passengers with its whirring rotors and sending twisted wreckage plunging into rush hour crowds 59 stories below. At least five persons were killed.

"They were chopped up. Legs, heads — it was messy," said John McAllister of the fire department's rescue Squad 1. "From what we gather the landing gear collapsed and it tipped over."

The helicopter pad had been closed for nine years for fear of an accident, and for operating losses and complaints of noise. It reopened in February of this year despite citizen opposition.

A WOMAN WAS killed instantly by a chunk of falling debris, and at least eight others were injured in the hail of twisted metal.

Three others were killed by the helicopter's blades when the craft suddenly "lurched and then rolled right over on its side" without warning on the roof of the landing area high above the streets of midtown Manhattan, and a fifth person — a man — later died of his injuries at Bellevue Hospital.

The helicopter accident drew immediate angry "I told you so" reaction from officials and community spokesman who had fought the opening of the heliport for safety reasons.

But some city officials, including Mayor Abraham Beame and Fire Commissioner John O'Hagan, said the accident appeared to have been caused by a structural flaw in a wheel strut, not by pilot or mechanical error.

BEAME SAID, "It was a freakish accident."

O'Hagan said, "It could be that the rotary went out of synch and that's what caused the added strain on the strut or it could have been weak to start with."

Police said 21 persons were to have boarded the craft — a Sikorsky S61 with a 30-passenger capacity — for the flight back to Kennedy Airport.

According to witnesses and a spokesman for New York Airways, which operates the heliport, the helicopter landed on the roof of the Pan Am Building about 5:35 p.m., discharged its passengers and began taking on new customers.

BRIAN ROBERTS, 28, a travel agent said the craft was taking on new passengers when it "lurched and then it rolled right over on its side and it started dragging."

Area dentist charged in kid porno

by United Press International

Police investigating a national child pornography racket Monday arrested a Park Ridge dentist on charges he filmed a sex movie which featured children.

Chicago Police Dept. Youth Division Commander Harold Thomas said the arrest of Lloyd Lange, 42, involved a movie which used two 14-year-old boys as actors. Lange was charged with taking indecent liberties with a child and contributing to the sexual delinquency of a minor.

Three other persons allegedly involved with the film were arrested during the weekend. Thomas said others involved in child pornography are being sought.

IN OTHER CHILD pornography developments Monday, police said they hope to get help from Juvenile Court authorities in solving the problem and both Cook County State's Atty. Bernard Carey and Chicago's Acting Mayor Michael Bilandic promised a crackdown.

Thomas said his division is investigating reports that a Chicago-based organization is sending young boys to centers of juvenile homosexual activity around the country.

The ring allegedly provides a small number of boys to local centers, whre they are sexually abused. "We've had this problem in several cities," Thomas said.

He said the organization, known as the Delta Project, is an offshoot of a group formerly based in California. Another organization operating in the Chicago area publishes a periodic newsletter named Hermes which gives coded information about the availability of youths for prostitution and pornographic modeling, police said.

The investigation began more than a year ago as a result of tips from California, Thomas said.

Dr. Lloyd Lange is a quiet man who liked to take neighborhood children sailing on Lake Michigan and teach them the skills of boating.

He was a civic-minded person and an ardent worker with youth in his church and delighted in taking young persons on canoe trips.

But Dr. Lange, 429 Talcott St., Park Ridge, tried to live in two worlds and according to his church's pastor, "that is the tragedy of the story."

Lange, a 42-year-old dentist who practiced at 625 W. Devon Ave., Park Ridge, was arrested by Chicago police shortly before 5 a.m. Monday for his involvement in the production of pornographic films featuring children.

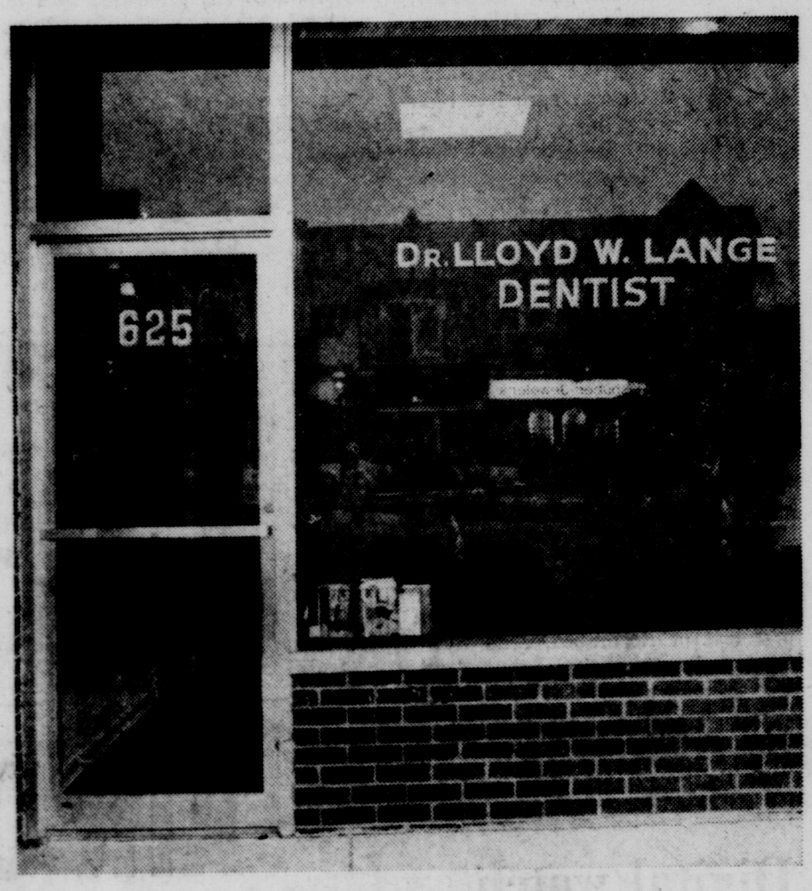

POLICE SAID they confiscated more than 70 reels of pornographic films they believe were made in Lange's apartment in the lower level of his two story apartment complex.

"For years, he (Lange) has worked with the young people in the church," Rev. Arthur E. Gay, Jr. of the South Park Church, 1330 S. Courtland Ave., Park Ridge, said Monday night.

"He liked working with youth. He took kids canoeing with him and worked with deprived young people of college age," Rev. Gay said. "A great deal that this man has done I can appreciate. I believe he still had plans to take trips with young people to this day."

Village to study traffic on hospital road

A traffic study will be conducted near Northwest Community Hospital before Arlington Heights officials decided whether to close a private road east of the hospital or realign it to connect Ridge and Fernandez avenues.

More than 100 residents attended the village board meeting Monday night to oppose the proposed realignment of the hospital's access road. Most of the residents were from the area north of Kirchoff Road on Ridge Avenue and south of Central Road on Fernandez Avenue.

The realignment was proposed to alleviate safety problems caused by motorists using the hospital road as a short cut between Central and Kirchoff roads.

RESIDENTS FROM Ridge and Fernandez avenues objected to the realignment plan, saying traffic on their streets would double and create safety problems for children walking to Park School, South Junior High School, Our Lady of the Wayside and Pioneer Park.

They support a plan by hospital officials to close the north end of the hospital road where it intersects with Kirchoff Road.

However, several residents from adjacent streets opposed the plan, saying it would increase traffic on their streets.

"Blocking off the hospital does not solve the accident problem. It merely moves it to adjacent streets," said Richard W. Morse, 915 S. Mitchell Ave. "If the board moves to block off one road, we will ask you to consider blocking off adjacent streets as well," he said.

AT THE URGING of Village Trustee Robert Miller, the board voted to have a study conducted in June of traffic patterns in the vicinity of the hospital, and also close the hospital road in October to learn where through traffic on the hospital roadway will go.

"I don't think that we, in our wisdom, and the homeowners should be making this decision right now if it affects the entire south end of town," Miller said.

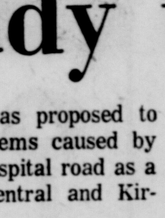

"Six months down the line, we may have 400 other residents from another street coming in here because of this," he said.

A village board finance committee last week recommended that the hospital's plan to close its road at the north end be approved. Nearly 300 residents attended that meeting.

Several residents Monday argued that the safety problems with traffic near the hospital and on Ridge Ave. could be alleviated if Wilke Rd. were widened to four lanes. But that project will not be finished before 1980, Village Manager L. A. Hanson said, because financing has not been assured and engineering design plans have not been drawn.

Record tells fight's finish for old champ

Byline report

Alfredo Evangelista came on the screen as ABC flashed his record as a professional fighter.

Tony Zale, sitting with his legs crossed in the living room of his small Chicago apartment at 3001 Martin Luther King Dr., dropped his lower lip.

"Fourteen fights," he said in a raspy voice, referring to the number of Evangelista's victories.

That said it all for Zale.

HE IS 64 NOW. He has been out of boxing for 28 years, but there can be no doubt about what once was his profession. His face is rugged, his nose flattened. His speech is nasaled and occasionally slurred.

"In my era, it took a lot experience. It took a lot of years before they could get to a spot where he has," Zale said. "In my era, you had to have a lot of experience before you turned professional."

Zale had that experience. He fought about 200 amateur fights before turning pro and then another 100 before a bad right arm told him it was time to hang up the gloves in 1949.

In between, though, he had been light middleweight champion of the world. Even after doctors told him that his arm couldn't make it, he won three knockouts and fought Rocky Graziano. In 1958, he was elected to the Boxing Hall of Fame.

Outcome of Ali-Evangelista fight in Sect. 3, Page 1

"WHEN I WAS a boy, I always felt I would be champion," he said.

Now as the Muhammad Ali-Evangelista fight began, with both boxers pawing almost disinterestedly around the ring, Zale sat back and said it was a "sham."

He said Ali was a good boxer and pointed out that the heavyweight champ is still fast, but Zale's distaste for Ali was obvious as he referred to him constantly as Clay, always Clay, Ali's former name.

Zale now occupies his time by teaching boxing to kids for the Chicago Park District.

"I know the score. I know what to teach them," he said. "I don't want to short-change any of them."

THE ROUNDS came and went on the tube, and they were largely uneventful. Occasionally as Ali covered up, Zale chided Evangelista to "hit that body, hit that body."

But Mrs. Zale was not nearly so quiet.

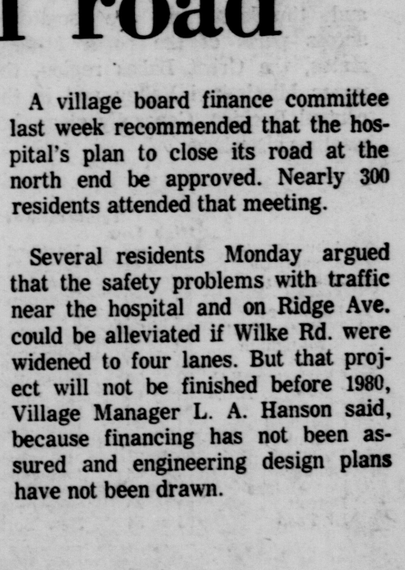

She pointed exaggeratedly toward the screen, referring to Ali as "that ass," and saying that the fight was "disgraceful."

She mocked a little of Ali's shuffle.

"Whoever heard of a champion that danced like this," she complained.

Jury selected for Columbo trial

Attorneys Monday agreed on a jury for the murder trial of Patricia Columbo, 20, and Frank DeLuca, 39, charged in the May 4, 1976, slayings of Miss Columbo's family in Elk Grove Village. The trial is expected to start Wednesday in the courtroom of Judge R. Eugene Pincham, Cook County Criminal Courts Building, Chicago. The jury is made up of six men and six women. Jury members range in age from 21 to 50, the average age being 40. The jury is evenly divided between whites and blacks, city residents and suburbanites.

Laurence Acker, an assistant public defender representing Miss Columbo, said, "We were looking for people who would really impress us as having not formed any opinions, and who could be fair and impartial and presume our client to be innocent until all the evidence was heard . . . I think it's a pretty good jury for both sides — a jury that will be fair."

There will be a pretrial hearing at 11 a.m. today, setting the ground rules for the trial.

Hanover Park man drowns

The body of a Hanover Park man was recovered Monday from the Elgin Quarry in unincorporated Hanover Township where he apparently drowned Sunday night. John E. Whitten, 18, was swimming in one of a number of small ponds in the quarry when he went under, a Cook County Sheriff's Police spokesman said. The Elgin Fire Dept. was unable to search the 50-foot wide pond until early Monday, police said.

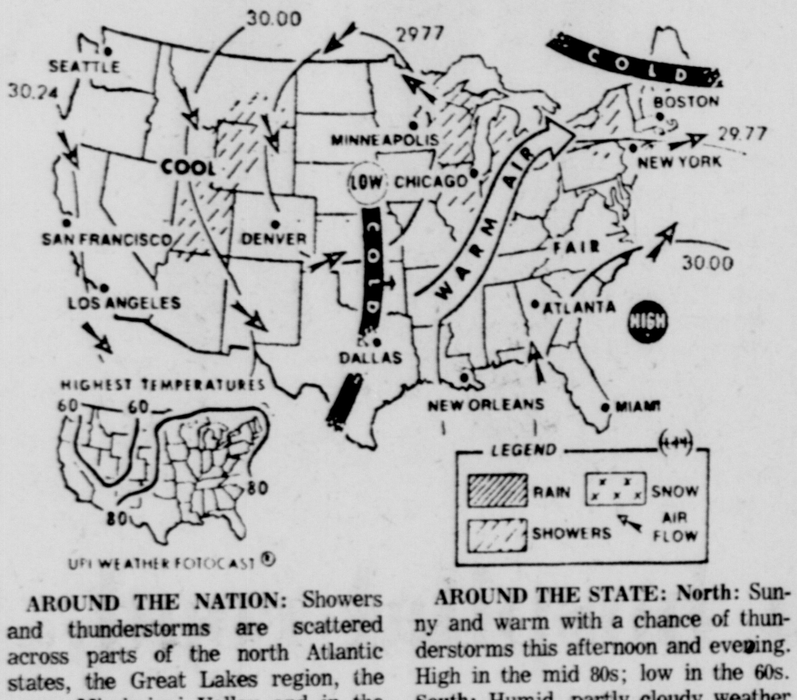

Arson-murder trial set May 31

A 27-year -old Palatine man charged with the arson-murder of his wife is scheduled to be tried May 31 in the Evanston branch of Cook County Circuit Court. A spokesman for the Cook County State's Attorney's office Monday said David Rhoads, 409 N. Northwest Hwy., is scheduled to appear at 9:30 a.m. in the Evanston courtroom to be tried on charges he murdered his wife, Vicki, 18, July 17, 1976. The spokesman said Rhoads probably will request a jury trial.

Filled with grief, friends, relatives bury Marilyn

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

They mourned for Marilyn Louise Goodman and wondered why she had to die.

Their eyes clouded with tears as the Rev. Amos Wilkie of Community Presbyterian Church spoke of the "uncertainty of human life" and "depending to much on tomorrow."

Friends, relatives and neighbors Monday paid final respects to the 18-year-old Mount Prospect woman feeling pain and sorrow for her loss, bitterness and hostility toward the tragic way she died.

Miss Goodman was the daughter of Mount Prospect Village Clerk Donald Goodman and his wife Shirley, 514 N. Wille St. She was a freshman at Northwood Institute, a private business college in Midland, Mich., where last week she was sexually assaulted and strangled to death. Her 19th birthday would have been June 26.

Marilyn Goodman

STILL SHOCKED by the tragedy, family members found it difficult to talk of Marilyn's death. "I have perfect confidence in the Midland police," in their investigation into the murder, Donald Goodman said. "I have always said the Mount Prospect police force was the best," he added, "but now, I know they (Midland police) are equally as good. Everyone up at the school has been perfectly nice. Everyone down here has been great."

The mourners filed solemnly into the church still shaking their heads in disbelief of the tragedy. Whispers of "It's such a terrible thing," could be heard throughout the sanctuary as the organist played laments as a prelude to the final tribute to Miss Goodman.

The family entered from the rear, Donald Goodman clutching the arms of his wife and surviving daughter, Linda, 21. They remained composed throughout trying to nod in gratitude for the sympathies expressed by friends and relatives who crowded the church for the ceremony. They took their places in the front row staring sadly at the closed coffin of their loving daughter and sister.

The funeral was attended by the president of Northwood, Miss Goodman's college roommate, several village officials and family friends. Rev. Wilkie thanked everyone for their condolences and for sharing the tragedy with the Goodman family.

THE CASKET, surrounded by baskets of bright flowers, was carefully lifted from the bier, taken out of the church and placed in the hearse by village police and firefighters who served as pallbearers.

A cortege of nearly 40 cars proceeded to the Wheeling Township Cemetery, Arlington Heights, where Rev. Wilke said a final prayer and Miss Goodman was laid to rest. The family was comforted at her graveside by loved ones who huddled together for the eulogy.

Miss Goddman's friends, many of them students at Prospect High School where she graduated in 1976, remained at the gravesite when it was over weeping as they knelt to place flowers at the head of the coffin.

"I can't even put my feelings, my sorrows into words," said Linda Toeppich, a senior at Prospect High School and friend of Miss Goodman's. "She was so young," Miss Toeppich said as her voice cracked and she broke into tears. "I feel she's going to miss out on so much of life."

Digital watch defendant loses dismissal bid

A federal judgt in Chicago Monday refused to dismiss the indictment against Dennis L. Roberts, accused of bilking thousands in a Des Plaines-based mail order digital watch sale scheme.

U.S. District Judge John P. Crowley denied the motion to dismiss as well as an accompanying motion to suppress evidence against Roberts which had been gathered by the consumer fraud division of Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott's office.

Opening arguments will begin today in the case against Roberts, on trial for allegedly using the mails to defraud thousands who ordered $16.95 digital watches from Roberts' now-defunct company, Teltronics Ltd.

ROBERTS, 45, OF Lake Forest, is charged with 50 counts of mail fraud and has been held since Jan. 20 in Cook County Jail in lieu of $500,000 cash bond.

The government has charged that Roberts collected some $1.7 million by purporting to sell digital watches and calculators. Scott's office and, later, the U.S. attorney's office began investigating the operation in December when scores of persons from across the country complained of never receiving the watches.

A jury of eight women and four men was selected Monday to decide the case.

Crowley Monday ruled against both defense motions to suppress evidence and to dismiss the indictment following an hourlong hearing.

DURING THE HEARING Roberts' attorney, William Tomlinson and Allan Peters of Arlington Heights, accused the government of being "slipshod" and denying Roberts' rights to a fair trial because agents failed to keep seized Teltronics documents in sealed boxes.

The documents wtre taken Dec. 30 from the Teltronics offices at 2400 and 2590 Devon Ave. and were kept in open boxes at the attorney general's Chicago office. The documents had been taken under a Cook County Circuit Court temporary restraining order issued against the firm.

The evidence was held until it was subpoenaed several weeks later by a federal grand jury.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Ann Williams, who is one of three government lawyers prosecuting the case, testified Monday that the inventory of the evidence taken by lawyers for Scott's office was inventoried when the documents were brought to the U.S. attorney's office.

Jury selected for Columbo trial

Attorneys Monday agreed on a jury for the murder trial of Patricia Columbo, 20, and Frank DeLuca, 39, charged in the May 4, 1976, slayings of Miss Columbo's family in Elk Grove Village. The trial is expected to start Wednesday in the courtroom of Judge R. Eugene Pincham, Cook County Criminal Courts Building, Chicago. The jury is made up of six men and six women. Jury members range in age from 21 to 50, the average age being 40. The jury is evenly divided between whites and blacks, city residents and suburbanites.

Laurence Acker, an assistant public defender representing Miss Columbo, said, "We were looking for people who would really impress us as having not formed any opinions, and who could be fair and impartial and presume our client to be innocent until all the evidence was heard . . . I think it's a pretty good jury for both sides — a jury that will be fair."

There will be a pretrial hearing at 11 a.m. today, setting the ground rules for the trial.

Hanover Park man drowns

The body of a Hanover Park man was recovered Monday from the Elgin Quarry in unincorporated Hanover Township where he apparently drowned Sunday night. John E. Whitten, 18, was swimming in one of a number of small ponds in the quarry when he went under, a Cook County Sheriff's Police spokesman said. The Elgin Fire Dept. was unable to search the 50-foot wide pond until early Monday, police said.

Arson-murder trial set May 31

A 27-year -old Palatine man charged with the arson-murder of his wife is scheduled to be tried May 31 in the Evanston branch of Cook County Circuit Court. A spokesman for the Cook County State's Attorney's office Monday said David Rhoads, 409 N. Northwest Hwy., is scheduled to appear at 9:30 a.m. in the Evanston courtroom to be tried on charges he murdered his wife, Vicki, 18, July 17, 1976. The spokesman said Rhoads probably will request a jury trial.

Filled with grief, friends, relatives bury Marilyn

by MARSHA S. BOSLEY

They mourned for Marilyn Louise Goodman and wondered why she had to die.

Their eyes clouded with tears as the Rev. Amos Wilkie of Community Presbyterian Church spoke of the "uncertainty of human life" and "depending to much on tomorrow."

Friends, relatives and neighbors Monday paid final respects to the 18-year-old Mount Prospect woman feeling pain and sorrow for her loss, bitterness and hostility toward the tragic way she died.

Marilyn Goodman

Miss Goodman was the daughter of Mount Prospect Village Clerk Donald Goodman and his wife Shirley, 514 N. Wille St. She was a freshman at Northwood Institute, a private business college in Midland, Mich., where last week she was sexually assaulted and strangled to death. Her 19th birthday would have been June 26.

STILL SHOCKED by the tragedy, family members found it difficult to talk of Marilyn's death. "I have perfect confidence in the Midland police," in their investigation into the murder, Donald Goodman said. "I have always said the Mount Prospect police force was the best," he added, "but now, I know they (Midland police) are equally as good. Everyone up at the school has been perfectly nice. Everyone down here has been great."

The mourners filed solemnly into the church still shaking their heads in disbelief of the tragedy. Whispers of "It's such a terrible thing," could be heard throughout the sanctuary as the organist played laments as a prelude to the final tribute to Miss Goodman.

The family entered from the rear, Donald Goodman clutching the arms of his wife and surviving daughter, Linda, 21. They remained composed throughout trying to nod in gratitude for the sympathies expressed by friends and relatives who crowded the church for the ceremony. They took their places in the front row staring sadly at the closed coffin of their loving daughter and sister.

The funeral was attended by the president of Northwood, Miss Goodman's college roommate, several village officials and family friends. Rev. Wilkie thanked everyone for their condolences and for sharing the tragedy with the Goodman family.

THE CASKET, surrounded by baskets of bright flowers, was carefully lifted from the bier, taken out of the church and placed in the hearse by village police and firefighters who served as pallbearers.

A cortege of nearly 40 cars proceeded to the Wheeling Township Cemetery, Arlington Heights, where Rev. Wilke said a final prayer and Miss Goodman was laid to rest. The family was comforted at her graveside by loved ones who huddled together for the eulogy.

Miss Goddman's friends, many of them students at Prospect High School where she graduated in 1976, remained at the gravesite when it was over weeping as they knelt to place flowers at the head of the coffin.

"I can't even put my feelings, my sorrows into words," said Linda Toeppich, a senior at Prospect High School and friend of Miss Goodman's. "She was so young," Miss Toeppich said as her voice cracked and she broke into tears. "I feel she's going to miss out on so much of life."

SATELLITE PHOTO taken at noon Monday shows heavy cloudiness over the Northwest which is associated with an upper low located over Southern Oregon. Broken to overcast clouds extend from Texas to the northern Plains producing scattered showers and thundershowers over that area. A few mid to high clouds are visible over the Northeast while the remainder of the East is mostly cloud-free.

Digital watch defendant loses dismissal bid

A federal judgt in Chicago Monday refused to dismiss the indictment against Dennis L. Roberts, accused of bilking thousands in a Des Plaines-based mail order digital watch sale scheme.

U.S. District Judge John P. Crowley denied the motion to dismiss as well as an accompanying motion to suppress evidence against Roberts which had been gathered by the consumer fraud division of Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott's office.

Opening arguments will begin today in the case against Roberts, on trial for allegedly using the mails to defraud thousands who ordered $16.95 digital watches from Roberts' now-defunct company, Teltronics Ltd.

ROBERTS, 45, OF Lake Forest, is charged with 50 counts of mail fraud and has been held since Jan. 20 in Cook County Jail in lieu of $500,000 cash bond.

The government has charged that Roberts collected some $1.7 million by purporting to sell digital watches and calculators. Scott's office and, later, the U.S. attorney's office began investigating the operation in December when scores of persons from across the country complained of never receiving the watches.

A jury of eight women and four men was selected Monday to decide the case.

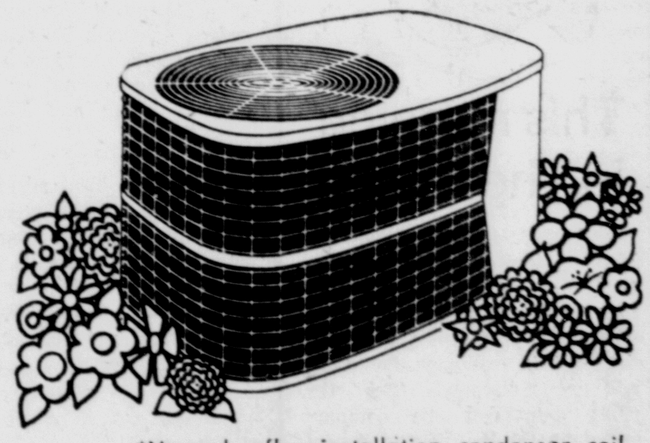

Crowley Monday ruled against both defense motions to suppress evidence and to dismiss the indictment following an hourlong hearing.

DURING THE HEARING Roberts' attorney, William Tomlinson and Allan Peters of Arlington Heights, accused the government of being "slipshod" and denying Roberts' rights to a fair trial because agents failed to keep seized Teltronics documents in sealed boxes.

The documents wtre taken Dec. 30 from the Teltronics offices at 2400 and 2590 Devon Ave. and were kept in open boxes at the attorney general's Chicago office. The documents had been taken under a Cook County Circuit Court temporary restraining order issued against the firm.

The evidence was held until it was subpoenaed several weeks later by a federal grand jury.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Ann Williams, who is one of three government lawyers prosecuting the case, testified Monday that the inventory of the evidence taken by lawyers for Scott's office was inventoried when the documents were brought to the U.S. attorney's office.

Alarm details known in bank theft

by DAVE IBATA

Burglars who stole $112,500 from a Skokie bank needed detailed knowledge of the bank's floor plan and alarm systems, an FBI spokesman said Monday.

George Mandich said, "It's possibly an inside job — either by a bank employe or somebody with good knowledge of the bank and its layout."

The burglars bypassed three sophisticated electronic alarms and opened two combination locks to steal cash from a safe used by drive-up tellers at the First National Bank of Skokie, authorities said.

The burglars tole the cash, in denominatios ranging from $1 to $100, between midnight and 8 a.m. from the bank, at Lincoln Avenue and Oakton Street, Skokie.

"It takes a little bit more know-how than the usual stickup," Mandich said.

SO THOROUGH WERE the thieves they even stole the 250-pound door of the safe they burglarized, leaving investigators no clues as to how they managed to open its two combination locks, said Carroll Layman, vice president of the bank.

"They took it (the door) right with them, so whatever they did couldn't be detected," Layman said. "I would say it's somebody pretty sophisticated, a professional about the whole business."

Mandich said, "Nothing of any significance has been developed yet as far as any physical evidence. At this point we're up against the wall."

FBI investigators searched for finger prints Sunday.

The safe measures 4-feet by 5-feet, and is used as a depository by the eight drive-in tellers on the lower level of the 3½-year-old bank building, Layman said. The safe had been locked just after 1 p.m. Saturday, Layman said.

Security guards checked the safe at midnight Sunday and found nothing amiss, but at 8 a.m. Sunday they found the safe had been entered, Layman said.

THE BURGLARS had stolen eight cash drawers containing the money, and one of the safe's double doors, Layman said.

Layman said the burglars may have hidden in the building at closing time at 1 p.m. Saturday, or entered through an elevator shaft under construction.

The burglars, disabled three alarms attached to the save, Layman said.

"One was a sonic system, one was a heat-sensitive system and one was an actual entry system, all tied in with the local police," Layman said.

Layman said investigators found scratch marks on an alarm box, indicating the thieves may have used an electronic or magnetic device to disable the alarms.

THE BURGLARS opened the safe, took the money and fled the building without triggering other alarms, Layman said.

A burglary by an employe would require knowledge of the bank's security systems, and both combinations to the safe, Layman said. No single bank employe knows both combinations, he said.

Layman said he could not recall anyone with such credentials "being fired or leaving of their own accord for a long, long time."

Helicopter crashes on Pan Am site; 5 die

THIS VIEW of the 59-story Pan Am Building in New York City shows the overturned New York Airways helicopter on top of the building following a crash-landing Monday in which at least five persons were killed and an unspecified number were injured.

the roof, and jagged pieces of metal and other debris were thrown into the street below. A blade of the helicopter lodged in a 36th floor window, but was secured by authorities.

Tommy Clark, 57, of New York said he was walking down the east side of Madison Avenue between 43rd and 44th streets when two women on either side of him screamed.

"She was hit by something in the upper body," Clark said of one of the women. "I thought it was a flower pot or something. Then I saw the blood. She was dead."

CLARK SAID HE grabbed the second woman, who had been hit in the leg. "I pulled her into the doorway of a building so nothing else would fall on her," he said. The woman, aged 26, was later reported in fair condition at St. Clare's Hospital. Her name was withheld pending notification of relatives.

Paul Vatne, 36, a writer for the Norwegian magazine, said he and 13 fellow journalists from that country had just got off the helicopter and were about to leave the waiting room when the accident occurred.

"I heard an explosion. It fell over on its side. I gathered some children and got on the floor. When I looked up, I saw the pilot climb out of the door," Vatne said. He said windows of the building were cracked by flying metal "and glass was coming into the waiting room. It looked like a hunk of steel. You could hardly recotnize it was a helicopter before."

JANINE O'KEEFE, 20, a model, said the blades broke and "slivers started cutting through people."

"It fell right over and the blades hit the ground and started going all over," she said. "Peoples' bodies were going here and there. I went back to pick up my bag and I saw six or seven persons lacerated. I stepped back to get a photograph and it's lucky I did or I would have been cut in half."

Mayor Abraham Beame said he had asked the city's Transportation Administration to revoke New York Airway's permit "immediately until an investigation is completed by the Federal Aviation Administration."

Ambulances from all over the city converged on the area to take away the dead and injured. Within minutes after the accident, an attendant wheeled out two signs on the ground level of the building. "Helicopter not operating," the signs said.

Congress sends tax cuts to Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congress Monday sent President Carter a major tax cut bill designed to vastly simplify tax forms for the almost 50 million Americans who use the standard deduction while giving most of them a small tax cut.

The compromise bill — which also contains business tax cuts and special tax breaks for the elderly, independent oil drillers and others — is almost certain to be signed by Carter.

The bill passed the Senate by voice vote with almost no debate shortly after the House passed it 383 to 2 with Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., and Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., voting against it.

THE BILL, one of the first requested by Carter, was supposed to be a "quick-fix" stimulant to a sagging economy. But after delay by an unrelated dispute over canceled water projects, the economy was sturdier and Carter withdrew its major feature — a $50 per person tax rebate.

Despite the rebate withdrawal, the bill still contains $9.1 billion in tax relief for individuals and $3.2 billion for business during the remainder of this fiscal year and next year.

For individuals, the major benefit would be simplified taxa forms for the 1977 tax year, those due by next April 15.

Anyone who uses the standard deduction would be required only to determine total income, then look up taxes owed on the table that fits the number of family members. Exemptions, credits and the standard deduction would be folded into the tables, meaning that no calculations would be required.

All couples and many single persons who use the standard deduction also would get an average $121 tax cut as the current standard deduction is scrapped in favor of a flat rate of $3,200 for couples and $2,200 for single persons.

BUT SINGLE persons making more than $13,750 would be hit with an average $51 per year tax increase as part of an effort to reduce the "marriage penalty" — the amount of deductions that two single persons lose when they marry.

Taxpayers who itemize deductions — about one in four — would gain little from the bill.

Businesses get a new employment tax credit of $630 to $1,806 for each new employe hired above a base level of slightly more than last year's employment, to a maximum of $100,000 credit.

Several special interest groups would receive benefits, including the elderly, the blind, the disabled, Americans working abroad and independent oil and gas producers.

IN ORDER TO draw up the simplified tax forms, it was necessary to allow the elderly and blind to claim an extra $35 tax credit just as they receive an extra personal exemption now.

The elderly also would be given the option of recalculating 1976 taxes under the old retirement income credit, which was changed by the 1976 tax bill.

Those who claimed the sick pay deduction and Americans who work permanently abroad would be given a one-year reprieve from major retroactive changes in their tax breaks under the 1976 act.

Independent oil and gas producers also would be given a year of relief from a $30 million tax increase imposed by the 1976 Tax Reform Act.

Dinverno murder pretrial begins

by NANCY GOTLER

Two years after Alfred Dinverno was found robbed and murdered execution-style in his palatial Palatine Township home, the two men accused of the crime are about to stand trial.

Before pretrial motions Monday Dinverno's daughter, Diane Walsh, who has spent the time since her father's death corresponding with politicans, prosecutors and the press to hurry the case to court, said she is ready.

"I'm no longer frustrated," she said. "I just want to finally get it over with."

TODAY, JUDGE Brian B. Duff of the Cook County Circuit Court will decide just how much of the facts Mrs. Walsh helped establish will be admitted into evidence.

Pretrial hearings began Monday into the case against Arthur Perez and Antonio Perez (no relation), who are represented by defense attorney George Lynch. The two men will be tried separately.

Lynch charged Monday that one of his clients, Arthur Perez, 26, of Chicago, was arrested on Oct. 12, 1975, without probable cause, detained by police for 20 hours before being allowed to consult a lawyer and searched without a warrant before being formally accused of the crime.

Today at 10 a.m. Duff will determine whether Lynch is right.

HIS DECISION whether to allow into evidence a diamond ring identified as belonging to Dinverno and seized from Arthur Perez the night of his arrest will be a turning point in the case.

"This whole thing was a charade to get hold of this man's jewelry so it could be identified," Lynch said of Arthur Perez' arrest for outstanding parking tickets by Chicago and Illinois state homicide investigators.

"He was taken in originally on suspicious grounds and held so that the ring (identified by Mrs. Walsh as having belonged to her father) could be viewed," he said.

Arthur Perez testified Monday that after he was arrested outside the Pink Doll Tavern in Chicago, police officers searched his car, but never presented him with a search or arrest warrant. He was arrested by Illinois State Police Det. John Nebergall and other investigators.

Later at the Chicago Area 4 police station where he reportedly was detained for 20 hours, Arthur Perez said he was not allowed to make bond on the $100 worth of outstanding parking tickets, not allowed to consult an attorney and stripped of his jewelry, money and an address book.

HE SAID HE was never given copies of the traffic complaints against him or of warrants.

"The tactics of the law enforcement officers after he was arrested tend to show they had used the arrest on the basis of parking tickets as a subterfuge in order to obtain the items in question from the defendant," Lynch said.

But Nebergall testified that Arthur Perez' car had not been searched and that he was arrested after he and ther officers were told by an informant about four conversations overheard between Arthur Perez and his alleged accomplice, Antonio Perez. One allegedly took place the night of the crime.

"The citizen told me he overheard conversations between Arthur and Antonio on several occastions," Nebergall said. "During one conversation after the crime the citizen said Arthur said 'We had to kill the victim.' "

Police theorized Dinverno came home during a burglary.

Druing Monday's testimony, Lynch twice asked for a mistrial. Judge Duff refused both times.

Jury selection in Antonio Perez' case is expected to begin after Duff's decision today.

Arthur Perez will be tried immediately after the first trial, which is expected to take up to two weeks.

the roof, and jagged pieces of metal and other debris were thrown into the street below. A blade of the helicopter lodged in a 36th floor window, but was secured by authorities.

Tommy Clark, 57, of New York said he was walking down the east side of Madison Avenue between 43rd and 44th streets when two women on either side of him screamed.

"She was hit by something in the upper body," Clark said of one of the women. "I thought it was a flower pot or something. Then I saw the blood. She was dead."

CLARK SAID HE grabbed the second woman, who had been hit in the leg. "I pulled her into the doorway of a building so nothing else would fall on her," he said. The woman, aged 26, was later reported in fair condition at St. Clare's Hospital. Her name was withheld pending notification of relatives.

Paul Vatne, 36, a writer for the Norwegian magazine, said he and 13 fellow journalists from that country had just got off the helicopter and were about to leave the waiting room when the accident occurred.

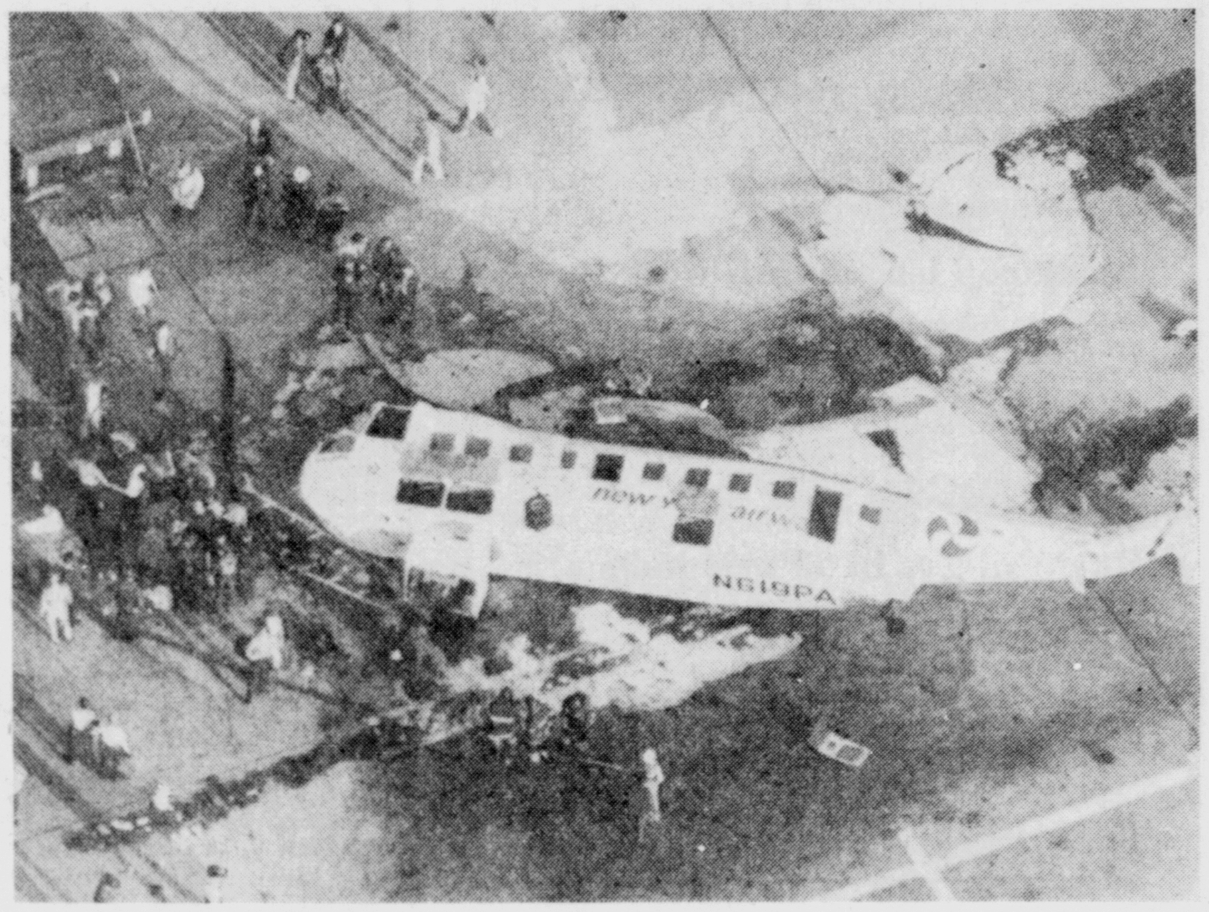

"I heard an explosion. It fell over on its side. I gathered some children and got on the floor. When I looked up, I saw the pilot climb out of the door," Vatne said. He said windows of the building were cracked by flying metal "and glass was coming into the waiting room. It looked like a hunk of steel. You could hardly recotnize it was a helicopter before."

JANINE O'KEEFE, 20, a model, said the blades broke and "slivers started cutting through people."

"It fell right over and the blades hit the ground and started going all over," she said. "Peoples' bodies were going here and there. I went back to pick up my bag and I saw six or seven persons lacerated. I stepped back to get a photograph and it's lucky I did or I would have been cut in half."

Mayor Abraham Beame said he had asked the city's Transportation Administration to revoke New York Airway's permit "immediately until an investigation is completed by the Federal Aviation Administration."

Ambulances from all over the city converged on the area to take away the dead and injured. Within minutes after the accident, an attendant wheeled out two signs on the ground level of the building. "Helicopter not operating," the signs said.

Congress sends tax cuts to Carter

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Congress Monday sent President Carter a major tax cut bill designed to vastly simplify tax forms for the almost 50 million Americans who use the standard deduction while giving most of them a small tax cut.

The compromise bill — which also contains business tax cuts and special tax breaks for the elderly, independent oil drillers and others — is almost certain to be signed by Carter.

The bill passed the Senate by voice vote with almost no debate shortly after the House passed it 383 to 2 with Reps. Andy Jacobs, D-Ind., and Charles Wiggins, R-Calif., voting against it.

THE BILL, one of the first requested by Carter, was supposed to be a "quick-fix" stimulant to a sagging economy. But after delay by an unrelated dispute over canceled water projects, the economy was sturdier and Carter withdrew its major feature — a $50 per person tax rebate.

Despite the rebate withdrawal, the bill still contains $9.1 billion in tax relief for individuals and $3.2 billion for business during the remainder of this fiscal year and next year.

For individuals, the major benefit would be simplified taxa forms for the 1977 tax year, those due by next April 15.

Anyone who uses the standard deduction would be required only to determine total income, then look up taxes owed on the table that fits the number of family members. Exemptions, credits and the standard deduction would be folded into the tables, meaning that no calculations would be required.

All couples and many single persons who use the standard deduction also would get an average $121 tax cut as the current standard deduction is scrapped in favor of a flat rate of $3,200 for couples and $2,200 for single persons.

BUT SINGLE persons making more than $13,750 would be hit with an average $51 per year tax increase as part of an effort to reduce the "marriage penalty" — the amount of deductions that two single persons lose when they marry.

Taxpayers who itemize deductions — about one in four — would gain little from the bill.

Businesses get a new employment tax credit of $630 to $1,806 for each new employe hired above a base level of slightly more than last year's employment, to a maximum of $100,000 credit.

Several special interest groups would receive benefits, including the elderly, the blind, the disabled, Americans working abroad and independent oil and gas producers.

IN ORDER TO draw up the simplified tax forms, it was necessary to allow the elderly and blind to claim an extra $35 tax credit just as they receive an extra personal exemption now.

The elderly also would be given the option of recalculating 1976 taxes under the old retirement income credit, which was changed by the 1976 tax bill.

Those who claimed the sick pay deduction and Americans who work permanently abroad would be given a one-year reprieve from major retroactive changes in their tax breaks under the 1976 act.

Independent oil and gas producers also would be given a year of relief from a $30 million tax increase imposed by the 1976 Tax Reform Act.

Dinverno murder pretrial begins

by NANCY GOTLER

Two years after Alfred Dinverno was found robbed and murdered execution-style in his palatial Palatine Township home, the two men accused of the crime are about to stand trial.

Before pretrial motions Monday Dinverno's daughter, Diane Walsh, who has spent the time since her father's death corresponding with politicans, prosecutors and the press to hurry the case to court, said she is ready.

"I'm no longer frustrated," she said. "I just want to finally get it over with."

TODAY, JUDGE Brian B. Duff of the Cook County Circuit Court will decide just how much of the facts Mrs. Walsh helped establish will be admitted into evidence.

Pretrial hearings began Monday into the case against Arthur Perez and Antonio Perez (no relation), who are represented by defense attorney George Lynch. The two men will be tried separately.

Lynch charged Monday that one of his clients, Arthur Perez, 26, of Chicago, was arrested on Oct. 12, 1975, without probable cause, detained by police for 20 hours before being allowed to consult a lawyer and searched without a warrant before being formally accused of the crime.

Today at 10 a.m. Duff will determine whether Lynch is right.

HIS DECISION whether to allow into evidence a diamond ring identified as belonging to Dinverno and seized from Arthur Perez the night of his arrest will be a turning point in the case.

"This whole thing was a charade to get hold of this man's jewelry so it could be identified," Lynch said of Arthur Perez' arrest for outstanding parking tickets by Chicago and Illinois state homicide investigators.

"He was taken in originally on suspicious grounds and held so that the ring (identified by Mrs. Walsh as having belonged to her father) could be viewed," he said.

Arthur Perez testified Monday that after he was arrested outside the Pink Doll Tavern in Chicago, police officers searched his car, but never presented him with a search or arrest warrant. He was arrested by Illinois State Police Det. John Nebergall and other investigators.

Later at the Chicago Area 4 police station where he reportedly was detained for 20 hours, Arthur Perez said he was not allowed to make bond on the $100 worth of outstanding parking tickets, not allowed to consult an attorney and stripped of his jewelry, money and an address book.

HE SAID HE was never given copies of the traffic complaints against him or of warrants.

"The tactics of the law enforcement officers after he was arrested tend to show they had used the arrest on the basis of parking tickets as a subterfuge in order to obtain the items in question from the defendant," Lynch said.

But Nebergall testified that Arthur Perez' car had not been searched and that he was arrested after he and ther officers were told by an informant about four conversations overheard between Arthur Perez and his alleged accomplice, Antonio Perez. One allegedly took place the night of the crime.

"The citizen told me he overheard conversations between Arthur and Antonio on several occastions," Nebergall said. "During one conversation after the crime the citizen said Arthur said 'We had to kill the victim.' "

Police theorized Dinverno came home during a burglary.

Druing Monday's testimony, Lynch twice asked for a mistrial. Judge Duff refused both times.

Jury selection in Antonio Perez' case is expected to begin after Duff's decision today.

Arthur Perez will be tried immediately after the first trial, which is expected to take up to two weeks.

RTA needs to hire lobbyists: board

Calling the Regional Transportation Authority's lobbying effort "amateurish" several RTA directors Monday called for the agency to hire lobbyists.

"Both at the federal and state levels, this agency has not had the kind of concerted effort needed to pass bills we're interested in," said Nicholas Bosen, board member from Chicago.

John Nelson, of the RTA's governmental affairs department said the RTA avoided being dismantled by the state legislature this session because "of a rather healthy piece of luck."

"The RTA has been spared any serious challenges to its integrity," Nelson told the RTA's legislative and governmental affairs committee.

With 24 bills introduced in the legislature, Nelson said only four will make it out of committee this session.

One of those bills, however, calls for a major reduction in the salaries of RTA board members.

The board also has requested a legal opinion on whether RTA can hire professional lobbyists.

The Afro-American Patrolmen's League of Chicago, which has battled the city over hiring practices, is suffering from the "worst" financial shape it has ever been in, its executive director said Monday. The black patrolman's league, founded in 1968, is having difficulty meeting its payroll and its office staff has been cut in half, said Renault A. Robinson. Much of the funds were drained by the recent court battle with the city over discriminatory hiring practices, Robinson said.

Thompson's gifts are ample samples

Gov. James R. Thompson could almost get along without a paycheck on the gifts he gets. If Thompson gets hungry, he can dine on one of a dozen beef steaks sent him afteer the November election. If something lighter is in order, he can snack on cookies sent him by an Illinois Supreme Court employe who, says press aide Jim Skilbeck, did the same thing when he used to argue before the court. The governor could wash it all down with Scotch shipped by a Rantoul couple, and should the gubernatorial dog "Guv" need food, Thompson can toss him a bone sent by a donor known only as Angie. All these unsolicited gifts — more than 100 so far — are carefully recorded in a gift book begun last Christmas when Thompson received a free color television which he gave to a school for retarded children with the donor's blessing. Gilbert said Thompson has rejected both gifts and campaign contributions "but he doesn't tell us what the gifts are or why. A lot of things came to his attention when he was U.S. attorney, and for that reason some gifts he doesn't think are appropriate. But most he keeps so people's feelings aren't hurt.

Child center faces license loss

A move to revoke the license of a McHenry County child care center accused of abusing retarded children has been initiated by the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services in Springfield, it was announced Monday. In an article published Sunday, the Chicago Sun-Times reported former employes at Windgate had accused the care home operator of permitting "gang biting" in which several children were urged to bite an offender. The newspaper also reported that children were bound to "wooden potty chairs for hours as punishment," and served leftover food.

Driver's license may be revoked without hearing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 8-0 Monday in an Illinois case that a driver's license may be revoked without a hearing if the driver has had three suspensions within 10 years.

It did not reject the reasoning of a lower court that barred revocation on the basis of a determination that a person has "disrespect for the traffic laws."

Speaking for the court, Justice Harry Blackmun said in regard to prerevocation hearings that a license to operate a motor vehicle is not so important as some other private interests, such as social insurance payments.

A SPECIAL three-judge federal panel in Chicago had ordered the state to cease enforcing the law as written on the ground that it gave authorities too much discretion.

But Justices William Brennan and John Paul Stevens said the court views the revocation as based on a three-suspension standard, which makes lifting the license mandatory.

The case was brought by a Chicago truck driver, Dennis Love, who had been convicted three times of traffic violations in 1974 and early 1975. Before that his license had been suspended twice.

A hearing is available after revocation.

In other action, the court:

• OVERTURNED property ownership requirements for appointees to public office. By a vote of 8 to 1, the court invalidated a 1969 law which required members of the airport commission in Baton Rouge, La., to own real or personal property subject to tax assessments in East Baton Rouge Parish.

• Declined to rule on a lower federal court's finding that minors have a right to independent representation and review when their parents seek to commit them to mental institutions against their will.

• Affirmed a lower court's ruling that a state need not provide a hearing before cutting off unemployment benefits to those found no longer eligible.

• Agreed to decide whether federal courts can use the 14th Amendment to ban sex discrimination in rules governing membership in Indian tribes.

• Sent back to a lower court a challenge to the system, which now has been abandoned, under which members of Congress received pay raises without voting on them.

'78 time to pop Thompson's U.S. dreams: Bakalis

State Comptroller Michael Bakalis says President Jimmy Carter should look at the 1978 Illinois election as an opportunity to "derail" the potential presidential challenge of Republican Gov. James R. Thompson.

Bakalis, who has been mentioned by some political observers as a possible Democratic gubernatorial candidate in 1978, has called for major reforms in the state Democratic party, including seeking political help from national party leaders.

"He ought to have a real self-interest in Illinois, if he thinks of Thompson as a potential threat. I would guess he would take some real interest in this election in terms of his own activities," Bakalis said Monday during an interview with The Herald.

WHILE CARTER has not visited Chicago since taking office and rejected a request to appear at a major Democratic dinner in Chicago next week, Bakalis said Carter will have to recognize that he is a politician and will have to make those kind of trips in the future.

Bakalis said he has made no decision about his political plans in 1978. The former superintendent of public instruction has been mentioned as a possible opponent for Thompson or U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who is also up for reelection.

He said he plans to have the remaining $55,000 in campaign debts paid by July.

Bakalis also is hopeful the Democratic party in Illinois will adopt reforms to broaden the base of the party leadership by the 1978 elections.

Besides trying to push legislation to expand the size of the state central committee, Bakalis wants the party to hire a full-time director.

WHILE JOHN Touhy, state party chairman, and Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne, the county party chairman, each have been receptive to reform proposals, Bakalis said they are not sure how to make changes.

"There really is no forceful leadership coming in the Democratic party. The mayor (the late Mayor Richard J. Daley) is not here and you can see it in Springfield. You can see people holding back. They are not sure of what (Chicago's Acting Mayor Michael) Bilandic is doing. They are sure what Dunne is doing," Bakalis said.

"I think it really does fall to (Sec. of State Alan) Dixon, myself, Touhy and Dunne to provide the leadership," Bakalis said.

Lange lived in 2 worlds: pastor and quiet man and a good dentist. But persons close to him knew of his film activities with kids.

Lange was divorced from his wife two years ago. He moved to his apartment where he frequently brought home young men, his neighbors said.

One of Lange's neighbors, who asked not to be identified, said she often saw boys ranging in age from 12 to 18 going in and out of Lange's room at night.

"Of course, I didn't think anything of it. I knew that he was involved in working with young people from the church over there," the neighbor said. "I just thought he was helping them keep out of trouble by keeping them off the street."

SEVERAL TIMES, young boys would be in Lange's apartment when he was away, but neighbors thought it was all connected with his church activities.

Another neighbor who lives a few doors down said he went to see Lange professionally for two years and Lange the dentist was a "good doctor." The neighbor said "he seemed like a very nice guy, but we didn't see him socially."

Reactions to Lange's arrest were all about the same — shock and disbelief.

"I'm just very surprised. I can't believe he could be mixed up with something like this," said W. E. Nelson who lives a few doors from Lange's former home. "There was never any indication."

Another woman described Lange as a "pleasant man" who on several occasions had taken children from the neighborhood sailing on his boat. A third woman said she and her husband had sailed with Dr. Lange and that she was upset that he had been charged with the manufacture of child pornography films.

Rev. Gay said Lange suffered from trying to live in two worlds at the same time.

"One had to explode sooner or later," he said.

be charged only with being minors in need of supervision and must be handled through Juvenile Court.

THOMAS SAID he hopes the court will begin declaring the children wards of the state and turning them over to the state Dept. of Children and Family Services.

"A lot of these youngsters do not really feel into this thing," he said. "They do it for the money and if we can get them away from it, they will stop doing it."

Bilandic said he will work with Chicago Police Supt. James Rochford to help the department "deploy more resources and manpower" in its investigation.

And Carey announced a grand jury investigation of the use of children in sexually explicit films and pictures.

"I'm principally after the producers of child pornography. They are the people who have been making millions of dollars in one of the most sordid rackets I've ever encountered."

Bakalis, who has been mentioned by some political observers as a possible Democratic gubernatorial candidate in 1978, has called for major reforms in the state Democratic party, including seeking political help from national party leaders.

"He ought to have a real self-interest in Illinois, if he thinks of Thompson as a potential threat. I would guess he would take some real interest in this election in terms of his own activities," Bakalis said Monday during an interview with The Herald.

WHILE CARTER has not visited Chicago since taking office and rejected a request to appear at a major Democratic dinner in Chicago next week, Bakalis said Carter will have to recognize that he is a politician and will have to make those kind of trips in the future.

Bakalis said he has made no decision about his political plans in 1978. The former superintendent of public instruction has been mentioned as a possible opponent for Thompson or U.S. Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who is also up for reelection.

He said he plans to have the remaining $55,000 in campaign debts paid by July.

Bakalis also is hopeful the Democratic party in Illinois will adopt reforms to broaden the base of the party leadership by the 1978 elections.

Besides trying to push legislation to expand the size of the state central committee, Bakalis wants the party to hire a full-time director.

WHILE JOHN Touhy, state party chairman, and Cook County Board Pres. George Dunne, the county party chairman, each have been receptive to reform proposals, Bakalis said they are not sure how to make changes.

"There really is no forceful leadership coming in the Democratic party. The mayor (the late Mayor Richard J. Daley) is not here and you can see it in Springfield. You can see people holding back. They are not sure of what (Chicago's Acting Mayor Michael) Bilandic is doing. They are sure what Dunne is doing," Bakalis said.

"I think it really does fall to (Sec. of State Alan) Dixon, myself, Touhy and Dunne to provide the leadership," Bakalis said.

Lange lived in 2 worlds: pastor and quiet man and a good dentist. But persons close to him knew of his film activities with kids.

Lange was divorced from his wife two years ago. He moved to his apartment where he frequently brought home young men, his neighbors said.

One of Lange's neighbors, who asked not to be identified, said she often saw boys ranging in age from 12 to 18 going in and out of Lange's room at night.

"Of course, I didn't think anything of it. I knew that he was involved in working with young people from the church over there," the neighbor said. "I just thought he was helping them keep out of trouble by keeping them off the street."

SEVERAL TIMES, young boys would be in Lange's apartment when he was away, but neighbors thought it was all connected with his church activities.

Another neighbor who lives a few doors down said he went to see Lange professionally for two years and Lange the dentist was a "good doctor." The neighbor said "he seemed like a very nice guy, but we didn't see him socially."

Reactions to Lange's arrest were all about the same — shock and disbelief.

"I'm just very surprised. I can't believe he could be mixed up with something like this," said W. E. Nelson who lives a few doors from Lange's former home. "There was never any indication."

Another woman described Lange as a "pleasant man" who on several occasions had taken children from the neighborhood sailing on his boat. A third woman said she and her husband had sailed with Dr. Lange and that she was upset that he had been charged with the manufacture of child pornography films.

Rev. Gay said Lange suffered from trying to live in two worlds at the same time.

"One had to explode sooner or later," he said.

be charged only with being minors in need of supervision and must be handled through Juvenile Court.

THOMAS SAID he hopes the court will begin declaring the children wards of the state and turning them over to the state Dept. of Children and Family Services.

"A lot of these youngsters do not really feel into this thing," he said. "They do it for the money and if we can get them away from it, they will stop doing it."

Bilandic said he will work with Chicago Police Supt. James Rochford to help the department "deploy more resources and manpower" in its investigation.

And Carey announced a grand jury investigation of the use of children in sexually explicit films and pictures.

"I'm principally after the producers of child pornography. They are the people who have been making millions of dollars in one of the most sordid rackets I've ever encountered."

HOW DO YOU STUFF a hot dog, wonder first graders at Irving School, 1250 Radcliffe, Buffalo Grove. Their answer comes from Garry Gann, at the meat grinder, and Larry Anderson, both of John Morell's, a hot dog manufacturer. The two men show the youngsters how an old fashioned hand grinder prepares the beef before it is put inside a casing.

Health site may need bond issue

Construction of a new mental health center for Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships may require a bond issue in addition to the tax referendum already being considered by the two townships.

And if the bond issue is required, some officials say it could make passage of a referendum creating a mental health tax more difficult.

"They (the voters) would be looking at two forms of taxation there, more money out of their pockets, and consequently, it'll be more difficult to convince the voters to approve it," said Richard Hall, Elk Grove Township supervisor.

HOWEVER, the question of whether a simultaneous bond issue would be needed is cloudy.

Initially, officials of the joint township mental health center saw creation of a mental health tax as a way of financing a new $660,000 building.

State law allows townships to levy a mental health tax of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation or $15 on a house assessed at $10,000 if approved in referendum. Based on 1976 assessments, that levy would generate $1.09 million in the two townships.

However, Vincent Garcia, executive director of the Oak Park Mental Health Center Board, has cast doubts on the ability of those funds to finance the new facility.

HE TOLD AREA mental health and township officials two weeks ago that a bond issue would have to be floated separate from the tax referendum to construct a facility.

Schaumburg Township Clerk Kay Wojcik agrees.

"You have to have a bond referendum," she said Monday. "There's no way you can build a building without it."

If a mental health tax was created, she added, the money it would generate would be needed for operating expenses for six different agencies. If the two townships chose to use its mental health tax revenue to construct a building, she said, it wouldn't be able to meet their obligations to the other agencies.

AT THE SAME time, Mrs. Wojcik said, mental health tax revenue can only be used one year at a time. The townships could not borrow against expected future revenue because "there would be no savings and loan or mortgage institution to loan you money."

Parents protest test score release

One hundred forty-five parents Monday night asked the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education to rescind its decision to publicly release scores on the Iowa Tests of Basic Skills on a school-by-school basis.

The board took no action on the request, a petition signed by parents from Marshall, Byrd, and Salt Creek schools.

"We feel the end result of such pitting of school against school is that our teachers will be forced to teach the test and our children will become competitors whose worth and the worth of any individual school community, will be based upon the Iowa test results," the petition states.

THE BOARD'S DECISION to release the scores on the annual standardized tests on a school-by-school basis was made earlier this month to promote educational accountability by letting parents know exactly where the district stands and giving them a basis for comparison.

The petition presented to the board Monday, however, states that a school-by-school comparison of Iowa scores only is valid in as much as all school populations are homogeneous.

"The educational curriculum should be determined by school personnel and parents rather than by Iowa Tests of Basic Skills' authors," the petition states. "The Iowa test is only one measure of success and if educational success is to be measured, it must include a variety of measures.

PARENTS WHO SIGNED the petition asked the board that their children's Iowa scores be omitted when school averages are reported because they do not wish to participate in "creating a class system," within the district.

The board still has not decided when or how the school-by- school Iowa test scores will be released.

Results on the 1976-77 Iowa test presented by administrators Monday shows scores varied by as much as 74 percentile points from school to school in the district. Administrators did not attribute scores to particular schools but rather used letters to represent the district's 21 schools.

Fourth-grade composite scores on the 1976 tests ranged from a high of the 94th percentile in one building to a low of the 35th percentile. The national norm is the 50th percentile.

The biggest difference was in fourth-grade reading where students in one school scored in the 94th percentile and students in another scored in the 20th percentile.

Students in the third through eighth grades annually are tested in five major areas — vocabulary, reading, language skills, work study skills and math.

Until now, only over-all district scores have been released by the board although parents have been able to obtain their children's individual scores from principals.

Cop class teaches stress handling

Arlington Heights police are learning how to handle stress situations as part of an in-house training course, Deputy Police Chief Paul Buckholz said.

"It is a practical course," Buckholz said. "Actual police situations will be used as references; they will be evaluated, and alternate methods of dealing with stress will be discussed."

The eight-month class meets every Thursday at the fire station at 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

All police officers must attend the course, Buckholz said.

Tom Jauch, clinical psychologist at the Northwest Human Resources Development Center, 3301 Algonquin Rd., Rolling Meadows, will teach policemen how to handle: personal stress, stress of their jobs as police officers, stress posed by criminals, family crisis situations and symptoms of stress, and how to deal with them.

Police ride-along program offered

Arlington Heights police June 3 will begin a ride-along program for citizens interested in a first hand look at police work.

Dep. Chief Paul Buckholz said Monday, "We want to give Arlington Heights citizens an opportunity to observe firsthand the operation of the police department."

Anyone at least 15 years old will be able to ride along with patrolmen as they make their rounds, Buckholz said. Each ride-along will take two hours, and police will take up to four citizens per squad car, Buckholz said.

Ride-alongs will be offered between 6 p.m. and midnight Fridays through August, Buckholz said.

Arrangements for ride-alongs may be made by calling the Arlington Heights Police Dept. Crime Prevention Bureau, CL3-2340 ext. 305, weekdays during business hours, Buckholz said.

Dist. 25 faces difficult choice

The Arlington Heights Dist. 25 board of education faces a difficult and sensitive decision in the next few months about which junior high school to lease to Roosevelt University.

Roosevelt officials last week informed the board they would like to lease either Miner Junior High or Thomas Junior High as a branch campus beginning in the fall of 1978. University officials say they prefer Miner because of its design and proximity to the Chicago and North Western Railway.

Dist. 25 officials must make the final choice between the two schools. So far, all evidence indicates they will make the decision in the same open, responsible way they have made other decisions on school closings.

The first public hearing on the issue is scheduled for early June. Residents of both the Miner and Thomas areas will have the opportunity to express their opinions to the board at that and later meetings.

To start the debate, we offer several things the board must consider in making the choice:

• Cost. Closing Miner would mean the district would not have to incur additional busing costs, while closing Thomas will add $5,000 to $10,000 to the busing budget.

• Traffic. Some residents of the Miner area have already pointed out that traffic in the area is congested. Thomas, on the other hand, is located at a major intersection on Arlington Heights Road which may be better able to absorb the extra traffic.

• Nature of the community. The area immediately surrounding Miner is heavily residential, while Thomas has a commercial street nearby. The board will have to decide whether Roosevelt's operation will be more disruptive to the Miner or Thomas neighborhood.

Whatever decision the board makes, it is almost certain that someone will be unhappy. Some residents of both the Miner and Thomas areas will object on principle to losing their local school.

That unhappiness is understandable, but the unavoidable fact is that Dist. 25 must close a school because of declining enrollment.

Leasing a building to Roosevelt will allow the district to gain some extra revenue and will provide a valuable educational opportunity to the adults in the area.

Whether Miner or Thomas is the school chosen, the Dist. 25 board has behaved responsibly in approaching their decision.

Water saving highlights

The spectres of giant toothbrushes and empty swimming pools are haunting the Northwest suburbs.

As unlikely as it seems, the toothbrushes are real — the symbols of water conservation erected in downtown Mount Prospect. The empty pools, so far at least, are only a distant threat because of action by the Elk Grove Village Board.

In Mount Prospect, toothbrushes and mock showerheads have been set up downtown to focus attention on the need to conserve water. By brushing with two ounces of water, according to Mount Prospect officials, residents can save many gallons.

In Elk Grove, village officials discovered that new water use regulations restricting swimming pool filling to four hours a week would make it impossible for residents or park district officials to fill empty pools.

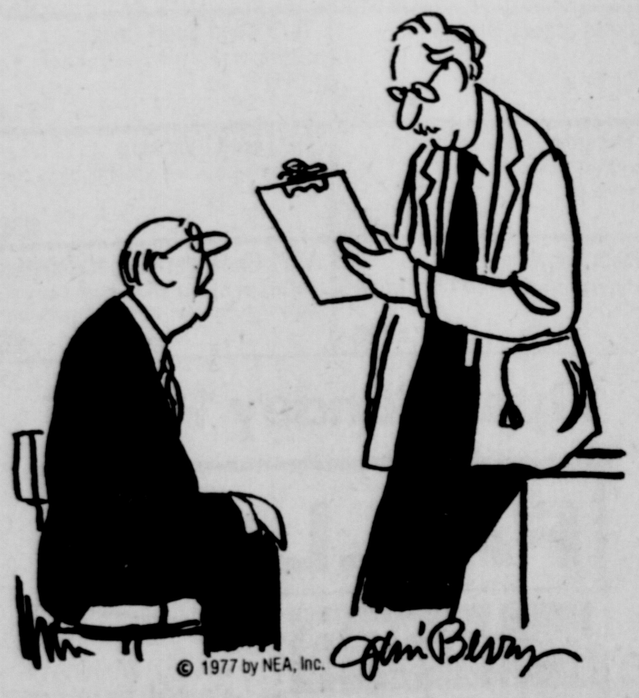

Elk Grove averted the problem of empty pools by acting this week to allow special water use permits to be issued for "first fills" of swimming pools. After the pools are full, owners will be restricted in their use of water to freshen them.

The swimming pool situation in Elk Grove, as well as Mount Prospect's campaign, serve once again to bring attention to the need for water conservation.

These warnings must be heeded, unless residents of the Northwest suburbs are willing to face the prospect of empty water faucets and strict legal restrictions on the use of water.

If severe water shortages come to the area, empty swimming pools will be the least of our problems.

The big pigmy story may rival Johnny Weissmuller

Paul Greenberg

Oh, A. J. Liebling, would thou wert with us at this hour. The big pygmy story out of Zaire — or is it the little pygmy story? — promises to be the hottest, longest playing sensation since Chiang Kai-shek's rubbertype army.

In his time, A. J. Liebling pierced that legendary force by noting that the generalissimo's legions would expand whenever the going got tough in Korea. In Zaire, the pygmies are now mentioned in dispatches whenever things are in danger of slowing down. Although the latest flash from United Press International indicates that the little rascals are being spelled by full size, or at least Medium Long, archers:

"KINSHASA (UPI) Archers armed with deadly poisoned arrows are once more fighting rebel invaders in southern Zaire and are spreading panic among the enemy, the official radio said Sunday."

THAT TAIL-END attribution to "the official radio" does take the edge off the story, like a Made-in-Hong-Kong label on a sportcoat. Mention of The Official Radio in a story about Zaire is the equivalent of a Beirut dateline on anything about the Middle East. The reader should know immediately that the information is going to be fascinating, colorful and most of all apocryphal. The great pygmy story is a natural for UPI, which still specializes in the sort of angles other wire services have been neglecting since the Twenties.

The step down in the lead paragraph from exotic pygmy bowmen to plain old archers-with-deadly-poisoned-arrows (or is it a step up, physically?) is to be deprecated. A few pygmies far from the front make better copy than a whole army of archers right on the battlements. Somebody at UPI surely knows that, since the pygmies are re-introduced in the second paragraph of the story and proceed to dominate it from then on, even though The Official Radio concedes they haven't fired an arrow in anger for weeks:

"The announcement (of the archers' appearance) follows reports that the insurgents also were using bows and arrows and came three weeks after supposedly devastating attacks on their positions by pygmy bowmen."

That "supposedly" before the "devastating" shows how pale and qualified even UPI has grown over the years. No wonder Rupert Murdoch and the National Inquirer have had a vacuum to fill in American Journalism. However effective the pygmies may prove in Zaire, they're the great mocha hope of the wire services. One imagines wire editors across the country even now thumbing through encyclopedias and old copies of the National Geographic for pygmy pictures, since no pics of the mini-warriors in action have materialized.

WHEN WESTERN REPORTERS reach the front in Zaire, the pygmies are invariably away for rest, recreation or retraining. To quote a paragraph late in the UPI story:

"Last month, President Sese Seko Mobutu said he had sent a contingent of pygmy archers to the province, but reporters who arrived in the area two weeks ago never saw the pygmies and were told they had been withdrawn for 'retraining.' "

One reason the press might not have spotted the pygmies, and why they (the pygmies and perhaps the reporters too) might need special training, is alluded to in the next paragraph:

"Officials said the four-foot pygmies, native to the Ituri forest in Northeastern Zaire, had difficulty fighting in eight-foot-tall elephant grass."

NEVERTHELESS, the pygmies have been spreading panic among the enemy for three successive weeks now, including the two they've been away for retraining, presumably with stepladders. Or maybe elevator shoes. Their effectiveness is now being described in dispatches as largely "psychological," like Alex Haley's genealogy. After three weeks of pygmy-panic, it's a wonder there's any panic left to be spread by the archers-with-deadly-poisoned-arrows.

Whatever the reactions or whereabouts of the ever more elusive enemy in Zaire, American readers are showing great staying power. Something there is in an American that love pygmies, archers, white hunter hats, Masai, King Solomon's mines, Venus flytraps big enough to swallow a regiment . . .

And if the pygmies can't actually be captured on film anywhere near the battle, there's always that old footage of George Brent in a pith helmet, or maybe Johnny Weissmuller in nothing much. With a cast of thousands, costumes from the East and blowdarts from Abercrombie and Fitch, how could such a production miss?

'Help needed for diabetes'

Do you or someone close to you have these symptoms: Unusual, excessive thirst; frequent urination; weight loss in the face of increased appetite and food intake; frequent weakness, drowsiness or tiredness; blurry vision or other visual changes; cuts and bruises that heal slowly.

If one or more of these symptoms appear on a recurring basis, it could mean diabetes. Please see to it that you or that someone close gets to a doctor. The statistics derived by a congressional commission in 1975-76 proved diabetes is now the third cause of death in the United States.

Diabetes causes thickening of the blood vessels in all parts of the body leading to heart disease; kidney failure; the leading cause of new cases of blindness; cirrhosis; arteriosclerosis; neuropathy (nerve damage); gangrene and amputation of limbs; complication of pregnancy; impotence; coma; shock; a life filled with restrictions; worry; injections; medical expense and personal problems.

Since insulin was discovered 55 years ago, very little research was done on diabetes. It was thought insulin was a cure. However, we now know it is just a stay of execution and all this time this hereditory factor disease was being passed on and increasing until now it is expected that by 1980 one person in 20 will be a diabetic carrier.

As the eyes of the diabetic go blind, the kidneys fail, the human body deteriorates, the government takes over and provides Medicaid, Medicare, Social Security payments and today spends more than 5 billion dollars a year on diabetics. We do not want this future for our children or yours. We want a means of prevention. We need research aimed at lessening the severity of complications and a cure if possibe.

According to the Wise Report, a national investigatory agency, the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation appropriates to research the largest proportion of their income of any other national organization listed in the United States. 81 per cent goes to research, five and a half per cent to education. There are only five paid personnel at our national office.

We have at this point 75 chapters in the United States with 25 more in the process of being chartered. Canada has one chapter and our newest sister chapter is in Israel. As the chairman of Wheeling for Juvenile Diabetes Foundation (ADF), I would like to take this opportunity to request volunteer help for our nationally dedicated Juvenile Diabetes Foundation fund raising campaign for research.

If you could please spare about two hours of your valuable time to help me, please contact me: Evelyne Eisenman at 541-4248. Remember, where would you be without medical help if diabetes should strike you or someone close to you.

'Ban abortion'

In Southern California Dr. William Waddill Jr. has been accused of strangling to death a newborn girl one hour after her live birth following an unsuccessful saline abortion on March 2. He had performed the abortion earlier that day on a mother who was seven-and-a-half months pregnant at the Westminster Community Hospital. The baby, delivered alive, was taken by a nurse to the nursery for life-sustaining care. Apparently not on hand at the time of the live delivery, Dr. Waddill, when informed of the survival, proceeded to the nursery and, after ordering other personnel to leave, choked the baby to death, the Westminster police allege.

Fellow readers, I ask you, if the allegations are true that Dr. Waddill strangled this baby one hour after her birth — do you agree with me that this baby was murdered? If you agree with me this far, then I must ask you —why was it perfectly legal for him to abort (to destroy) this baby one hour before birth? Why are over one million babies per year suctioned, chopped up, scraped out, poisoned and discarded all with the sanction of the law?

In 1975 89,000 babies were aborted between the fourth and ninth months of pregnancy in our country. If you want to do something about it, write to your U.S. Congressman and to Senators Percy and Stevenson asking them to support a Human Life Amendment!

Chamber hits overregulation

Business unaware of others' rights

Martha Angle and Robert Walters

In Washington

WASHINGTON — To nobody's surprise, the business community's increasingly strident complaints about "paternalistic government" and "bureaucratic meddling" resounded throughout the 6th annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, recently held here.

What was astounding, however, was the revelation that convention participants were quite insensitive to government restrictions which cause discomfort or inconvenience to others. In fact, they exhibited considerable enthusiasm for federal intervention which benefits businessmen.

Those contradictory attitudes are particularly significant because the business community has mounted a well-orchestrated campaign to convince the public that today's elected politicans and career bureaucrats in Washington are determined to subvert the best intention of the oft-quoted "Founding Fathers."

HERBERT S. RICHEY, newly elected chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, opened the convention with a speech criticizing "burdensome government regulation . . . (and) federal red tape." He was followed a day later by Dr. Richard L. Lesher, the organization's president who also inveighed against "excessive government regulation."

A survey of conference participants, most of them businessmen or executives of local chambers of commerce around the country, found that 78 per cent predictably believed that "our government imposes too many restrictions on personal freedom," while almost 92 per cent said "our government imposes too many restrictions on business."

But when the questioning got down to specifics, the business leaders displayed a marked lack of interest in anyone's freedom except their own. By a margin of almost 2-1, for instance, those surveyed rejected the notion that government regulations requiring motorcycle riders to wear protective helmets represented an infringement of individual freedom.

The country's motorcyclists have complained bitterly that such laws do indeed restrict their liberty. The unwillingness of the businessmen to apply their constitutional principles to that practice undoubtedly is related to the fact that few middle-aged executives are motorcycle riders.

ALMOST 80 PER cent of those polled did not believe that restrictions on personal freedom such as airport weapons searches and building security systems were "overreactions to news accounts of terrorists' acts."

One strongly suspects that they are unperturbed about government intrusions such as airport searches because that form of "meddling" just happens to make frequent air travelers — most of them businessmen — more comfortable about the prospect of reaching their destinations without a hijacking attempt or other untoward incident.

But fewer than 31 per cent of those polled believed minimum wage laws were "needed to protect society as a whole." Is there not a direct relationship between that view and the fact that minimum wage laws can restrict business profits?

Richey talked, in his speech, about the need to identify and support "theologians of freedom." The business community does indeed need someone to espouse a coherent philosophy on its behalf because the survey results suggest that the current rhetoric represents little more than the promotion of selfish interests in the ill-fitting disguise of "constitutional rights."

In Washington

WASHINGTON — To nobody's surprise, the business community's increasingly strident complaints about "paternalistic government" and "bureaucratic meddling" resounded throughout the 6th annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, recently held here.

What was astounding, however, was the revelation that convention participants were quite insensitive to government restrictions which cause discomfort or inconvenience to others. In fact, they exhibited considerable enthusiasm for federal intervention which benefits businessmen.

Those contradictory attitudes are particularly significant because the business community has mounted a well-orchestrated campaign to convince the public that today's elected politicans and career bureaucrats in Washington are determined to subvert the best intention of the oft-quoted "Founding Fathers."

HERBERT S. RICHEY, newly elected chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, opened the convention with a speech criticizing "burdensome government regulation . . . (and) federal red tape." He was followed a day later by Dr. Richard L. Lesher, the organization's president who also inveighed against "excessive government regulation."

A survey of conference participants, most of them businessmen or executives of local chambers of commerce around the country, found that 78 per cent predictably believed that "our government imposes too many restrictions on personal freedom," while almost 92 per cent said "our government imposes too many restrictions on business."

But when the questioning got down to specifics, the business leaders displayed a marked lack of interest in anyone's freedom except their own. By a margin of almost 2-1, for instance, those surveyed rejected the notion that government regulations requiring motorcycle riders to wear protective helmets represented an infringement of individual freedom.

The country's motorcyclists have complained bitterly that such laws do indeed restrict their liberty. The unwillingness of the businessmen to apply their constitutional principles to that practice undoubtedly is related to the fact that few middle-aged executives are motorcycle riders.

ALMOST 80 PER cent of those polled did not believe that restrictions on personal freedom such as airport weapons searches and building security systems were "overreactions to news accounts of terrorists' acts."

One strongly suspects that they are unperturbed about government intrusions such as airport searches because that form of "meddling" just happens to make frequent air travelers — most of them businessmen — more comfortable about the prospect of reaching their destinations without a hijacking attempt or other untoward incident.

But fewer than 31 per cent of those polled believed minimum wage laws were "needed to protect society as a whole." Is there not a direct relationship between that view and the fact that minimum wage laws can restrict business profits?

Richey talked, in his speech, about the need to identify and support "theologians of freedom." The business community does indeed need someone to espouse a coherent philosophy on its behalf because the survey results suggest that the current rhetoric represents little more than the promotion of selfish interests in the ill-fitting disguise of "constitutional rights."

Blood technicians won't jab in vain with new Vena-Vue dye procedure

AN EASY way to find veins for an injection has been developed by Fred Suzuki, left, and Thomas Davidson of Liquid Crystal Products, Inc.

Hospital patients who cringe at the sight of needles may no longer have to squirm while a nurse pokes around to find a suitable vein for an injection or blood test.

An Arlington Heights firm has developed an easy way to identify blood veins using the same substance found in stylish mood rings.

The product, called Vena-Vue, is available in half of the hospitals in the United States and could be administered as part of the standard service.

It works like this:

A DOCTOR OR nurse places an ice-pack over the patient's arm for a few moments to cool the skin. In that way the paste-like Vena-Vue can more readily detect the heat radiating from the patient's veins.

After the cold pack is removed, a small amount of Vena-Vue is rubbed in a thin layer over the area chosen for the injection.

Within seconds, a spectrum of colors begins to appear over the largest and most accessible veins, changing from red to green to blue and finally, to violet, as the skin temperatures over the veins rise.

The nurse then marks the location of the veins on the skin by applying slight pressure with a plastic stick. She wipes away the paste and administers the injection.

"It gives the technician a more precise idea where the veins are," said Fred Suzuki, president of Liquid Crystal Products, Inc., and a biochemist who developed the product along with physiologist Thomas Davidson.

"The Vena-Vue locates for us the greatest flow of blood — especially if you can't seen the veins," he said.

"WE'VE NEVER given much consideration to the patient's anxiety for being stuck and the nurse having to probe around.

"The patients love it. Psychologically, it gives them reassurance."

Suzuki noted that the substance, a mixture of cholesterol esters and permanent Federal Drug Administration-approved dyes, reveals that the best vein for an injection often is not one which can be seen through the skin.

But the product is most helpful for emergency room patients who need immediate on-target injections; intensive care patients who become dehydrated, making it difficult to find their veins; patients who need intravenous feeding; and persons whose veins are not obvious to the eye.

SCIENTIFIC Products, a division of the American Hospital Supply Corp., which is distributin g Vena Vue, recently estimated that 700 million blood samples are drawn each year in the United States, and in 15 to 20 per cent of the cases the nurse or doctor encounters "some degree of difficulty," Suzuki said.

One application of Vena-Vue costs the patient about 25 cents, he said, and most hospitals which are using it have made it part of the standard service.

Suzuki said Liquid Crystal has acquired patients on Vena-Vue in England, France, Germany, Canada, Japan and the Netherlands as well as in the United States. The company expects to begin marketing in Europe and Japan within 90 days.

UAW decision on AFL-CIO stalled

Top United Auto Workers leaders, seeking to avoid a floor battle, said Monday they will not discuss possible reaffiliation with the AFL-CIO until the final hours of the union meeting in Los Angeles. Douglas A. Fraser, the 60-year-old UAW vice president who will be elected the union's third post-World War II president on Wednesday, said the issue won't come up until Thursday. Meanwhile, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., called on President Carter Monday to honor his campaign commitment to national health insurance and health security so health reform does not become his "missing promise." "What we do not have so far is a commitment of this sort for action on national health insurance," said Kennedy in remarks prepared for a tribute to retiring United Auto Workers union President Leonard Woodcock. Carter will address the same 6,000 delegates to the union's 25th constitutional convention this morning.

Reports show economy better

Two government reports released Monday offered strong evidence that the nation's economy is continuing to make solid improvement. The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production — the output of the country's factories, mines and utilities — increased .8 per cent during April. It was the third consecutive month that industrial production has increased by at least .8 per cent following a .8 per cent decline during the January cold snap. The Fed report was released several hours after the Commerce Dept. said that business inventories jumped .9 per cent in March and sales surged 3.4 per cent. The Commerce report said total business inventories — stocks on shelves and in warehouses ready for sale — increased $2.8 billion during March compared with a revised $2 billion gain in February.

$89 million in U.S. aid to state

The Commerce Dept. Monday announced a state-by-state allocation of nearly $4 billion for new public works projects, and estimated construction on all projects will begin by mid-November. Federal officials have not yet determined how much each state and local state and local government unit will receive, nor have they chosen the exact projects that will be constructed with the money approved last week by President Carter. Municipalities will be informed of their allocations June 3. Officials said the project selection process will continue through Aug. 15, and all construction will be under way by Nov. 15. The allocation includes Illinois, $89,767,000; Indiana, $39,895,000; Iowa, $30,000,000; and Minnesota, $30,272,000.

Gas rationing warning issued

Americans face rationing of gasoline in the 1980s unless they start working on energy efficiency now, presidential adviser James Schlesinger warned Monday. Schlesinger, Treasury Sec. W. Michael Blumenthal and Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary appeared at the first of weeks of hearings scheduled by the House Ways and Means Committee into the tax parts of President Carter's energy program. Although several aspects of the program drew questions, a recurring theme was criticism of the proposed gasoline tax increase and the proposal for a tax on "gas-guzzler" cars getting poor fuel mileage. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said "it is frightening," but his mail tells him the people by and large aren't as worried as congressmen seem to be about energy problems. If the country were in a real crisis, Rostenkowski said, maybe officials should be talking about rationing fuels.

Chamber luncheon Wednesday

"The car of the future — the electric vehicle" will be discussed by C. C. Christianson at the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting Wednesday. Christianson is associate director of energy research at Gould, Inc., Rolling Meadows. Gould has developed electric vehicle propulsion systems. The meeting will start at noon at the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn.

Postal hike to 16c seen by spring of '78

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar said Monday first-class mail probably will rise to 16 cents next spring, and Saturday deliveries may be eliminated after the Christmas crunch.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., told Bailar at a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee hearing, "the Postal Service is a mess and we've got an obligation to do something about it" with some "hard political decisions."

When Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, asked when Americans could expect a new rate hike, Bailar said "I would think probably some time in the second quarter of 1978," adding the cost of a first-class letter would climb from 13 cents to 16 cents, with corresponding increases for other classes.

Bailar said the service was weighing the recommended five-day delivery schedule, to save about $412 million a year, and he expected officials to make an initial decision within a month or two.

Stocks go up, Dow gains 4.16

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bargain hunters, buying among some depressed blue-chip issues, drove prices higher Monday for the second consecutive session of moderately traded New York Stock Exchange issues, despite late selling.

Observers were impressed with the market's strength in the face of the news that most of the nation's major banks, beginning Friday with Citibank of New York, have raised their prime rate a quarter point to 6.5 per cent. There is speculation the rate soon will increase to 6.75 per cent.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 2.80-point winner Friday, rose another 4.16 points to 932.50. It had been ahead nearly seven points at one time. The closely watched average lost 8.40 points overall last week.

German hero made his mark in economy

Louis Rukeyser

NEW YORK — Ludwig Erhard left a strange monument when he died the other day in Bonn. Many might regard it as a cold and unromantic kind of monument, yet it has brought more genuine happiness to more people than most of the poems and songs of this century put together. For Erhard's monument was more unusual: a piece of paper with meaning, a national currency whose value grew.

The West German Deutsche mark, that became so widely recognized as to become a cliche, remains Erhard's legacy — though the former Chancellor had been ailing and out of office long before death caught him at the age of 80.

Heroes often emerge as the leaders of unpopular causes, and Erhard fully qualifies on that score; yet it is ironic that the unpopular cause with which he was identified was the cause of economic freedom. Ironic, first, because this apostle of unfashionable liberty emerged from the ashes of one of the most awesomely totalitarian regimes of human history: the national socialism of Adolf Hitler. And ironic, too, because when he espoused the cause of freedom he found himself condemned by many of those who had conquered the Nazis in the name of that same cause.

IT WAS NOT that the Allies did not always regard Erhard as a good German; he had no Nazi past, and he was chosen by the Americans in 1945 to help restart the German factories and rebuild the shattered economy. Eventually, he became director of economic affairs for the combined American and British occupation zones, presiding over the substitution of the new Deutsche mark for the old and discredited Reich mark. But Erhard had become convinced that there was something more important to be done, something bigger than mere bureaucratic reform. The something was economic freedom.

His British masters were in the midst of deciding that the future task of economics in their own country was not to make the pie bigger but to divide the existing pie more fairly; in the process, over the next three decades, they spoiled the pie. And the U.S. was beginning to shuffle through the same recipes.

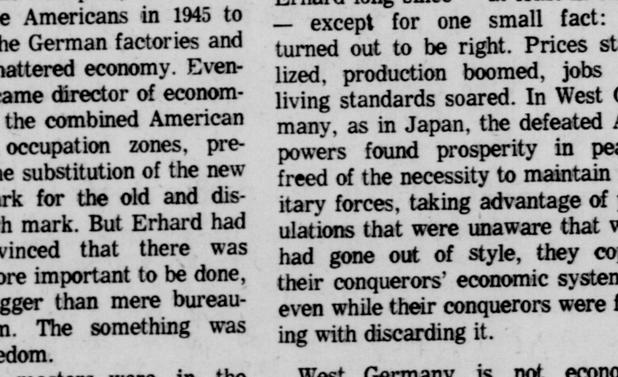

Hence when Erhard, in a Sunday broadcast that stunned both his German colleagues and the military government, announced that he was ending nearly all rationing and price controls, he was denounced as an irresponsible pal of the rich. He was untroubled either by the complaints of the Allied generals or the signs of the left-wing masses saying "Erhard to the Gallows."

They might, indeed, have hanged Erhard long since — at least in effigy — except for one small fact: He turned out to be right. Prices stabilized, production boomed, jobs and living standards soared. In West Germany, as in Japan, the defeated Axis powers found prosperity in peace; freed of the necessity to maintain military forces, taking advantage of populations that were unaware that work had gone out of style, they copied their conquerors' economic system — even while their conquerors were flirting with discarding it.

West Germany is not economic utopia today; its labor costs are racing ahead too quickly, and its long-remarkable control of domestic inflation is imperiled. But it is the dominant power of Europe, by any reckoning, and the Continent's most dramatic — and ironic — postwar success story.

Is your house warming and cooling the neighborhood?

It may be a neighborly gesture, but hardly in the interests of energy conservation, your own pocketbook, or even your local community.

Home conditioning for warmth or coolness has become increasingly costly; it now threatens to skyrocket. Many houses are veritable conduits dispelling fuel into the surrounding atmosphere.

Now is the time to check the conservation capacity of your home. An investment in ceiling and wall insulation, storm windows and doors, caulking, and weather-stripping will repay itself over and over again in reduced costs of energy fuels. A national magazine recently placed average annual savings for a typical Chicago-area home at $234.87. There is also the possibility that Congress will approve tax rebates for owners who insulate their homes.

You can finance these improvements at lower cost at Arlington Federal. Our lending rates are substantially below the standard rates charged for installment credit.

This is an excellent time to upgrade your home energy efficiency. Stop conditioning the outside air. Call our loan counselors today at any of our seven offices. They'll be glad to tell you how easily it can be done.

A MAJOR ELECTRICAL blackout hit south Florida Monday when a switching relay failed at the Florida Power and Light company's nuclear generating plant at Turkey Point. The blackout hit 11,000 square miles for nearly five hours, leaving some 2.5 million people snarled in traffic, stuck in elevators and sweating in closed buildings. Surveys of police and fire officals indicated there were no major injuries or accidents. Newsmap shows areas hit by the failure.

Zambia prepares for Rhodesia fight

Zambia President Kenneth Kaunda Monday said his country is in a state of war with Rhodesia and he called a full military alert in response to warnings from Rhodesia that it may raid black nationalist guerrilla bases in Zambia. In a related development, black nationalist leader Robert Mugabe ruled out direct U.S. involvement in negotiations for majority rule in Rhodesia and told a UN conference in Mozambique peace could come "only through the instrument of war."

Meanwhile, in Washington, President Carter welcomed South Africa's new ambassador to Washington, but warned South Africa faces "very uncertain prospects" if it fails to resolve its racial problems.

Train crash near Rio kills 9

A commuter train packed with workers smashed into a freight train north of Rio de Janeiro in the early morning hours Monday, killing nine persons and injuring more than 100 others. Police said the motorman of the commuter train, fearing survivors would stone him, leaped from the cab and fled. Such attacks have marked previous accidents on the same line, the Central do Brasil.

Col. Carlos Weber, the railway's chief investigator, said the nine-car passenger train taking hundreds of workers to Rio de Janeiro rammed the six-car freight train in the Comendador Soares station at about 5 a.m. There were indications the train's brakes had failed and witnesses said it passed a red warning light shortly before the crash. Spokesmen for the railway and a morgue near the disaster scene, 19 miles north of Rio de Janeiro, said nine persons were killed. Nearby hospitals reported treating at least 132.

Viet hard line 'perils talks'

Diplomatic sources in Bangkok said Monday Vietnam's renewed "hard line" demand for war reparations from the United States could imperil scheduled talks in Paris between the two countries. In sharp weekend attacks on Washington, Hanoi also appeared to be threatening to cut off the trickle of information on missing Americans unless aid is forthcoming. The official Vietnamese Quan Doi Nhan Dan (People's Army) daily, in an editorial carried overseas by official Vietnam News Agency and monitored Monday in Bangkok, linked the issues of diplomatic relations, U.S. aid and the search for the missing. It called the Vietnam war "the most inhuman war in the whole history of U.S. imperialism" and broke down the demand for American money into two parts.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said there are no changes in the plans to resume the Paris talks within the next few weeks. Other official sources indicated the talks may resume in the French capital later this month or in early June — as had been announced earlier.

Oil pipeline called terror target

The Alaska pipeline poses a unique target for saboteurs, and there are people in the state with grievances enough to disrupt it, an Arctic expert told Congress in secret testimony released Monday. "The trans-Alaska pipeline represents a target for political terrorism that is unique in the American experience," said Leonard A. LeSchack, a consultant on Arctic projects for government and oil clients. "Never before could the potential destruction, or merely the threat of such destruction of private property, have such ramifications to the national defense as will soon be possible when the pipeline comes on stream," LeSchack said.

LeSchack testified at secret hearings before the defunct Senate internal security subcommittee a year ago, and his testimony along with that of other witnesses was released Monday. All witnesses called for greater cooperation to guard the piepline.

Gulf Oil faces terrorist threat

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Anti-Communist guerrillas threatened Monday to blow up Gulf Oil's offshore drilling complex in the Angolan enclave of Cabinda with missiles they said they got in exchange for coffee and uncut diamonds.

The guerrillas demanded the company evacuate 200 British and American employes in three days.

"If we do not receive a reply from Gulf, the order will be given to destroy all pumping stations, rigs and installations as well as the docking quays," said a communique released in Lisbon by the Cabinda Enclave Liberation Front.

IN PITTSBURGH, a Gulf spokesman said: "We are aware of the situation in Angola and we have taken the appropriate measures to safeguard our employes and installations there.

"We have got a contingency plan, which for obvious reasons we can't go into any discussion on."

Gulf spokesman Tom Walker said: "There are a number of things that we are prepared to do depending on the situation and those contingency plans have been implemented."

A spokesman for the black guerrilla organization, known by the Portuguese acronym FLEC, said they were opposed to Gulf because it was giving the ~~Mar~~xist regime of the Angolan Popular Liberation Movement $2 million daily in oil royalties to maintain its control over Cabinda.

"Gulf Oil must die within the next month," he said. "If we can stop the royalty payments, the MPLA will fall."

The MPLA took power during the Angolan civil war with help from 1,600 Cuban troops dispatched by Fidel Castro.

THE GUERRILLAS said a week ago that they had forced Cuban soldiers to evacuate a strategic airbase in Cabinda — a Delaware-sized land separated from Angola proper by the Congo River and a sliver of Zairean territory — leaving behind surface-to-air missiles.

They said the Cubans trie to regroup in a second town, but were forced to withdraw, giving FLEC control of the northern two-thirds of the enclave, which has huge reserves of diamonds, offshore petroleum and other minerals.

The FLEC spokesman said the warning to destroy Gulf's offshore complex should be taken seriously because the movement has acquired land-to-land missiles in exchange for coffee and uncut diamonds.

Western intelligence sources credit the FLEC with having the most disciplined force among the three separate guerrilla movements opposed to Angola's ruling Marxists.

All three appear to have stepped up operations since the invasian of southern Zairean by former Katangese gendarmes based in Angola.

Travelers arriving in Lisbon have said these operations have cut all rail traffic and most roads in Angola, but independent confirmation has been impossible to obtain because of the remoteness of the areas.

'Less than two cans of diet pop up cancer risk'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader, leading an attack on saccharin advocates, said Monday a person drinking 1¾ cans of diet pop a day increases his risk of cancer - a disease so pervasive one congressman compared it to "a plague."

Nader joined three scientists and four congressmen at a 90-minute news briefing defending the Canadian tests which showed rats develop bladder cancer when fed large amounts of saccharin.

Nader said the diet soft drink industry — which depends on saccharin — distorted the test results in saying a person would have to drink 800 cans of diet pop a day to duplicate the problems rats developed.

HE SAID A person actually would have to drink only 1.7 to eight cans.

Rep. Andrew Maguire, D-N.J., who organized the briefing, said there is no sense in taking unnecessary risks when cancer is so pervasive.

"We have 215 million people in this country and 60 million of them are going to get cancer," he said. "What we're dealing with is something on the order of a plague."

Dr. Umberto Saffiotti, director of experimental pathology for the National Cancer Institute, said results of animal studies must be taken "very seriously as indications of hazards for people.

"EVERY LITTLE bit (of a carcinogen) counts and adds up to the others," he said.

Dr. Robert Hoover of the National Cancer Institute's bureau of epidemiology, criticized tests showing diabetics — who consume a lot of saccharin — do not have abnormally high rates of bladder cancer.

He said the tests were defective because few people were studied and all were adults. There also is evidence diabetics smoke less than other people and that factor was not taken into account, he said.

To duplicate the Canadian saccharin studies on the human level would require a life-time study of 15 million persons, Hoover said.

The congressmen fear the debate over saccharin will result in a weakening of the Delaney Amendment, wich prohibits any amount of a cancer causing substance in food.

now were memories of the great heavyweights of the past, she said.

EVANGELISTA MADE it through another round, not looking like a heavyweight contender but holding his own in his million-to-one shot.

"I'm surprised. He's better than I thought he might be, the opponent," Zale observed softly. "For the lack of experience he's done pretty good."

In the end, of course, Evangelista went down by a decision to Ali. But it was nothing like Zale remembers it. He had never clowned through rounds or carried an opponent when he didn't have to. When he was in his prime, his only problem was that he tended to "overtrain" and leave the best of himself in the gym.

As the fight ended, Zale reflected on that past again. Does he ever get the urge to get back into the ring?

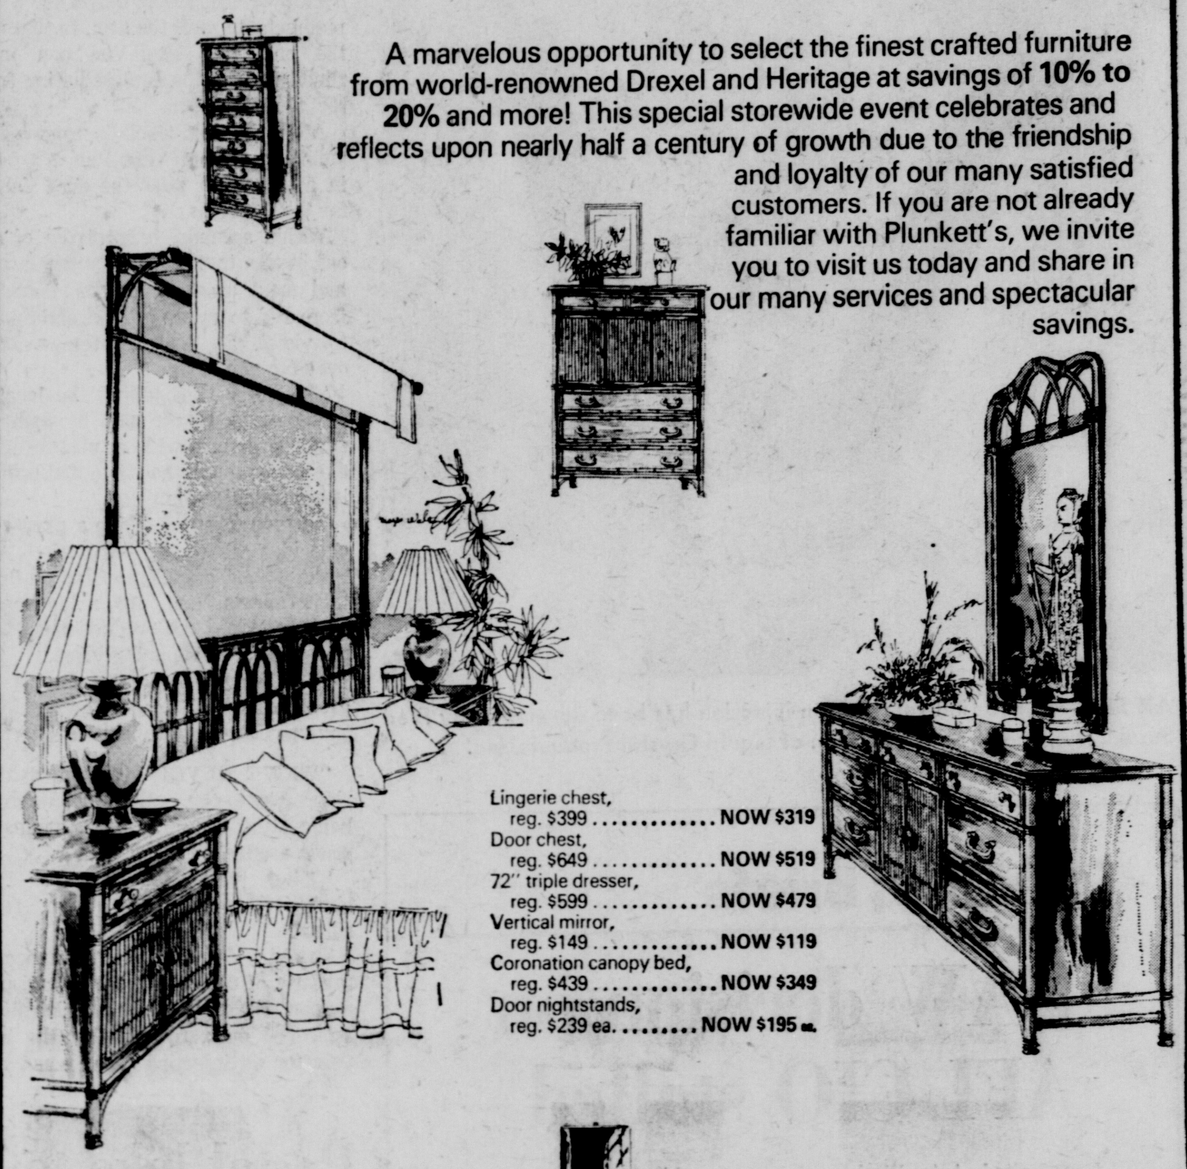

Zale smiled. There was no hesitation in his voice. As he turned his gray head, the hearing aid was visible behind his ear.

"That feeling never dies," he said in a gruff voice. "Time flies too fast, you know."

A MAJOR ELECTRICAL blackout hit south Florida Monday when a switching relay failed at the Florida Power and Light company's nuclear generating plant at Turkey Point. The blackout hit 11,000 square miles for nearly five hours, leaving some 2.5 million people snarled in traffic, stuck in elevators and sweating in closed buildings. Surveys of police and fire officals indicated there were no major injuries or accidents. Newsmap shows areas hit by the failure.

Zambia prepares for Rhodesia fight

Zambia President Kenneth Kaunda Monday said his country is in a state of war with Rhodesia and he called a full military alert in response to warnings from Rhodesia that it may raid black nationalist guerrilla bases in Zambia. In a related development, black nationalist leader Robert Mugabe ruled out direct U.S. involvement in negotiations for majority rule in Rhodesia and told a UN conference in Mozambique peace could come "only through the instrument of war."

Meanwhile, in Washington, President Carter welcomed South Africa's new ambassador to Washington, but warned South Africa faces "very uncertain prospects" if it fails to resolve its racial problems.

Train crash near Rio kills 9

A commuter train packed with workers smashed into a freight train north of Rio de Janeiro in the early morning hours Monday, killing nine persons and injuring more than 100 others. Police said the motorman of the commuter train, fearing survivors would stone him, leaped from the cab and fled. Such attacks have marked previous accidents on the same line, the Central do Brasil.

Col. Carlos Weber, the railway's chief investigator, said the nine-car passenger train taking hundreds of workers to Rio de Janeiro rammed the six-car freight train in the Comendador Soares station at about 5 a.m. There were indications the train's brakes had failed and witnesses said it passed a red warning light shortly before the crash. Spokesmen for the railway and a morgue near the disaster scene, 19 miles north of Rio de Janeiro, said nine persons were killed. Nearby hospitals reported treating at least 132.

Viet hard line 'perils talks'

Diplomatic sources in Bangkok said Monday Vietnam's renewed "hard line" demand for war reparations from the United States could imperil scheduled talks in Paris between the two countries. In sharp weekend attacks on Washington, Hanoi also appeared to be threatening to cut off the trickle of information on missing Americans unless aid is forthcoming. The official Vietnamese Quan Doi Nhan Dan (People's Army) daily, in an editorial carried overseas by official Vietnam News Agency and monitored Monday in Bangkok, linked the issues of diplomatic relations, U.S. aid and the search for the missing. It called the Vietnam war "the most inhuman war in the whole history of U.S. imperialism" and broke down the demand for American money into two parts.

In Washington, a State Department spokesman said there are no changes in the plans to resume the Paris talks within the next few weeks. Other official sources indicated the talks may resume in the French capital later this month or in early June — as had been announced earlier.

Oil pipeline called terror target

The Alaska pipeline poses a unique target for saboteurs, and there are people in the state with grievances enough to disrupt it, an Arctic expert told Congress in secret testimony released Monday. "The trans-Alaska pipeline represents a target for political terrorism that is unique in the American experience," said Leonard A. LeSchack, a consultant on Arctic projects for government and oil clients. "Never before could the potential destruction, or merely the threat of such destruction of private property, have such ramifications to the national defense as will soon be possible when the pipeline comes on stream," LeSchack said.

LeSchack testified at secret hearings before the defunct Senate internal security subcommittee a year ago, and his testimony along with that of other witnesses was released Monday. All witnesses called for greater cooperation to guard the piepline.

Gulf Oil faces terrorist threat

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Anti-Communist guerrillas threatened Monday to blow up Gulf Oil's offshore drilling complex in the Angolan enclave of Cabinda with missiles they said they got in exchange for coffee and uncut diamonds.

The guerrillas demanded the company evacuate 200 British and American employes in three days.

"If we do not receive a reply from Gulf, the order will be given to destroy all pumping stations, rigs and installations as well as the docking quays," said a communique released in Lisbon by the Cabinda Enclave Liberation Front.

IN PITTSBURGH, a Gulf spokesman said: "We are aware of the situation in Angola and we have taken the appropriate measures to safeguard our employes and installations there.

"We have got a contingency plan, which for obvious reasons we can't go into any discussion on."

Gulf spokesman Tom Walker said: "There are a number of things that we are prepared to do depending on the situation and those contingency plans have been implemented."

A spokesman for the black guerrilla organization, known by the Portuguese acronym FLEC, said they were opposed to Gulf because it was giving the Marxist regime of the Angolan Popular Liberation Movement $2 million daily in oil royalties to maintain its control over Cabinda.

"Gulf Oil must die within the next month," he said. "If we can stop the royalty payments, the MPLA will fall."

The MPLA took power during the Angolan civil war with help from 1,600 Cuban troops dispatched by Fidel Castro.

THE GUERRILLAS said a week ago that they had forced Cuban soldiers to evacuate a strategic airbase in Cabinda — a Delaware-sized land separated from Angola proper by the Congo River and a sliver of Zairean territory — leaving behind surface-to-air missiles.

They said the Cubans trie to regroup in a second town, but were forced to withdraw, giving FLEC control of the northern two-thirds of the enclave, which has huge reserves of diamonds, offshore petroleum and other minerals.

Basic blues

Today's jeans wearers are forsaking the frills

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

Levi Strauss wasn't around to see his baggy miner's pants turned into high-fashion items, but the California pioneer would undoubtedly be stunned at the designer names, sexy European styling and halter top jumpsuits that have invaded his world of sturdy denim jeans.

Ditto of California ads feature a slim young girl in tight jeans with a "you can feel the fit" logo. New York designer Calvin Klein offers a line of dungarees with his signature and '77 on the backside. Price: $42.

But according to jeans manufacturers and salesmen, the days of expensive French versions and fancy side zippers are numbered. It's back to the basics, and Strauss would be pleased to learn that today's hottest sellers bear a striking resemblance to their heavy-weight, no-nonsense ancestors.

"THERE'S A DEFINITE trend back to a basic Western look," said a spokesman from Wrangler Sportswear. "The fashion jeans are still doing well, but our biggest seller now is the basic men's jeans with a tapered waist to fit women."

Adds Ken Wright of Cheap Jeans, "The schmaltzy look is on its way out . . . women have always had a pair or two of heavy-weight (14-ounce) denims, and they wear them for years until they fall apart. Now they're just buying more of them."

According to Jim Giannini, a representative for Faded Glory jeans, women buyers are passing up extra zippers, rhinestone studs and 10 pockets in favor of a clean, no-frills look. Giannini was careful to avoid "unisex" in his description of the company's most popular styles, but he did emphasize that "the majority appeal to both men and women — they're definitely getting closer together."

Sales at The County Seat, a Woodfield shop specializing in Levis, seem to bear him out. Manager Bill Jones reports the store's best sellers are the original, copper-riveted denims that Strauss made famous more than 150 years ago.

PLAIN, STRAIGHT-LEG jeans, whether tucked into boots or rolled up at the ankles a la 1950s, are hot items at Jeans and Jeans in Rolling Meadows, too. And baggy canvas painter's pants, a current rage with high school and college students, are selling well there and at several other area stores as well.

Local salesmen say the "new" look appeals primarily to younger women in their teens or twenties. The softer, more stylish jeans still are popular with older customers, says the manager of Just Pants in Arlington Heights, and the fashion look is stronger downtown than in the more casual suburbs.

Even aficionados of the skin-tight styles are coming over to basic denims, says Jones at The County Seat. The pared down, shrink-to-fit men's jeans are selling well to young girls, he says, because they can achieve their own tight European fit by "lying in a bathtub of hot water and wriggling their way out of them."

What's behind the popularity of the straight-from-the farm image?

Prices, for starters. The fancy stitching and extra zippers meant higher price tags, and as one manufacturer's representative put it, "Most women just aren't willing to pay $25 for a pair of blue jeans these days."

BUT WHILE THE elimination of frills has meant a corresponding drop in prices in many cases, blue jeans are still hovering in the $14-$25 range, thanks to a denim shortage and the almost universal practice of prewashing (softening and slightly bleaching jeans to give a "used" look at an added charge of $1-$2 per pair.)

Giannini at Faded Glory theorizes that the trend toward the basic jeans is, in part, a reaction to the fact that "the industry was trying to make jeans into something they weren't."

"Sure, jeans are widely accepted today, but we aren't selling to as many older women, 35 and up," he said. "Jeans have their place, and they always will . . . but you don't see many people trying to get into a high-fashion restaurant in dressed-up jeans anymore."

Non-matching sets appropriate for work, play

Harry Juster

Look smart

Ever since non-matching suits became popular, we have seen a variety of concepts based on this fashion.

One that is tastefully done is Sal Cesarani's version, consisting of a cotton-silk glen plaid coat and vest combined with dupioni silk solid-shade trousers. For added style, the shapely jacket is given a coin pocket and the vest is styled with lapels. A solid-color shirt and tie complete the outfit.

Suits of this type are dressy enough to fit into the business scene and sufficiently nonchalant looking for casual wear.

READERS ASK:

Dear Mr. Juster: I need a new hot weather suit and have been thinking of getting a tan gabardine. However, my wife is trying to talk me out of it, saying gabardine is not good for warm weather. How about this? — D. J.

Your wive has a point if you go to one of the tightly woven, heavy-weight gabardines. However, the medium weights in polyester blends are okay for summer wear, except when it's blistering hot. In that kind of weather, nothing feels cools.

For the leaflet, "Dress Pointers," send 10 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Harry Juster, in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Dear Mr. Juster: My pants fit perfectly at the waist, but no matter how hard I try to keep my shirt looking neat, in no time it fluffs out at the waist line. Is there a way to tuck it in so it will fit snugly and stay that way? — E. L.

Try the good old army method. Before zipping up the pants, tightly fold over the surplus material on each side of the shirt from the waist down. Also, if you're wearing full-cut shirts, try shifting to the trimmer-fitting styles.

Dear Mr. Juster: Last fall, my husband bought a navy blazer with gold buttons. For summer, wouldn't it look better with white buttons? C. N. F.

White buttons or gold or silver — any of these are good whatever the time of the year. My suggestion is not to bother changing them.

C. H., Please note — When troubled with excessive under-arm perspiration, have arm shields sewn in your jackets. They help prevent staining the lining or your shirt.

TRAVEL TIP — When placing a suit on a hanger in your garment bag, leave the coat unbuttoned. There will be fewer wrinkles if one side of the front is carefully lapped over the other.

This year's menswear 'returning to nature'

by JOHN MOODY

Listen to Italian designer Nino Cerruti talk about what's "in" in men's clothing this year, and you might mistakenly think he is talking about a shoe.

"Soft, natural, comfortable and smart," is what he said. A return to nature is coming in the fashion world.

"You see, for too long, men have been sure that to look fashionable they must wear clothes that are uncomfortable but have lines that look good," he said during a recent trip to New York.

"That's not the way it is anymore. Men are finally demanding, and we are making, clothes that look good, but also feel soft, because they are soft."

THE SPRING line of Cerruti suits is a perfect example of the "natural" evolution.

"We'll be using materials from nature — cottons, linens, not the manmades," he said.

"The combed and finished fabrics also are important. Softness is not something that is un-masculine. Why can't men enjoy the softness in clothes that women enjoy? Comfort has no gender."

The Cerruti line, however, is definitely masculine looking.

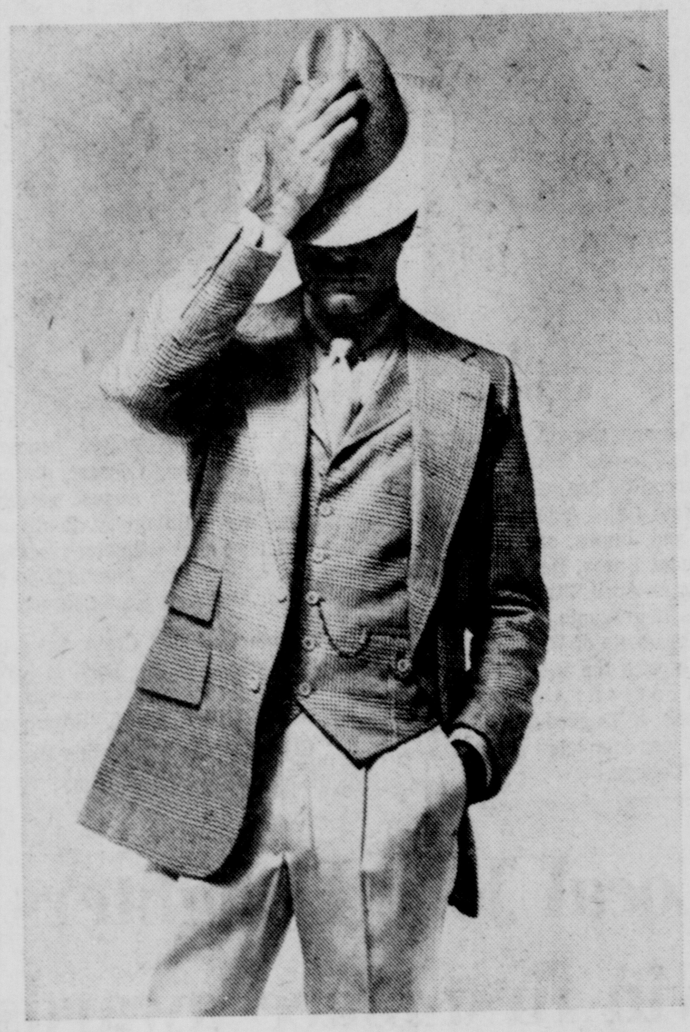

"Men are finally becoming aware of the fact they can wear a good-looking suit without a tie to any occasion. There is no law against not having a tie. I think that realization triggered some other rebellion against rules that have been around too long."

ONE, FOR instance, is the color coordination-contrasting game.

"Colors can be worn now that wouldn't ever have been matched a few years ago," Cerruti said.

"The rule of thumb now is that you're well dressed if you feel well dressed In the 60s, you had people who thought they were free because they wore clashing outfits of paisley shirts, striped pants and flowered vests. That's silly. But so is fearing to wear something that you haven't seen on somtone else first."

Textiles new purse trend

by JEANNE LESEM

Fabric is the strongest trend in women's purse fashions for summer 1977.

Manufacturers say it's not just the familiar canvas and duck totes, although they are more popular than ever.

Rising prices for leather and plastics are boosting the popularity of other textiles, ranging from Belgian linen to Burlap, jute, linen-weave nylon and broadcloth prints in patchwork and stripe patterns.

"Macrame is also very big." says Al Kossoff, vice president for sales of Charisma, a manufacturer who until a year ago was predominantly a polyurethane house.

BECAUSE TEXTILES are less durable than leather or plastics, some manufacturers use them under "glass," their term for clear plastic.

Kossoff is among those who expect the cloth bag trend to carry over into dark tones for fall.

Two styles, the attache, or briefcase, and the organizer, reflect the impact of more women in the work force.

The first is large enough to hold a legal size pad or about 9 by 13 or 14 inches. The second tends to be multi-pocketed, with snap or zipper fasteners and flaps that either drop down like a desk top or open sideways like a book to reveal pockets for cards and other necessities.

THE FABRICS trend even extends to such predominantly leather houses as Susan Gail, whose sales manager reports the addition of one group each in fabric and straw for the cruise and spring-summer markets this year. Other trends, said Sandy Smul, include clutches that are "very strong for evening wear."

At Calderon Belts and Bags, Inc., licensees for Anne Klein handbags and belts, marketing and merchandising director Ernest Dornbush said: "Our one strong area is linen-weave nylon with leather trim."

One manufacturer who makes only canvas bags said the current trend evolved from beach bags that used to be sold in notions departments. They were supplanted by totes, and the tote look now is often translated into regular purses.

LIONEL SHARGEL, national sales manager for the handbag division of Natco Products Corp., said the trend to canvas year round began this past fall at the retail level.

"It gives an alternative to leather that doesn't cost a great deal of money. It allows you to change the color and style of your handbag without a great investment.

"Canvas is not a young class. It has very broad appeal, from junior customers to matrons," he said.

He added that neutrals such as sand, natural and navy remain the best sellers, but he also sees strong indications of bright red and yellow for summer.

(United Press International)

Look your best in summer

All hair benefits from brushing, but brushes should vary according to the hair. The thicker the hair, the stiffer the bristles should be. Soft bristles belong to soft, fine hair.

Even if you're not athletic, a warm-up jacket and pull-on pants in summer brights are perfect weekend clothes for any activity.

To brighten neutrals this season, count on red in scarves, shoes, even a lipstick or a handbag.

A visor cap, with or without a sunglass visor, is perfect to camouflage hair that needs washing or that won't stand up to the humidity. Choose one with an elastic back to keep it all in.

SOMETHING'S ALWAYS COOKIN' DOWN AT DUNKIN' DONUTS

Lawrence E. Lamb

The doctor says

Pain with exercise marks heart disease

For the past six or eight months, after eating a substantial meal I have been bothered with rather sharp pains in my chest, but only if I exercise too much. Even walking (unless real slow) causes the pain. By restraining all activity, the pain subsides in 10 or 15 minutes. The symptoms appear about an hour after eating.

When my stomach is empty I never have this pain but I get tired much quicker than formerly. Can you tell me why I have this pain and what remedy could cure it?

I am 78 years old, 5 feet 7 and weigh 165 pounds. During my working years my weight usually averaged about 180. For five or six years I have been taking medicine for high blood pressure. For the last several years, though, my pressure is only 140 or 150 over 50 or 60. I have nitroglycerin pills, but have never taken any because I just relax and am soon okay again. Up to now I have never been a patient in any hospital nor have I ever had an operation.

You probably have angina pectoris, chest pain from your heart. With your past history of high blood pressure and your age it is logical to assume that you have fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries to your heart, limiting the blood flow to your heart muscle. Apparently your doctors thought you had this before or they would not have given you nitroglycerin tablets.

Chest pain with exertion is one sign of heart disease. When that is the cause the pain usually goes away with rest. In the days when downtown shopping was still the mode of life, people with this problem would often stop in front of a store window and gaze at the merchandise until the pain went away.

It takes work to digest a meal. The increased work of digestion makes it easier to bring on heart pain with exertion. This applies only to people with heart disease, not healthy people. With heart disease patients, it is wise to avoid exertion for some time after the meal is over. To give you more information on heart pain I am sending you The Health Letter 2-10, Heart Attack, Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Some foods seem to increase the tendency of the blood to clot or sludge and this may make matters worse. These are chiefly the fatty foods. You can check this and see if you are more likely to have this effect after a meal that contains more fat.

One of the most helpful things you can do for yourself is to lose weight. Since you are not as active now as you once were it is likely that you have had a change in body composition — to more fat and less muscle. The thinner you are, short of starvation or malnutrition, the less load you will have on your heart and the better you will do. You also should be on a diet restricting fat, particularly saturated fat, and cholesterol. Smaller, more frequent meals may work better for you, too, but you will need to be thin.

Sealing bathroom pipes keeps out clover mites

Dear Dorothy: Last fall there were some tiny bugs in the basement but they disappeared when I checked a few days later. But now I find them in the upstairs bathrooms. I don't like to use sprays, but I will if it's necessary. Any ideas? Suggestions? — J. C. Jaeger

Sounds like clover mites. They come into homes in the fall, live in the walls and emerge in the spring. One way to keep them and other bugs out of bathrooms is to seal every pipe that comes into the room. We've long been partial to the soft, malleable weatherstripping for all the pipes in our home. If it isn't a large infestation, you can vacuum and get rid of most of them. If they still persist, you will have to use one of the household sprays containing malathion. Years ago I heard that if there were no debris, grass or dead leaves around a foundation, one wouldn't have to worry about clover mites because they won't cross bare ground.

Public often misinformed

Health care threatened: M.D.

by ELEANOR RIVES

The free and voluntary system that has produced a high level of health care in this country is today threatened by agencies, attitudes and forces that frustrate and diminish the effectiveness of patient care, according to Richard T. F. Schmidt, M. D., who was inaugurated as 28th president of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) at the annual clinical meeting last week at the Conrad Hilton Hotel.

"It is ironic that during this time (the past 15 years) when medical science has advanced at the most accelerated rate in history, the benefit of this science is more taken for granted than at any time in the past," he said.

THE COMBINATION OF a rapidly spiraling technology and instant mass communication via the electronic media has produced a revolution of rising expectations in our society, a reaction he calls the "societal" effect.

"Our problems arise from the public's perception of health," said Dr. Schmidt. "There's a more informed awareness of health, but the patient gets the problem all out of focus. I'm not criticizing the trend — it's real and it's valuable — but it gets out of focus. An aroused, interested, informed and often misinformed public has an immediate and potent effect not only on national trends but on everyday actions."

He cited the societal effect of disclosure of the risks of birth control pills or estrogen therapy for post-menopausal women. A patient may read an article or hear something on TV and become panicky. She doesn't recognize how very low the risks are. She is far less concerned about auto accidents, where the odds are so much greater against her.

"TAKE A WOMAN IN her 40s with unusual bleeding," said the physician. "The risk is much greater than the risk of taking a hormone. She opens herself to a higher risk because of fear."

He pointed out that 15 or 20 years ago, patients did not view the safety of a drug in terms of the number of times in 100,000 that a given serious side effect might occur. But today instant mass communication leads large numbers of persons to think in terms of mass effect, rather than in terms of their own individual benefits and risks.

"Hardly a day passes that we do not see or hear in the mass media some aspect of health care either plainly misrepresented or presented in such limited perspective as to be grossly misleading," he said.

HE SUGGESTED THAT although the welfare of the individual continues to be of deepest concern, the physician must add another dimension to his job of research, education and patient care. He must take into account an awareness of societal effect. He must produce reasonable answers to reasonable questions, and take part in active public education, through the media, to bring aout informed public awareness.

According to Dr. Schmidt, ACOG has identified this form of public education as a major objective. "If the full truth were known about our response to the problems relating to the distribution of health care, the quality of care, the cost of care and the competence of physicians, our image would be enhanced, rather than diminished," he said.

The doctor says

Pain with exercise marks heart disease

For the past six or eight months, after eating a substantial meal I have been bothered with rather sharp pains in my chest, but only if I exercise too much. Even walking (unless real slow) causes the pain. By restraining all activity, the pain subsides in 10 or 15 minutes. The symptoms appear about an hour after eating.

When my stomach is empty I never have this pain but I get tired much quicker than formerly. Can you tell me why I have this pain and what remedy could cure it?

I am 78 years old, 5 feet 7 and weigh 165 pounds. During my working years my weight usually averaged about 180. For five or six years I have been taking medicine for high blood pressure. For the last several years, though, my pressure is only 140 or 150 over 50 or 60. I have nitroglycerin pills, but have never taken any because I just relax and am soon okay again. Up to now I have never been a patient in any hospital nor have I ever had an operation.

You probably have angina pectoris, chest pain from your heart. With your past history of high blood pressure and your age it is logical to assume that you have fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries to your heart, limiting the blood flow to your heart muscle. Lee Phillip is accustomed to change. In the 25 years, that her noon show has been airing on WBBM-TV, Channel 2, she has made many changes to better suit her audience.

The woman who has earned the distinction of being one of television's most popular female veterans won't mind making more changes that will result in revamping her show this fall.

"I am delighted with the changes we have planned. We are always trying to update things to make the show more interesting. The program is an evolution in itself. The changes in the show are only in line with the changes that are taking place at the station, anyway," Ms. Phillip said.

The thrust of the half hour talkshow, will turn toward hard news. The opening minutes of the broadcast will continue to be devoted to a report of the news which will be flexible enough to expand from its current five minutes to as much as 10 minutes depending on the newsworthyness of events.

MS. PHILLIP will attempt to coordinate her portion of the show with the news events.

"For instance, if there is an airplane crash, we will try to prepare something on air safety with a guest who works in that field, if we can, to help people put what happened into a better perspective. We will be changing the program schedule and line up of guests from day to day, if need be," Ms. Phillip said.

The show hostess also plans to do indepth series topics including withdrawal from birth control pills and cigarets. She will conduct investigative reports on things such as insurance and will conduct more interviews from remote locations through use of the minicam.

"We have been doing more of this kind of programming as we have been going along, but we will have more of an emphasis on it now. People are becoming more aware of what's going on around them and need to be informed in these hard news areas," she said.

Ms. Phillip however, periodically will include theatrical, fashion and household oriented guests on her program as have characterized many of her past shows. It's just that there will be more of a probing, serious news twist to the show in the flavor of WBBM's other news programming.

An interesting change will be the assignment of a permanent news anchorman for the opening newscast to "The Lee Phillip Show." The anchorman will work closely with Ms. Phillip during the remainder of the show to make reports related to the day's news.

IT IS REPORTED that the permanent anchorman will be selected from the few station reporters who have been trading news chores on Ms. Phillip's show during the past year. Those rotating reporters include weekend news anchorman Harry Porterfield, fact finder reporter Susan Anderson, Kathryn Kiefer and Al Dale.

It is not an attempt to have someone out of the blue suddenly sharing Lee Phillip's longtime solo spotlight. It is just another way that new executive producer Bob Smith (who produced NBC's "Sorting It Out" show before it was cancelled) and producer Pam Whitfield plan to pick up the pace of the show.

As already has been the practice in the last few months, station reporters including film critic Gene Siskel and police and crime syndicate specialist John Drummond will appear on Ms. Phillip's program regularly to lend a hand with interviews related to their special areas.

The program's set will be redesigned from its living room setting to a contemporary, "newsy" atmosphere. There usually will be more than one guest and there will continue to be special half hour segments following the show on occasion when Ms. Phillip and her crew want to delve into a special topic.

The changes are being prompted by the almighty force in television ratings. "The Lee Phillip Show" is trailing the noontime "Newscenter Five" broadcast featuring Jorie Lueloff which generally draws about 21 per cent of the audience compared with Ms. Phillip's 13 per cent. But, Lee Phillip draws more viewers between the ages of 18 and 49, the prime concerns of advertisers especially during the profitable daytime programming.

Ms. Phillip summarizes the changes as an attempt to provide more of a community service that will result in a real contrast to the five-shows-a-day in 13 hours that she did when she first started in the business. Then it was mostly fashions, cooking, weather and commercials. Now, it will be mostly news.

WE WANT to make better use of the talent and expertise we have in our station on Lee's show. She has a very dedicated audience, but the emphasis and pace of the show hasn't kept up with its leading lady," said Jamie Bennett, director broadcasting for WBBM-TV.

That is the one constant of the show — the one element that will not change and that is Lee Phillip herself.

There is no question that she will fair the changes and that her show, already a Channel 2 tradition, will be better for it.

TV NOTES:

So far, Channel 2 is making nice head way with their "new" 10 p.m. news. The expensive promotion and changes that have been launched may very well pay off when the very important May ratings are compiled at the end of the month. A. C. Neilsen reports for the first half of the May period that Channel 7, WLS-TV, continues to rank number one at 10 p.m. with an average 29 per cent of the viewers. Channel 2 has been attracting an average 27 per cent of the viewers with its numbers moving steadily upward. For the four weeks ending May 6, Neilsen figures showed Channel 2's 10 p.m. newscast to be maintaining its audience throughout the half hour while Channel 7 has been losing viewers during its broadcast. During that four-week period, Channel 2 began its newscast on an average with a 16 rating that it maintained through 10:30 p.m. Channel 7 initially had a 19 rating at 10 p.m. that depreciated during the half hour to a 17.

- Channel 2's pilot for the night is "McLaren's Riders," about two plainclothed motorcycle cops at 7 p.m.
- NBC offers a two-hour sneak preview of the new fall show "Man From Atlantis," starring Patrick Duffy, at 7 p.m. on Channel 5.
- The second episode of the original "Rich Man, Poor Man" airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 7 against Elvis Presley's movie "Kissin' Cousins" on Channel 9.
- Channel 11 hosts a National Geographic Special on "Britain: Heritage of the Sea" at 8 p.m.

Redford lets animals star in NBC wildlife special

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — It sounds like something out of a movie — the handsome Robert Redford-style hero building his home in the wilderness, sleeping on the ground and watching the animals peacefully pursue their ways.

But the scene was real, and so was Redford, and it was this experience that led the actor into what has become a major interest — conservation.

And that has led him to narrate a fascinating hour-long wildlife special, "The Predators," to be shown by NBC Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 5.

"I used to hunt — I was an avid hunter and fisherman," Redford said.

"Then in 1962 I was building our home in the mountains. We were 40 miles from anywhere, sleeping in sleeping bags. I saw a lot of animals and I watched deer feed, and other animals pursue their course in nature."

That made a difference and so did having children, which fostered "a different emotional attitude."

"I lost interest in hunting for sport," he said, although he is not opposed to all hunting as are some conservationists.

BUT WHAT MAKES "The Predators" special enough to attract a superstar of Redford's stature? The program was filmed during a period of three-and-a-half years in 25 states by a trio of unknowns — producer Marty Stouffer and his brother, Mark, with the aid of Marty's wife, Brenda.

Redford, in jeans and boots, looking more relaxed and less intense than on the screen, said that he had been following Stouffer's work for some years, impressed with its quality and hoping they could work together professionally.

The key was the underlying theme — that if you disturb the cycles of nature you are asking for trouble that your technology likely cannot solve. Man each year destroys more predators, endangering even those species that will do him little harm.

"Mayve it's time we stop," Redford said. "Otherwise we might mess up in 25 years what it took nature a million years of well-proven experience to create."

REDFORD AND the Stouffers are trying to present the predators as they are — not as portrayed in man's mythology. They and their prey neither are good nor bad — each exists because of the other.

When man kills off predators, more often than not their prey multiplies until man must step in and himself become the predator.

The predators the Stouffers filmed ranged from the tiny shrew that weighs one-fourteenth of an ounce to the Alaskan brown bear — even though at least half the bear's diet is vegetable rather than animal.

But society tends to think in stereotypes, with the predators the bad guys and their prey the good guys. As Redford and the Stouffers pointed out, it's easy to get votes for the Easter bunny, but in a Disney film the predator comes on the scene with bad guy music.

The Stouffers grew up in Fort Smith, Ark., with a series of pets ranging from a poodle to a beaver named Stanley. The family also loved to take home movies. Put the two together, and you have a career. They have the patience of the true animal watcher, ready to sit in a spot for hours on end, week after week, in order to train their cameras on a particular animal or bird in a singular situation.

It's this quality that attracted Redford, he said, plus what he considers the really major message of presenting predators in their true light.

"A PREDATOR is an animal who has to kill to eat," Marty says in defining his subject. "That goes from the smallest predators, which are insects, to the largest, the blue whale. We confined our film to terrestrial mammals, mainly from North America and primarily from the United States."

Mark Stouffer pointed out that "predators are what frighten man most and what are most misunderstood."

"The stereotype is that the animal that kills is bad, the animal that gets killed is good," Mark said. "But really they live in mutual dependency, the predator and prey."

In looking at the predator, one point is underscored — in nature the hunter does not always land his prey. More often than not, it gets away.

AT THE END of "The Predators," as Redford is winding up the narration, a predator does what comes naturally — picks off a less than fit prey animal for food.

ROBERT REDFORD narrates "The Predators" Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 5 which examines the balance between predators and prey in the North American wilderness.

The Stouffers had to convince Redford that, if their film were successful, by that time the audience could watch a predator act as nature intended without flinching.

Does Redford plan to do more such telefilms? "No," he said "If I spread myself too thin I get labeled as a guy who does all that nature stuff, the guy who doesn't want to down any trees."

Lee Phillip Show puts stress on news

Lee Phillip is accustomed to change. In the 25 years, that her noon show has been airing on WBBM-TV, Channel 2, she has made many changes to better suit her audience.

The woman who has earned the distinction of being one of television's most popular female veterans won't mind making more changes that will result in revamping her show this fall.

"I am delighted with the changes we have planned. We are always trying to update things to make the show more interesting. The program is an evolution in itself. The changes in the show are only in line with the changes that are taking place at the station, anyway," Ms. Phillip said.

The thrust of the half hour talkshow, will turn toward hard news. The opening minutes of the broadcast will continue to be devoted to a report of the news which will be flexible enough to expand from its current five minutes to as much as 10 minutes depending on the newsworthyness of events.

Ms. Phillip however, periodically will include theatrical, fashion and household oriented guests on her program as have characterized many of her past shows. It's just that there will be more of a probing, serious news twist to the show in the flavor of WBBM's other news programming.

An interesting change will be the assignment of a permanent news anchorman for the opening newscast to "The Lee Phillip Show." The anchorman will work closely with Ms. Phillip during the remainder of the show to make reports related to the day's news.

IT IS REPORTED that the permanent anchorman will be selected from the few station reporters who have been trading news chores on Ms. Phillip's show during the past year. TV NOTES:

So far, Channel 2 is making nice head way with their "new" 10 p.m. news. The expensive promotion and changes that have been launched may very well pay off when the very important May ratings are compiled at the end of the month. A. C. Neilsen reports for the first half of the May period that Channel 7, WLS-TV, continues to rank number one at 10 p.m. with an average 29 per cent of the viewers. Channel 2 has been attracting an average 27 per cent of the viewers with its numbers moving steadily upward. For the four weeks ending May 6, Neilsen figures showed Channel 2's 10 p.m. newscast to be maintaining its audience throughout the half hour while Channel 7 has been losing viewers during its broadcast. During that four-week period, Channel 2 began its newscast on an average with a 16 rating that it maintained through 10:30 p.m. Channel 7 initially had a 19 rating at 10 p.m. that depreciated during the half hour to a 17.

- Channel 2's pilot for the night is "McLaren's Riders," about two plainclothed motorcycle cops at 7 p.m.
- NBC offers a two-hour sneak preview of the new fall show "Man From Atlantis," starring Patrick Duffy, at 7 p.m. on Channel 5.
- The second episode of the original "Rich Man, Poor Man" airs at 8 p.m. on Channel 7 against Elvis Presley's movie "Kissin' Cousins" on Channel 9.
- Channel 11 hosts a National Geographic Special on "Britain: Heritage of the Sea" at 8 p.m.

Redford lets animals star in NBC wildlife special

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — It sounds like something out of a movie — the handsome Robert Redford-style hero building his home in the wilderness, sleeping on the ground and watching the animals peacefully pursue their ways.

But the scene was real, and so was Redford, and it was this experience that led the actor into what has become a major interest — conservation.

And that has led him to narrate a fascinating hour-long wildlife special, "The Predators," to be shown by NBC Thursday at 7 p.m. on Channel 5.

"I used to hunt — I was an avid hunter and fisherman," Redford said.

"Then in 1962 I was building our home in the mountains. We were 40 miles from anywhere, sleeping in sleeping bags. I saw a lot of animals and I watched deer feed, and other animals pursue their course in nature."

That made a difference and so did having children, which fostered "a different emotional attitude."

B.J. didn't forget about being a kid

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It's difficult for adults to conceive programming for children because somewhere in the process of growing older and wiser, grown-ups lose that rose-colored, creative whimsy of youth.

They forget that laughter and learning can be compatible and that life's greatest complexities can be simplified in the character of a puppet.

But, some adults don't forget. Bill Jackson never did.

There isn't a day that goes by that he doesn't think about how the world looks through a child's eyes because of his brainchild, "B. J.'s Gigglesnort Hotel," seen at 9 a.m. Sundays on WLS-TV, Channel 7.

IT CLAIMS TO be the most popular locally produced children's show. February and March Neilsen figures show the program with an average 9 rating and 49 per cent of the audience compared to NBC's "Bubblegum Digest" which received an average rating of 4 for the same period and attracted 9 per cent of the area audience.

WGN's "Ray Rainer Show" averaged a 6 rating and a 55 per cent share of the audience and "Bozo's Circus" had an average 5 rating and a 16 per cent share of the audience for the same period.

"Gigglesnort" does consistently well against other locally produced children's shows, Jackson says, and the key may be its approach. The program uses puppet characters who operate out of a central setting, the Gigglesnort Hotel. Each week the characters encounter different problems and different experiences in the realm of their own little world.

It is not a new formula for children's programming, but it certainly is a contrast to the clowns on "Bozo's Circus," the little people's news show on "Bubblegum Digest" and the adult host format of the "Ray Rainer Show."

THE SHOW IS, in fact, Jackson's own personal note and every part of his past has gone into its making.

Walking in and out of Northwest suburban shopping centers and grocery stores, Jackson looks like any other suburban father with three children and a wife, Judy, of 15 years. The Jackson family makes their home in Arlington Heights.

That alone would make him qualified to talk about what children's programming is and could be. But his roots go way back.

Jackson was born in Unionville, Mo., and was raised by parents who traveled year-around with a carnival troupe. When he was old enough, he worked in the carnival's "mug joint" or booth where he took and developed pictures of patrons.

"I didn't have many friends when I was young because we were always traveling and changing locations. So, I had the need to be creative alone and often times I would draw for hours," said Jackson, 41.

HE INSISTS THAT he still creates his puppet characters, costumes and scripts from within. He does not rely on anyone or anything but himself for inspiration.

"That has always been a challenge to me and the most enjoyable part of this work. You sit down with a blank piece of paper staring you in the face and an empty feeling in your stomach. Then, all of a sudden, you start to doodle and it all starts to take shape. It's creativity," he said.

Jackson's early creative inclinations took him to the University of Missouri where he obtained a degree in journalism. He went on to work as a writer and an art director before serving in the armed forces. It was then that he became interested in puppets.

"I learned how to make and work puppets from an old puppet pro and the one thing he taught me was to let your imagination run wild," he said.

FROM THAT TIME on, Jackson has courted and created children's programs for a number of different television stations in Chicago and New York. He was once the host of the "Young Rascals" show, he hosted a live version of "Clown Alley" and the live, 90-minute daily version of "Cartoon Town."

"It was a challenge to make that one work. It was a live show and it was on every day. It was just me, my few puppets and the cartoons," he said.

In a "desperate" promotional stunt to attract more viewers, Jackson decided to run one of his newly created puppets the Dirty Dragon, for president. He designed a full-size costume of the television puppet which he wore during weekend stints to shopping centers and schools throughout the Chicago area.

There was a sudden growth in popularity of his show and the character had become its guiding light. From there it was a weekly kid's show in New York called "B.J.'s Bunch" that eventually gave way to "B.J.'s Gigglesnort Hotel" in Chicago .

BILL JACKSON and his invention, the Dirty Dragon, share the spot light on "B.J.'s Gigglesnort Hotel" Sundays at 9 a.m. on Channel 7. It is a locally produced children's program that is the product of Jackson's own experiences and creativity.

JACKSON HAS since received two awards from the National Assn. of Television Executives for his program, and, as far as he is concerned, has taken important steps toward broadening and improving children's television.

"I felt there was a need to expand the realm of children's programming and to promote locally produced shows. A lot of the early efforts in this area were very admirable, very noble and very dull," Jackson said.

"Early children's programs were actually what adults thought children should be watching and wanted to watch. Over the years much of the quality has been sacrificed for gimmikry to maintain ratings and fight to stay on the air," he said.

"B.J.'s Gigglesnort Hotel" is a show with an emphasis on "quality entertainment" with the element of education worked in, Jackson said. "Kids are having so much fun watching it that they don't realize they have learned something once they are done."

THE HALF HOUR show is primarily aimed at elementary-aged and older children. Jackson writes his scripts around one subject, "taking one worthwhile value or idea and building the entire show around it," he said.

The hotel setting gave him the flexibility to introduce new characters and gave his regular puppets a central place to live. The name "Gigglesnort" was a product of the words giggle and snort "because they just sounded funny together," he said.

"I'm really a kid at heart and I like fun things," says Jackson.

So the kid at heart has his Dirty Dragon give a weezy giggle that ends up in a short on nearly every show. When he wants to make children aware of the ills of pollution, he creates a monster slob that dirties up the planet and creates a character like W. C. Cornfield when he needs a detective on the show to give things a good going over.

It's imagination that is fun and that still gets the important points across, he said.

JACKSON IS responsible for every aspect of the show — the script, costumes, music, props, artwork and taping that goes on for about four hours every Saturday. One wek's work leads to another.

"Locally produced children's shows like this are the thing of the future. Stations need more of them to meet Federal Communication Commission standards and they are good for the kids. It gives them more to choose from," Jackson said.

"They deserve the same shot in television programming that is given to adults," he said.

'Royal Heritage' shows wealth of British rulers

LONDON (UPI) — A lavish new television series for Queen Elizabeth's Silver Jubilee is now giving the world a unique glimpse of the staggering riches left behind by 900 years of British kings and queens.

Its narrators include the queen herself and all her family.

The very first shot of "Royal Heritage," in fact, shows the queen chatting cozily about the priceless Imperial State Crown as if it were her favorite hat.

Prince Charles turns up later, extolling his maligned ancestor, King George III. Other royal bit players parade their time on stage.

But the nine 60-minute segments of "Royal Heritage" range far beyond Princess Anne and Prince Philip, Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother and — in her television debut at 94 — Princess Alice, the only surviving grandchild of Queen Victoria.

ITS AMBITIOUS idea, which came originally from Queen Elizabeth, is to show the enormous legacy of Britain's royal builders, collectors and patrons of the arts.

That means luscious camera closeups of crowns and clocks, of paintings and castles, and of what is perhaps the greatest art collection in the world.

The first "Royal Heritage" program was broadcast in Britain for the queen's 51st birthday. The series is continuing throughout the main celebrations of her 25th anniversary on the throne.

For such a major series, the British Broadcasting Corp. marshalled its top talent — directors and cameramen who worked on prize-winning series like "Civilization" and "America."

The narrator and co-author is none other than Sir Hu Wheldon, newly retired as director general of BBC television.

The result achieves a long list of television "firsts" proudly catalogued in a BBC statement:

"THE BBC HAS BEEN granted unique access to the immense array of treasures in palaces, castles and churches throughout the land, many of which have been filmed for the first time," it said.

"It is the first series to show the interiors of such royal residences as Sandringham, Balmoral and the Castle of Mey.

"It is the first to be allowed to film the crown jewels and countless other treasures in closeup.

"It is the first in which members of the royal family talk direct to camera about different parts of the royal collection."

The series is also simply magnificent television.

Most of its "firsts" are illustrated in that opening informal chat by the queen.

IN A DIAMOND tiara and jewelled gown worn that morning at the state opening of parliament, the queen stands in a private room of Buckingham Palace and gossips about the fist-sized jewels in the crown she wears on great state occasions.

One diamond — shown in dazzling closeup — is a piece of the Cullinan diamond the size of a small orange.

"I always remember," the queen says, "that my grandmother used to refer to the smaller diamonds cut from the Cullinan as 'the chips.' "

Even in nine hours, Wheldon and his camtras are hard pressed to include the whole of what he calls "an incomparable and quite gigantic collection of masterpieces of all kinds" left by Britain's monarchs.

It covers palaces and parks, Westminster Abbey — built by a king — and illuminated manuscripts, Windsor Great Park and the New Forest — kept by kings as hunting grounds. There are cartoons savagely satirizing George III and painting masterpieces by Vermeer and Canaletto, Gainsborough and Van Dyck.

PRINCE CHARLES even shows off "a rather lage 18th century flea," mounted in a slide for George III's microscope.

With carte blanche from the royal household, Wheldon's cameras roam freely inside Buckingham Palace and within the royal castles and palaces which still beautify the land.

They also capture the matchless pageantry of royal ceremonial-great state occasions like Trooping the Color, the procession of Knights of the Garter, Royal Ascot and the "Maundy Money" ceremony.

QUEEN ELIZABETH II is celebrating her Silver Jubilee this year and it seems like Americans, via the television set, will be celebrating right along with England with the British Broadcasting Company production of "Royal Heritage."

The series took nearly two years to make and cost $850,000. BBC officials expect to get that back many times over. Profits go to a trust fund administered by the queen for charity. Officials expect to sell "Royal Heritage" for showing in the United States, Canada, Australia, West Germany and just about everywhere else.

Unimpressive Ali wins fight by decision

Surprising Evangelista goes route

by STEVE WILSTEIN

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Muhammad Ali played cat and mouse for 15 rounds with overmatched phantom challenger Alfredo Evangelista Monday night and settled for a unanimous decision to retain his world heavyweight championship in a sham of a fight.

Ali was still on his feet dancing in the 15th round as he had been most of the bout, flicking harmless jabs at the defensive 22-year-old Spaniard. Evangelista was no statue like Jean-Pierre Coopman, but was no real challenger either.

Evangelista chased the elusive Ali round after round, but never caught him with a solid punch. Ali likewise never hurt or knocked down the challenger and seemed content to earn his $2.75 million purse with an easy decision.

THE CROWD OF about 12,000, most of which had gotten in free thanks to Ali, booed frequently as Ali went to his rope-a-dope tactic.

Evangelista, who had been billed as the "Spanish Rocky," wasn't. The movie was much better. Evangelista swung wild rights just like the Hollywood hero, but landed only infrequent left hooks.

Evangelista opened the bout by mirroring Ali's tactics. When Ali went to the ropes trying to sucker Evangelista in, the challenger refused to fall for the bait. When Ali danced, Evangelista tried to dance.

Only as the fight progressed to the seventh and eighth rounds and Ali had obviously built up a big lead, did Evangelista try to break through Ali's blind, boring defensive poses.

ALI CLOWNED much of the fight, apparently never feeling Evangelista was much of a threat. Ali stoped his left foot in mid-ring as if to bait Evangelista, but the challenger again backed away.

Ali, as has been his style in recent fights, was aggressive for only about 30 seconds a round, spending the rest of the time trying to wear his opponent down.

Ali never hurt his challenger, but he impressed the judges by never being hurt himself. Judges Terry Moore and Ray Klingmeyer each scored it 72-64 Ali, while referee Harry Cecchini gave Ali a 71-65 margin using Maryland's five-point must scoring system.

The only sign that either man had been fighting was a bloody nose that Evangelista suffered briefly in the sixth round when Ali shot a brisk left jab to his face. Evangelista came back with his first good punches of the night when he caught Ali with a pair of left hooks to the head.

ALI, WHO IS negotiating to fight fifth-ranked challenger Earnie Shavers at Madison Square Garden in June or July, has been bothered throughout his career by left hooks and when Evangelista repeated his hooking strategy, Ali was ready with quick counter punches.

Ali, who used part of his purse to buy $200,000 worth of unsold tickets Sunday for distribution at boys' clubs, welfare rights organizations and Amy Carter's elementary school, was defending his title for the ninth time in his second reign as champion. He has been beaten only twice, by Joe Frazier and Ken Norton, in 56 career bouts.

Clines' big day with stick revives memory of 1969

by ART MUGALIAN

You can bet there isn't a Cub alive today who remembers 1969, least of all Gene Clines, the hero of Monday's 9-6 ambush of the San Diego Padres at Wrigley Field.

But the ghosts were restless Monday and it was Clines who rattled their chains.

Clines, the newest and most productive member of the Cubs' revolving outfield brigade, drove in five runs with a what's-he-doing-on-the-bench 4-for-4, including his first home run since 1973. And he owed it all to Jose Cardenal's thumb, believe it or not.

THE HITTING DISPLAY by the 30 year-old veteran journeyman propelled the Cubs to their fifth win in a row — and their 13th out of the last 15 — prompting the press row denizens into making the usual early-season comparisons with the 1969-brand Cubs, the team that "won" the flag in August.

This time the parallels are uncanny — and ominously foreboding. Only in '69 could a Cub team surrender six runs and 10 hits, leave 11 men on, and still play it like a laugher.

Only in '69 could they start a rookie pitcher and pile up a five-run lead for the kid after just three innings.

Did manager Herman Franks know that his team was 20-11 for its first 31 games, the same start, exactly, that the 1969 team had?

Franks just groaned and stared into his post-game beer. The 63-year-old manager said nothing about the 1969 Cubs, a subject he knows as well as he knows the Woodstock Generation.

INSTEAD HE TALKED about the 1977 team, which is breathing down the necks, two games behind the first-place Pirates.

"All my extra men like to play," said Franks. "Clines, why, when he's not in there he carries the bat on the bench for nine innings. When you tell him to pinch-hit, he doesn't have to grab a bat — he's already got it in his hand. Some clubs I've been with, you tell a guy to hit and he's looking the other way.

"Yes, they all play," the manager continued. "With a bench like this one, you can rest the guys. You've gotta win wth 25 men."

Clines doubled home leadoff man Ivan DeJesus, who had walked in the first inning, and then blasted a two-run homer into the bleachers in left in the third after DeJesus doubled. That was the beginning of the end for Padre starter Bob Shirley, a rookie lefthander who exited later in the inning after a two-run triple by Steve Ontiveros. Six more Padres followed Shirley to the mound.

THE ONLY REASON Clines was in the lineup Monday was because Cardenal's thumb was acting up again.

"I didn't know about the thumb," said Franks. "I already had my lineup made out and Cardenal was on it."

Can you beat that? So Franks looks at who's pitching for San Diego and he glances down his dugout bench and he sees a mean-tempered righthanded batter twirling his hardwood anxiously, and he pencils in "Clines."

And Clines does the job.

"Hitting-wise it wasn't my best day," said Clines. "It was my best in run-production, though. But I don't care about hits or RBIs. I just want to help the team win games. We're all trying to take this thing day by day and help build up each other's confidence."

AFTER CLINES walked in the fourth, he singled home Ontiveros and George Mitterwald in a two-run fifth that at the time gave the Cubs an 8-4 lead. Both runners had moved into scoring position on a perfect sacrifice by relief pitcher Jim Todd.

Todd had replaced Willie Hernandez — who had replaced starter Donnie Moore, who was making his first start of the season since he was called up by the Cubs from Wichita. Todd got credit for the win with 2-1/3 innings of so-so work although he allowed two runs and needed relief help from Paul Reuschel, who got his second save in two days.

"The staff was shot," admitted Franks who said he was not about to use Bruce Sutter again. Sutter, who was named National League Player of the Week Monday, has appeared on the mound more often than the resin bag.

"The kid (Moore) looked real good," said Franks. "He's got a helluva fast slider. I'm really happy the way he pitched. It's too bad he couldn't get that last out in the fourth so we could see how far he'd go. But I just couldn't take the chance."

MOORE BAILED OUT of tough jams in the first two innings, leaving runners stranded at third both times, but he gave up two runs in the fourth after two were out. Doug Rader beat out an infield roller and then Moore walked the next two batters before pinch-hitter Jerry Turner delivered a two-run single. That's when Franks got out the hook for the 23-year-old righthander.

But while he was in there Moore fanned six Padres, and Franks indicated that "the kid" would get another start in the future.

Evangelista came to fight, not run

Landover, Md. (UPI) — Alfredo Evangelista, who lost a lopsided 15-round title decision to heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali Monday night, said he felt the experience would prepare him for another shot at the title in the future.

"I'm very happy I proved to the American audience I am a good fighter and worthy of fighting Muhammad Ali," Evangelista said through an interpreter. "I'm young — 22 — and I think I'll be worthy of fighting for the title again."

Evangelista said he didn't think Ali would go the distance.

"ALI SURPRISED me," said the Spanish challenger. "I never thought he'd be able to go 15 rounds, especially after the way he fought against Jimmy Young and Ken Norton. I really thought he'd get tired. I didn't think he would go the distance."

Evangelista said he thought Ali was using his "rope-a-dope" tactics to rest.

"He does that when he's tired," he explained. "I worked hard on it in the gym. He expected me to run out of gas by punching away at him but I was in good shape.

"I told him, 'Why do you run so much? Why can't you fight?' But he just kept running and hiding. He wouldn't do it."

EVANGELISTA, who suffered a bloody nose midway through the bout and some swelling under the eyes, said he was never really in trouble.

"I was never hurt," he said. "He hit me hard a couple of times but he never hurt me. I was determined to stay in there all the way with him."

Evangelista, a long-haired 209½ pound Uruguayan native now living in Spain, claimed a 16-1 record going into the bout and had never fought a world-ranked challenger, much less a champion. His record has been disputed and his fighting skills questioned. He showed he could fight Monday night, but not well enough to be in the rin with somebody of Ali's caliber.

ALI, 35-YEARS-old and far past his prime, expected little trouble from the shorter and slower challenger, but trained hard anyway, just in case.

After losing 20 pounds in six weeks of conditioning, Ali weighed in at 221¼, the same weight he carried against Norton last September when he pulled out a victory by dancing and jabbing in the late rounds, and nine pounds lighter than when he nearly lost a decision to Jimmy Young here at the Capital Centre a year ago.

"Don't underestimate Evangelista," Ali warned before the fight. "He may be unknown but he's 22 years old, 13 years younger than me, he has two hands and I guarantee you he'll do better than Duane Bobick did the other night against Norton."

Ali was right, but it wasn't saying much, since Bobick lasted only 53 seconds of the first round.

These Cub hitters do their job one base at a time

Byline report

Art Mugalian

Greg Gross came up with the bases loaded the other day and Jack Brickhouse, in his inimitable manner, said: "Greg doesn't have any major-league grand slams. Wouldn't this be a nice spot for No. 1?"

Gross would have rolled over at the plate if he had heard Brickhouse's remark. Rolled over laughing, that is.

Greg, of course, doesn't have any home runs with two men on base. He's never hit a two-run homer. The ugly truth is that Greg Gross has never hit a major-league home run even though he has been playing in the big leagues for five seasons and has come to bat more than 1,500 times.

THE LAST TIME he hit a four-bagger, Gross was playing for Columbus in 1971 and, most likely, the ball rolled down a rabbit hole in short left field and was never seen again. An uninterrupted trip around the bases for Greg is like a nonstop flight from anywhere to Dumas, Tex.

"I'm just not a home-run hitter," said Gross the other day. "I don't have a home-run swing. at Houston they tried to get me to pull the ball and hit with some power, but I'm not that type of hitter."

The 5-10, 180-pounder, acquired by the Cubs for shortstop Julio Gonzalez during the winter months, is content to make his fortune hitting singles. He already has 396 of them. If the ball gets away from the outfielder, Greg might try for second base, but singles seem to be all he wants out of life.

GROSS HAS A long way to go before he approaches Ty Cobb's lifetime record of 3,052 singles. Cobb singled more often than most players come to bat. His theory of batting went like this: Pretend the bat is a telephone pole; now, how would you try to grip a telephone pole — down at the nob? Of course not. You'd hold your hands apart slightly for better leverage. Most of today's hitters think leverage is a new lemon-flavored soft drink.

Even a telephone pole wouldn't help some of today's so-called sluggers who try to send the ball long distances every time up. But, in its day, Cobb's wagon-tongue bat must have looked like a telephone pole to the pitcherss when he strode to the plate.

Gross is not as dangerous a hitter as Cobb — and neither is Larry Biittner, another Cub who likes to get his bat on the ball for singles and an occasional double when the opportunity presents itself.

But the two Cubs, who have inherited the second and third spots in the batting order of late, seem to be resurrecting the dead ball era. Punch the ball and you will get on base more often. Take a full swing and you'll strike out or rip your stomach muscles away from your rib cage or embarrass yourself in some other way.

BIITTNER, OF course, is just filling in for first baseman Bill Buckner until the time comes when Buckner can walk on his ankle again without crying tears of physical pain. Biittner is hitting third, a mighty strange spot for a guy who has hit only seven homers in seven major-league seasons.

But Pete Rose used to hit third for the Reds. And Rose, oddly enough, who once hammered 16 homers in one six-month season, is the man who made singles-hitters finally raise their heads with pride — instead of lowering them in shame.

It was Rose, as a matter of fact, who popularized the expression, "The home-run hitters drive Cadillacs but the singles-hitter owns the dealership."

Rose is definitely a throwback to the olden days.

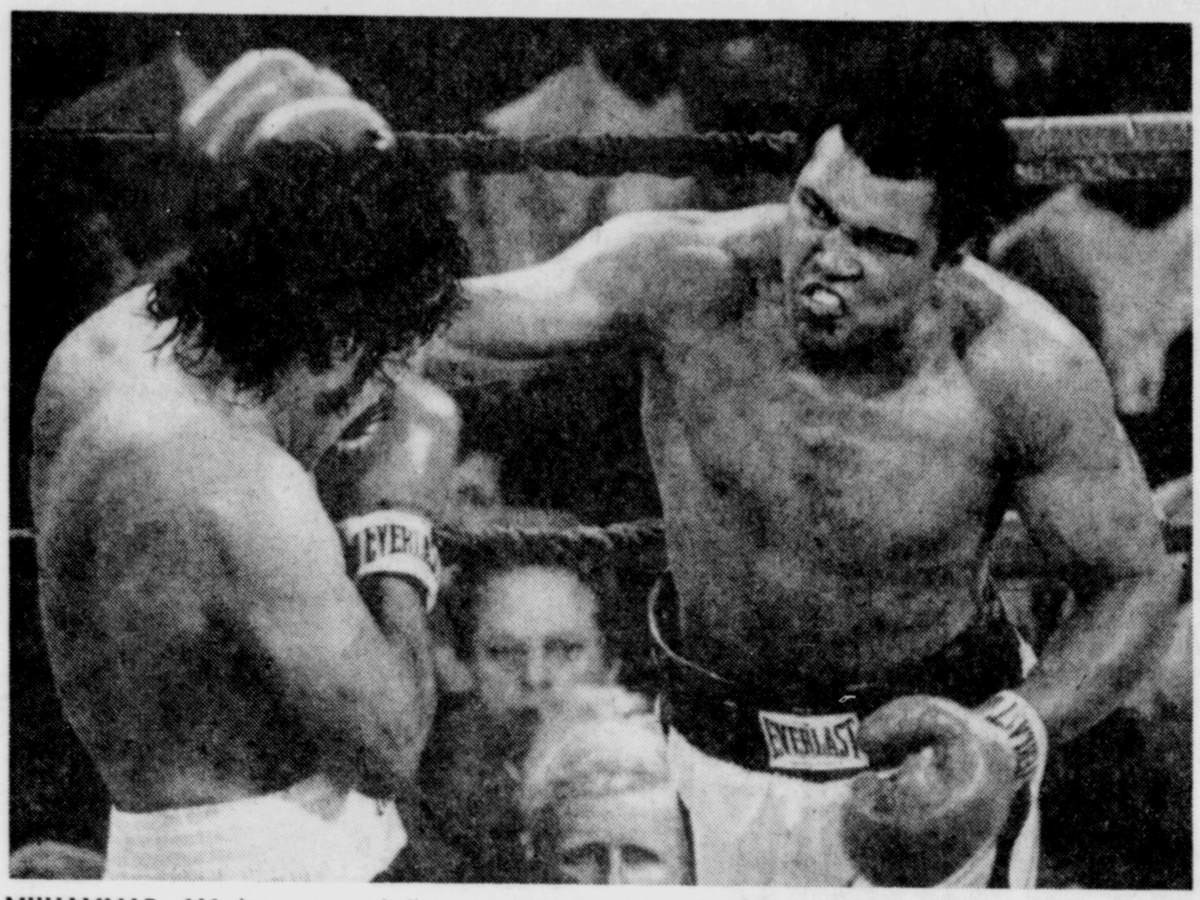

THE EXPERTS SAY that Ty Cobb would be a star if he were playing today and, aside from the fact that he would be too old to run out a ground ball, the experts are probably right. He and Rose would get along just great.

Pete Rose, on the other hand, would have been a star in 1910 because he hits like Cobb. He doesn't mess around with a big swing, trying to break down the fences. He chokes up, he makes contact, he puts the ball in play.

And, as amazing as it seems, Rose would have probably hit 30 points higher in 1910, too, because he wouldn't have had to spend so much time making television commercials.

Come to think of it, Gross and Biittner could make a TV commercial for the Wrigleys — they could be the Single-mint Twins.

INDIANAPOLIS — Rookie driver Gary Irvin smashed into the inside wall of the fourth turn during practice for the May 29 Indianapolis 500-mile auto race Monday, but was not injured. Track observers said Irvin, of West Lafayette, Ind., lost control and slid nearly 1,000 feet. He smacked the wall at the head of the main stretch and skidded along the barrier and hit the inside wall again.

The accident was the eighth at the Speedway this month. No driver has been injured seriously. Irvin complained of a headache and stiff neck at the infield hospital, but doctors approved him for more driving Tuesday.

The practice session was slow. Officials said that was typical following the first weekend of time trials. Observers added that extreme heat — temperatures in the upper 80s — also kept workouts to a minimum. Readings by tire representatives said the track surface temperature peaked above 120 degrees at mid-day.

Detroit's Barnes serving sentence

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Pro basketball star Marvin Barnes was jailed Monday to serve a one-year sentence for breaking probation. The charge stemmed from an assault on a former teammate during his All-America days at Providence College.

Superior Court Judge Anthony A. Giannini denied a request to postpone the surrender of the Detroit Pistons' forward. James L. Feinberg, Barnes' new lawyer from Detroit, wanted time to study the case. Barnes, 24, was taken to the Adult Correctional Institutions — a century-old, overcrowded prison in nearby Cranston.

Feinberg said he was immediately beginning steps to free Barnes pending an appeal of some sort. "We're looking into everything — legal remedies and social remedies," he said. "I'm going to try to get him out."

Montreal greets Stanley Cup champs

MONTREAL — About 500,000 enthusiastic Montreal hockey lovers thronged to the streets of Montreal Monday to give their championship Stanley Cup winning Canadiens a hero's welcome.

The Canadiens, who won their 20th Stanley Cup with a 2-1 overtime victory on Saturday over the Boston Bruins, were greeted by brilliant sunshine, strong winds and a temperature hovering around 70, as they made their way in open cars from the Forum along downtown St. Catherine Street to Montreal's City Hall.

The parade took more than two hours to cover the relatively short distance as thousands of people crowded the open cars searching for handshakes and autographs from the victorious Canadiens. The cars were led by a giant float on which stood captain Yvan Cournoyer and acting team captain Serge Savard who held the coveted Stanley Cup.

Duran retains lightweight crown

LANDOVER, Md. — World lightweight champion Roberto Duran, looking for a tough 10-round workout in a non-title bout Monday night with Javier Muniz, got exactly that before taking a unanimous decision.

Muniz, who suffered the only physical damage in the fight when he was cut above the left eye in the ninth round, was a game competitor but was overmatched even though Duran seemed out of shape.

Duran, weighing 142, never seemed anxious to go for a knockout even when he had Muniz in trouble in the first and sixth rounds and then again in the ninth and tenth. Duran, from Panama, 57-1, opened the bout with three quick left hooks and then a light uppercut that snapped Muniz' head back. Muniz went down for an eight count after Duran scored with a solid left hook to the body late in the first round.

Sherrod plugs gap in Illinois' line

Mike Sherrod

Loren Tate

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Mike Sherrod, a soft-spoken 19-year-old who carries the look of a future Illini football star, returned home to suburban Robbins last weekend.

There are several reasons why he didn't speed. First, Mike isn't anxious to pay a fine. And second, how can a 6-6, 220-pound giant convince a patrolman that a driver's license issued to a 6-1, 175-pound lad is actually him?

Yes, that's how much Sherrod has grown in the 2½ years since the permit was issued. It's right there on the license. He'll update it next January when his three-year license expires. By that time he could be 6-7 and 235.

"I FEEL I can get up to 230 or 235 this summer," said the Richards High School product. "I was over 225 last fall. But I've got to maintain my speed. That's what Moe (coach Gary Moeller) likes, speed and quickness. I ran 4.7 (for 40 yards) at the end of winter conditioning and I want to stay that fast."

Sherrod offers a rare combination of speed and power. His arms look like giant hammers, with blood vessles surging to skin level as they do for all advanced weight lifters. While the shoulders are broad, the hips are thin. In just a few short weeks this impressive lad took a "disaster position," tight end, and changed it into an Illini plus.

Problems began for Moeller there when Marty Friel, the tri-captain and successor to Joe Smalzer, completed his eligibility along with punter-end Phil Vierneisel, and backup Mark Soebbing decided not to take his fifth season .Then red-shirted prospect Jim Fletcher of Wheaton became ill and indicated he would not return to the gridiron. That left rookie Sherrod and converted lineman Ken Kolar for the position.

Sherrod was outstanding throughout spring drills and capped the five-week period by catching four passes, two for touchdowns, in the Orange-Blue game. More than that, he impressed with his blocking.

"I WATCHED HIM," said UI sports information director Tab Bennett, a former defensive line standout under Bob Blackman.

"He has exceptional blocking technique. I watched him on the double-team, and I don't think there is a defensive tackle in the league who can break the block of Sherrod and Rich Grimmett or Kevin Smith. They'll make the sweep go. I'm sure of it."

Sherrod and Grimmett, in particular, make an awesome pair as they line up side by side. Grimmett is 6-8 and around 260 pounds. Illinois has never had two taller gridders playing next to each other.

"I've always been able to catch the ball," said Sherrod, "and I could feel myself improving in my blocking footwork and techniques. It helps to work with the tackles. That's the way Moe has us paired off. Last fall the tight ends worked with the receivers and we didn't put in as much time blocking.

"YOU HAVE to know what the tackle is doing because he is the one you're involved with most of the time. The more you work on blocking, the better you get at it. We could definitely see improvement by the end of the spring."

Sherrod drove home at the conclusion of final exams last week and will take a summer job in Monee, a modest drive from Robbins.

"I know I don't dare get picked up speeding," he grinned, "because I've grown so much since I went on the weights as a sophomore in high school. There's only one patrolman who would let me go, and that's my brother, Nate. He is a state patrolman but he lives in Missouri."

Nate got Mike interested in athletics as a prep star at Blue Island Eisenhower. Mike attended Richards High in Oak Lawn as the result of a busing decision, and he helped Richards to a 6-3 record in 1975, although workhorse runner Jeff Bobrowicz (now at Colorado State) stole most of the headlines with a 1,400-yard season. Still, Blackman chose Sherrod over All-Stater Bobrowicz because of Sherrod's speed and the rapid manner he was growing.

"If he fills out and develops, Mike can be a great one," Blackman said last fall. Moeller, it appears, will reap the rewards of Blackman's prediction.

Irvin becomes 8th Indy crash victim

INDIANAPOLIS — Rookie driver Gary Irvin smashed into the inside wall of the fourth turn during practice for the May 29 Indianapolis 500-mile auto race Monday, but was not injured. Track observers said Irvin, of West Lafayette, Ind., lost control and slid nearly 1,000 feet. He smacked the wall at the head of the main stretch and skidded along the barrier and hit the inside wall again.

The accident was the eighth at the Speedway this month. No driver has been injured seriously. Irvin complained of a headache and stiff neck at the infield hospital, but doctors approved him for more driving Tuesday.

The practice session was slow. Officials said that was typical following the first weekend of time trials. Observers added that extreme heat — temperatures in the upper 80s — also kept workouts to a minimum. Readings by tire representatives said the track surface temperature peaked above 120 degrees at mid-day.

Janet Guthrie of New York City, trying to become the first woman to qualify for the Memorial holiday weekend classic, posted a circuit at 179.712 m.p.h. — still shy of speeds observers feel are necessary to make the show.

Detroit's Barnes serving sentence

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Pro basketball star Marvin Barnes was jailed Monday to serve a one-year sentence for breaking probation. The charge stemmed from an assault on a former teammate during his All-America days at Providence College.

Superior Court Judge Anthony A. Giannini denied a request to postpone the surrender of the Detroit Pistons' forward. James L. Feinberg, Barnes' new lawyer from Detroit, wanted time to study the case. Barnes, 24, was taken to the Adult Correctional Institutions — a century-old, overcrowded prison in nearby Cranston.

Feinberg said he was immediately beginning steps to free Barnes pending an appeal of some sort. "We're looking into everything — legal remedies and social remedies," he said. "I'm going to try to get him out."

Montreal greets Stanley Cup champs

MONTREAL — About 500,000 enthusiastic Montreal hockey lovers thronged to the streets of Montreal Monday to give their championship Stanley Cup winning Canadiens a hero's welcome.

The Canadiens, who won their 20th Stanley Cup with a 2-1 overtime victory on Saturday over the Boston Bruins, were greeted by brilliant sunshine, strong winds and a temperature hovering around 70, as they made their way in open cars from the Forum along downtown St. Catherine Street to Montreal's City Hall.

The parade took more than two hours to cover the relatively short distance as thousands of people crowded the open cars searching for handshakes and autographs from the victorious Canadiens. The cars were led by a giant float on which stood captain Yvan Cournoyer and acting team captain Serge Savard who held the coveted Stanley Cup.

LANDOVER, Md. — World lightweight champion Roberto Duran, looking for a tough 10-round workout in a non-title bout Monday night with Javier Muniz, got exactly that before taking a unanimous decision.

Muniz, who suffered the only physical damage in the fight when he was cut above the left eye in the ninth round, was a game competitor but was overmatched even though Duran seemed out of shape.

Duran, weighing 142, never seemed anxious to go for a knockout even when he had Muniz in trouble in the first and sixth rounds and then again in the ninth and tenth. Duran, from Panama, 57-1, opened the bout with three quick left hooks and then a light uppercut that snapped Muniz' head back. Muniz went down for an eight count after Duran scored with a solid left hook to the body late in the first round.

Duran doubled Muniz over with a low blow in the sixth and Muniz, from Los Angeles, walked around the ring for 20 seconds to catch his breath.

Sherrod plugs gap in Illinois' line

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Mike Sherrod, a soft-spoken 19-year-old who carries the look of a future Illini football star, returned home to suburban Robbins last weekend.

There are several reasons why he didn't speed. First, Mike isn't anxious to pay a fine. And second, how can a 6-6, 220-pound giant convince a patrolman that a driver's license issued to a 6-1, 175-pound lad is actually him?

Yes, that's how much Sherrod has grown in the 2½ years since the permit was issued. It's right there on the license. He'll update it next January when his three-year license expires. By that time he could be 6-7 and 235.

"I FEEL I can get up to 230 or 235 this summer," said the Richards High School product. "I was over 225 last fall. But I've got to maintain my speed. That's what Moe (coach Gary Moeller) likes, speed and quickness. I ran 4.7 (for 40 yards) at the end of winter conditioning and I want to stay that fast."

Sherrod offers a rare combination of speed and power. His arms look like giant hammers, with blood vessles surging to skin level as they do for all advanced weight lifters. While the shoulders are broad, the hips are thin. In just a few short weeks this impressive lad took a "disaster position," tight end, and changed it into an Illini plus.

Problems began for Moeller there when Marty Friel, the tri-captain and successor to Joe Smalzer, completed his eligibility along with punter-end Phil Vierneisel, and backup Mark Soebbing decided not to take his fifth season .Then red-shirted prospect Jim Fletcher of Wheaton became ill and indicated he would not return to the gridiron. That left rookie Sherrod and converted lineman Ken Kolar for the position.

Sherrod was outstanding throughout spring drills and capped the five-week period by catching four passes, two for touchdowns, in the Orange-Blue game. More than that, he impressed with his blocking.

"I WATCHED HIM," said UI sports information director Tab Bennett, a former defensive line standout under Bob Blackman.

"He has exceptional blocking technique. I watched him on the double-team, and I don't think there is a defensive tackle in the league who can break the block of Sherrod and Rich Grimmett or Kevin Smith. They'll make the sweep go. I'm sure of it."

Sherrod and Grimmett, in particular, make an awesome pair as they line up side by side. Grimmett is 6-8 and around 260 pounds. Illinois has never had two taller gridders playing next to each other.

"I've always been able to catch the ball," said Sherrod, "and I could feel myself improving in my blocking footwork and techniques. It helps to work with the tackles. That's the way Moe has us paired off. Last fall the tight ends worked with the receivers and we didn't put in as much time blocking.

"YOU HAVE to know what the tackle is doing because he is the one you're involved with most of the time. The more you work on blocking, the better you get at it. We could definitely see improvement by the end of the spring."

Sherrod drove home at the conclusion of final exams last week and will take a summer job in Monee, a modest drive from Robbins.

"I know I don't dare get picked up speeding," he grinned, "because I've grown so much since I went on the weights as a sophomore in high school. There's only one patrolman who would let me go, and that's my brother, Nate. He is a state patrolman but he lives in Missouri."

Nate got Mike interested in athletics as a prep star at Blue Island Eisenhower. Mike attended Richards High in Oak Lawn as the result of a busing decision, and he helped Richards to a 6-3 record in 1975, although workhorse runner Jeff Bobrowicz (now at Colorado State) stole most of the headlines with a 1,400-yard season. Still, Blackman chose Sherrod over All-Stater Bobrowicz because of Sherrod's speed and the rapid manner he was growing.

"If he fills out and develops, Mike can be a great one," Blackman said last fall. Moeller, it appears, will reap the rewards of Blackman's prediction.

Seattle Slew faces formidable field

by CHRIS SCHERF

NEW YORK — Seattle Slew, seeking to become the 10th Triple Crown winner, will find a pair of well-rested, blazing fast colts waiting in ambush at Pimlico in Saturday's 102nd running of the Preakness.

Karen and Mickey Taylor's Kentucky Derby winner is unbeaten in seven starts and was last years' 2-year-old champion.

But, in England, the same was true of George Pope's J. O. Tobin, who missed the Kentucky Derby because fever disrupted his training program.

CHARLES T. BERRY'S Cormorant also missed the Kentucky Derby becase of health problems after winning his last seven races, including the Bay Shire and Gotham Stakes in New York.

Add stretch-running Run Dusty Run and Sanhedrin, who finished second and third respectively in the Kentucky Derby, and Seattle Slew does not have a soft touch in the 1-3/16th-mile Preakness.

Seattle Slew can become the first horse to win the Triple Crown with an unbeaten record, if he captures the Preakness and Belmont Stakes.

In 1969, Majestic Prince got through the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness intact, but was beaten by Arts and Letters in the 1½-mile Belmont Stakes.

THE TAYLORS, a couple in their young 30s, bought Seattle Slew as a yearling for $17,500 and he now may be the most valuable horse in the world.

The Slew's career earnings now total $470,140, but his stud value probably exceeds $10 million and could go higher with a successful Triple Crown campaign.

After the Derby victory, Seattle Slew's jockey Jean Cruguet predicted victory in the Preakness, too.

But J. O. Tobin and Cormorant are two new challengers for Seattle Slew and their credentials indicate they are better colts than most of those in the Kentucky Derby field.

J. O. TOBIN won all three starts in England last year before being beaten in his only race in France. At the end of his 2-year-old year, the Never Bend colt was shipped to trainer Johnny Adams, who rode Hasty Road to a Preakness victory in 1954 and has been inducted as a member of the National Jockey Hall of Fame at Pimlico.

Another Hall of Fame jockey, Bill Shoemaker, has the ride on J. O. Tobin. Shoemaker has won the Preakness twice, with Candy Spots in 1963 and Damascus in 1967.

J. O. Tobin was left in the gate in his first American start, an exhibition at Santa Anita, and finished second. But he won the $44,450 Coronado Handicap at Hollywood Park with a stakes record time of 1:34 2-5 over the turf course.

Cormorant lost the first start of his career last June, but since then has won seven straight including three consecutive stakes victories. The son of His Majesty-Song Sparrow was knocked out of the Kentucky Derby by a virus, but worked five furlongs April 26 in 58 seconds.

CORMORANT'S TRAINER, Jim Simpson, was impressed with the workout and so was Dick Dutrow, who won the 1975 Eclipse Award as the nation's top trainer.

"It was the greatest I have ever seen a horse work," Dutrow said. "Four years ago I saw Ron Turcotte work Secretariat at Pimlico the Sunday before the Preakness. He went six furlongs in 1:10. The way he was moving, I didn't think a horse could run that fast.

"But now I have to say Cormorant's work is the best I've seen. You wouldn't believe the hold the boy had on him at the three-eighths pole. And he was doing it on a deep race track."

Boston Bruins goalie Gerry Cheevers' Royal Ski, who won $309,704 as a 2-year-old, also is a possible Preakness starter.

Maddox, Phillies cool off Dodgers

Major league baseball

PHILADELPHIA — Garry Maddox singled home two runs to key a five-run third inning and stake rookie Randy Lerch to his fifth victory of the season Monday night in a 10-6 triumph by the Philadelphia Phillies over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

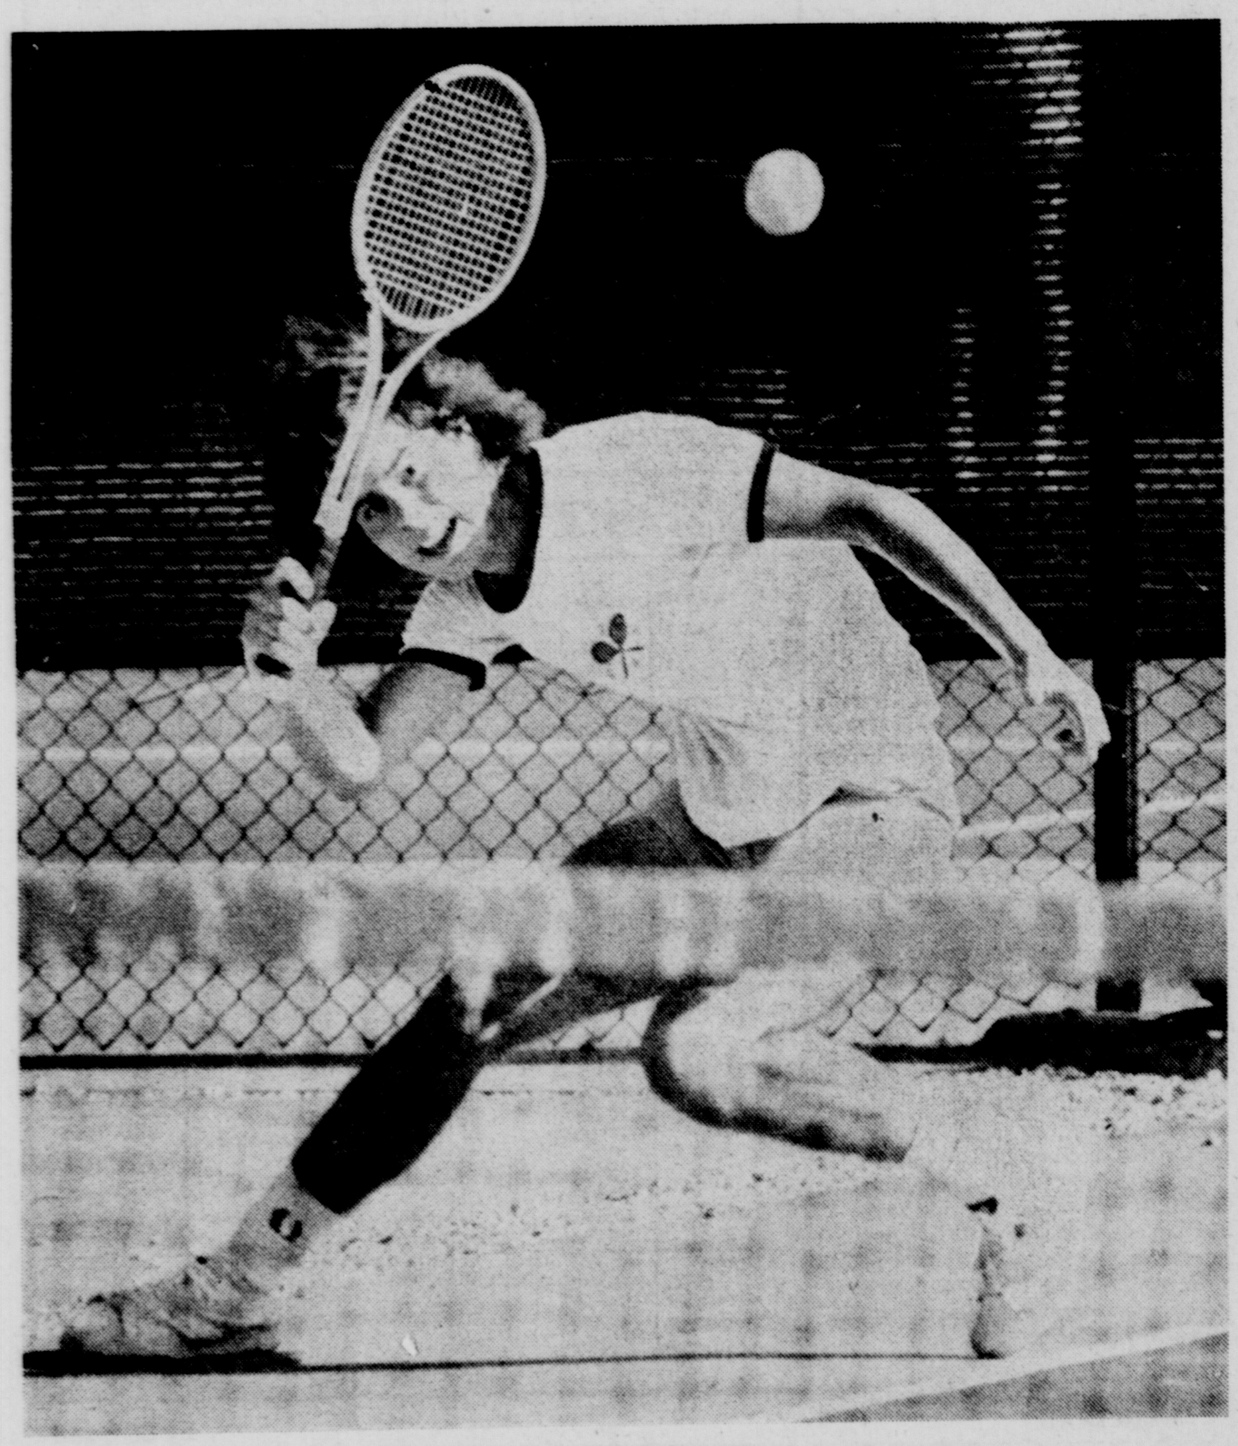

It was the fifth straight victory for the Phillies and seventh in their last eight games.

Lerch, who hurled seven innings and struck out the side with runners on second and third in the fifth, is now 5-2. Ron Reed pitched the final two innings to gain his fourth save.

TRAILING 3-1, THE Phillies took advantage of Ron Cey's error to score three unearned runs in the five-run third off loser Tommy John. Singles by Greg Luzinski and Dave Johnson and a walk to Jerry Martin loaded the bases. Bob Boone singled in Luzinski and Johnson scored when Cey booted Ted Sizemore's grounder. Martin came in on an infield out before Maddox singled to make it 6-3.

The Dodgers took a 3-0 lead in the first when Dave Lopes walked, Reggie Smith hit his eighth homer and Steve Garvey and Rick Monday followed with doubles. They added two unearned runs in the fourth and another in the eighth when Monday hit his sixth homer.

NET MINDER. Forest View's Steve Calderone charges to the net during the Mid-Suburban League Conference Meet. Calderone, unbeaten in dual meets in the league, emerged with the second singles trophy to help Forest View capture the overall crown.

Prospect overcame their own mistakes to post an extra inning triumph over Forest View Monday and all but officially wrap up the Mid-Suburban League's South Division title.

In the North the issue was far from settled although Buffalo Grove inched ahead of Wheeling by edging Palatine Monday while the Wildcats were falling to Fremd.

Other MSL diamond winners were Conant and Elk Grove.

THE KNIGHTS edged the Falcons 7-6 in nine innings after tossing away a 6-3 lead in the top of the seventh. It was 10th triumph in 11 loop outings for coach Larry Pohlman and his gang while Forest View sustained their sixth setback.

The Falcons scored three straight times on passed balls to knot the game in the seventh. Prospect countered when Tom Peterson singled to right in the seventh and Steve Savage beat out a bunt hit.

Pat Higgins was intentionally passed and Scott Springs beat out an infield hit while the winning run was scoring.

Peterson, who came on in relief of starter Jim McDonald in the seventh, earned the win.

FREMD ALSO came up with a late inning bases jammed infield hit in toppling the 'Cats from the top of the pack, 4-3. In this case however it was a perfectly placed squeeze bunt that Chris Pethley dropped down.

Wheeling and hurler Jim Passolt were coasting along on a 3-0 lead when the Vikings struck for three in the sixth to knot the game.

With one away in the seventh Jeff Kucz singled and Don Constable stroked a ground rule double. Dale Kukla was intentionally passed but the strategy backfired and distance-going Kerry Field notched the winning decision.

BUFFALO GROVE was able to move a game ahead of Wheeling by edging the Pirates and Kevin McKenna, 3-2.

Tim Prokof doubled to deep center in the sixth with the score tied at 2-2 and Bison hurler Phil Czosnyka then reached on an error while Prokof scooted home with the decisive run.

The Pirates had scored first on Al Knotek's single, a wild pitch and a double by Glenn Daniels. BG countered on Mike Marshall's single and a Prokof safety that was misgloved in right.

Mid-Suburban baseball report

In the second the Bison went up 2-1 when Dave Wilhelm smacked a shot into the fence and the rightfielder tumbled over the wall in pursuit. The ball stayed in play but Wilhelm had circled the bases for a home run by the time it was retrieved.

The second Pirate run came in when Kevin Carrier singled and stole second and Knotek doubled him home. Czosnyka whiffed eight and walked just one in earning the victory.

CONANT OUTSLUGGED Hoffman Estates 12-11 despite a trio of Hawk circuit blows. Jeff Johnson, Scott Schafer and Roger Schweigert paced the Cougar attack for winning twirler Bill Schimbke with two hits and two RBIs apiece.

For Hoffman John Staback laced a three-run homer, Ray Gawron poked a two-run circuit blow and frosh Bill James drove in three runs with a double and a home run.

Seven errors helped in the undoing of Hoffman Estates. Rob Totten also had two hits and the Cougars rapped out a total of 12 safeties and never trailed in the contest.

ELK GROVE put together a six-run salute to chase Schaumburg moundsman Tim McCue and charge to a 7-2 win over the Saxons.

Tom Curran went all the way in earning the pitching decision for the Grenadiers. He struck out seven walked two and allowed just four hits.

Schaumburg jumped ahead early on Tom Sowin's solo round tripper but the Grens retaliated in the fourth, Dave Sargent's two-run four bagger keying the six-run explosion.

Hawks finish 4th in state

Steve Raccuglia, centerfielder of Harper's "Cinderella" Hawks that finished a surprising fourth in the state baseball championship last weekend, was named Monday to the all-tournament team.

Harper, the only unranked team to go downstate to Kankakee, ended up finishing ahead of the two teams that had been seeded first and second in the tournament, Lake County College and Lakeland. State champion Southeastern had gone into the finals seeded third, and fourth-seeded Morton College who eliminated Harper in 10 innings on Saturday, 7-6, finished second in the state.

Hawk coach John Elisak had every reason to be pleased with his team's 1977 performance and was optimistic towards next year.

ence going downstate this year, they learned how to play with the pressure of state championship baseball. The freshmen on our team will have something to build on for next year."

The Hawks will lose six sophomores from this year's squad, but several outstanding freshmen will be returning to next year's team. Bob Frye who led Harper with a .390 will join home run leader Bob Ray (7) next season.

"We have some holes to fill," said Elisak, "We're hoping some of the fine area talent will be interested in our baseball program."

Cards gain sectional in slugfest

by DAVE HESS

Once again it was the Arlington Cardinals. And once again for Arlington it was John Mertins, who came on in relief of starting pitcher Doug Harth, pitched scoreless ball the last two innings and scored the winning run in Arlington's 12-10 win over Maine West.

The Cardinals' win gave them the Elk Grove regional championship and allows them to advance into the sectionals against the winner of Niles West regional.

Maine West had their chances early, loading the bases in the first inning but leaving the runners stranded. Arlington's Frank DeSimone slammed a solo homerun in the top of the second to put the Cardinals on the board first.

THE WARRIORS again got Harth on the ropes in their half of the second, this time getting three runs. Wayne Wishnew led off with a single, Jeff Deckrow beat out a perfect bunt, and Russ Kleisner loaded the bases on a walk. Wishnew was forced at the plate by Bob Zuccarini, but Tim Platek slammed a shot that got past the left fielder and rolled all the way to the wall for a bases clearing triple.

The Warriors looked like they would sail along with their 3-1 lead, but Arlington came back with a shocker in the top of the fourth, sending 12 men to the plate, scoring eight runs on seven hits. Phil Mayert started the inning with a double, DeSimone followed with a walk, and Gary Kempton beat out a drag bunt to load the bases.

Dan Frase hit a shot that skipped through Warrior third baseman Bob Zuccarini's legs and two runs scored. The Cardinals, though, were not through. With the bases loaded again, John Mertins who started the game at second base, singled in two runs. One out later Frank DeSimone was up again and rapped another single driving home two more runs and knocking out starter Greg Herdzina.

Harth seemed to take heart in the big lead and blanked the Warriors over the next two innings, but he was throwing a lot of pitches on a hot and humid day and it seemed only a matter of time before Maine West would break through again.

THE WARRIORS picked up a run in the fifth as Carl Henk, who had reached on an error, scored on a head-first dive on Rob Earhart's single.

The Warriors made their move in the bottom of the sixth, scoring six runs with the big blow being a three-run homer over the left field fence by Forrest Wantroba. The shot put the Warriors ahead 10-9.

Enter John Mertins.

"I didn't want to use Mertins," said Cardinal coach Fran Somers. "Doug Harth had pitched well, and I didn't want to take him out, but it was pretty hot out there on the mound today. Mertins had just pitched that shutout Saturday over Gordon Tech and he wasn't feeling too well."

The Cardinals came up in their half of the seventh and tied the score with Bill Grabitz getting an RBI double scoring Gary Kempton.

MERTINS WAS as cool as a block of ice on the mound as he held the Warriors in check in the seventh. A bloop single and an error put two runners on, but Mertins threw out two runners at third himself.

The game winning hit came with two outs by Gary Kempton driving home DeSimone and Mertins. Mertins then held Maine West in check in the bottom of the eighth and the Cardinals went home as champs.

Somers was lavish in his praise of Mertins and DeSimone who went five for nine between them.

"DeSimone has done a heckuva job for us in the clutch all year. He is a fine hitting prospect, and Mertins is just a class ballplayer."

FREMD ALSO came up with a late inning bases jammed infield hit in toppling the 'Cats from the top of the pack, 4-3. In this case however it was a perfectly placed squeeze bunt that Chris Pethley dropped down.

Wheeling and hurler Jim Passolt were coasting along on a 3-0 lead when the Vikings struck for three in the sixth to knot the game.

With one away in the seventh Jeff Kucz singled and Don Constable stroked a ground rule double. Dale Kukla was intentionally passed but the strategy backfired and distance-going Kerry Field notched the winning decision.

BUFFALO GROVE was able to move a game ahead of Wheeling by edging the Pirates and Kevin McKenna, 3-2.

Tim Prokof doubled to deep center in the sixth with the score tied at 2-2 and Bison hurler Phil Czosnyka then reached on an error while Prokof scooted home with the decisive run.

The Pirates had scored first on Al Knotek's single, a wild pitch and a double by Glenn Daniels. BG countered on Mike Marshall's single and a Prokof safety that was misgloved in right.

In the second the Bison went up 2-1 when Dave Wilhelm smacked a shot into the fence and the rightfielder tumbled over the wall in pursuit. The ball stayed in play but Wilhelm had circled the bases for a home run by the time it was retrieved.

The second Pirate run came in when Kevin Carrier singled and stole second and Knotek doubled him home. Czosnyka whiffed eight and walked just one in earning the victory.

CONANT OUTSLUGGED Hoffman Estates 12-11 despite a trio of Hawk circuit blows. Jeff Johnson, Scott Schafer and Roger Schweigert paced the Cougar attack for winning twirler Bill Schimbke with two hits and two RBIs apiece.

For Hoffman John Staback laced a three-run homer, Ray Gawron poked a two-run circuit blow and frosh Bill James drove in three runs with a double and a home run.

Seven errors helped in the undoing of Hoffman Estates. Rob Totten also had two hits and the Cougars rapped out a total of 12 safeties and never trailed in the contest.

Gawron, the first of three Hawk pitchers, was tagged with the setback.

ELK GROVE put together a six-run salute to chase Schaumburg moundsman Tim McCue and charge to a 7-2 win over the Saxons.

Tom Curran went all the way in earning the pitching decision for the Grenadiers. He struck out seven walked two and allowed just four hits.

Schaumburg jumped ahead early on Tom Sowin's solo round tripper but the Grens retaliated in the fourth, Dave Sargent's two-run four bagger keying the six-run explosion.

Elk Grove rapped out eleven hits in chalking up their fourth conference win. It was the 12th straight league setback for Schaumburg.

Mid-Suburban baseball report

Hawks finish 4th in state

Steve Raccuglia, centerfielder of Harper's "Cinderella" Hawks that finished a surprising fourth in the state baseball championship last weekend, was named Monday to the all-tournament team.

Harper, the only unranked team to go downstate to Kankakee, ended up finishing ahead of the two teams that had been seeded first and second in the tournament, Lake County College and Lakeland. State champion Southeastern had gone into the finals seeded third, and fourth-seeded Morton College who eliminated Harper in 10 innings on Saturday, 7-6, finished second in the state.

Hawk coach John Elisak had every reason to be pleased with his team's 1977 performance and was optimistic towards next year.

ence going downstate this year, they learned how to play with the pressure of state championship baseball. The freshmen on our team will have something to build on for next year."

The Hawks will lose six sophomores from this year's squad, but several outstanding freshmen will be returning to next year's team. Bob Frye who led Harper with a .390 will join home run leader Bob Ray (7) next season.

"We have some holes to fill," said Elisak, "We're hoping some of the fine area talent will be interested in our baseball program."

Cards gain sectional in slugfest

by DAVE HESS

Once again it was the Arlington Cardinals. And once again for Arlington it was John Mertins, who came on in relief of starting pitcher Doug Harth, pitched scoreless ball the last two innings and scored the winning run in Arlington's 12-10 win over Maine West.

The Cardinals' win gave them the Elk Grove regional championship and allows them to advance into the sectionals against the winner of Niles West regional.

Maine West had their chances early, loading the bases in the first inning but leaving the runners stranded. Arlington's Frank DeSimone slammed a solo homerun in the top of the second to put the Cardinals on the board first.

THE WARRIORS again got Harth on the ropes in their half of the second, this time getting three runs. Wayne Wishnew led off with a single, Jeff Deckrow beat out a perfect bunt, and Russ Kleisner loaded the bases on a walk. Wishnew was forced at the plate by Bob Zuccarini, but Tim Platek slammed a shot that got past the left fielder and rolled all the way to the wall for a bases clearing triple.

The Warriors looked like they would sail along with their 3-1 lead, but Arlington came back with a shocker in the top of the fourth, sending 12 men to the plate, scoring eight runs on seven hits. Phil Mayert started the inning with a double, DeSimone followed with a walk, and Gary Kempton beat out a drag bunt to load the bases.

Dan Frase hit a shot that skipped through Warrior third baseman Bob Zuccarini's legs and two runs scored. The Cardinals, though, were not through. With the bases loaded again, John Mertins who started the game at second base, singled in two runs. One out later Frank DeSimone was up again and rapped another single driving home two more runs and knocking out starter Greg Herdzina.

Harth seemed to take heart in the big lead and blanked the Warriors over the next two innings, but he was throwing a lot of pitches on a hot and humid day and it seemed only a matter of time before Maine West would break through again.

THE WARRIORS picked up a run in the fifth as Carl Henk, who had reached on an error, scored on a head-first dive on Rob Earhart's single.

The Warriors made their move in the bottom of the sixth, scoring six runs with the big blow being a three-run homer over the left field fence by Forrest Wantroba. The shot put the Warriors ahead 10-9.

Enter John Mertins.

"I didn't want to use Mertins," said Cardinal coach Fran Somers. "Doug Harth had pitched well, and I didn't want to take him out, but it was pretty hot out there on the mound today. Mertins had just pitched that shutout Saturday over Gordon Tech and he wasn't feeling too well."

The Cardinals came up in their half of the seventh and tied the score with Bill Grabitz getting an RBI double scoring Gary Kempton.

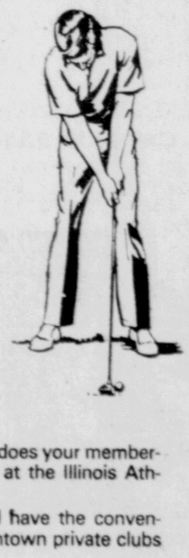

MERTINS WAS as cool as a block of ice on the mound as he held the Warriors in check in the seventh. A bloop single and an error put two runners on, but Mertins threw out two runners at third himself.

The game winning hit came with two outs by Gary Kempton driving home DeSimone and Mertins. Mertins then held Maine West in check in the bottom of the eighth and the Cardinals went home as champs.

Somers was lavish in his praise of Mertins and DeSimone who went five for nine between them.

"DeSimone has done a heckuva job for us in the clutch all year. He is a fine hitting prospect, and Mertins is just a class ballplayer."

Ask Andy

Heartbeat rate influenced by electric current

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1977 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Ann Gaylord, 11, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, for her question:

WHAT MAKES YOUR HEART BEAT?

Your heart is a muscular organ about the size of your fist. It pumps blood to all sections of your body, carrying nourishment on its trip away from the heart and carrying off waste materials on the return trip. It's located behind the foremost, flat bone of the chest, called the sternum and is located slightly toward the left side.

The heart works a lifetime, starting even before a baby is born. It is a most remarkable organ. The beat is steady and sure.

The rate at which your heart beats varies — slower when you are at rest than when you finished a physical activity. It also beats faster when you are suffering from emotional stress or depression, faster than when you are relaxed and without a care.

The rate of the heartbeat, or pacemaking, is controlled by weak electrical impulses that activate various parts of the heart muscle. The major pacemaking center is a bundle of nerve and muscle fibers called the sinuatrial node.

Instructions for an increase or decrease in the pacemaking rate come from the brain. It also can come from other parts of the nervous system and from reflexes originating within the heart itself. When there are defects in the system, such as poor conduction of the electrical impulses, the heart may have faulty rhythm, or a condition called arrhythmias.

Electrical pacemakers can be implanted by medical experts under or on the surface of the skin to stimulate the heart and correct arrhythmias.

Doctors sometimes can find irregular beats of the heart. This is a condition known as murmurs. A serious disruption of the natural pacemaking, with improper coordination between nerve impulses to the atria and ventricles of the heart, is called a heart block.

The automatic, reliable beat of your heart is one of the miracles of life. Yet we know what happens with the beat of the heart, but we can't understand or explain fully the how and why of the action.

We actually can see the beat of the heart on a sheet of paper. An electrical device is used to sense the varying patterns of the heart and record them. The machine is called an electrocardiograph, and the graphic record it produces is called an electrocardiogram. Trained doctors can recognize various heart problems by the tracings.

Andy sends a Denoyer-Geppert World Globe to Kevin Tollefson, 14, of Beaverton, Ore., for his question:

WHAT IS AN OPTICAL ILLUSION?

Now you see it, now you don't. The magician is a master of optical illusion: He can make you think you see something you don't actually see.

An optical illusion depends on a wrong emphasis upon cues or on misapplied habits — as in the tendency to overestimate vertical as compared with horizontal lines. Your eye actually is playing a trick on you — it just appears that a dozen three-inch vertical lines drawn next to each other on a sheet of paper are longer than a dozen three-inch horizontal lines sketched next to the first set of lines.

An optical illusion can be a false sense perception and often occurs when a person is in a state of emotional expectancy or preoccupied in thought.

Win at bridge

Nine receives proper nod

Jim: "Last week we discussed safety plays. Let's talk about something almost the same this week."

Oswald: "Best plays! Sometimes there may be two safety plays at your disposal as declarer. In such cases you want to use the one that gives you the best chance for an extra trick."

Jim: "South needs four clubs to make his slam. He has no worries or problems except if one opponent holds four or five to the queen-jack. If East holds them South will go down; if West holds them there are two safety plays available."

Oswald: "The first can be found in old books on play. It is to play dummy's ace and then to come to the South hand in order to lead the nine and let it ride. This leads to an extra trick if East holds the singleton queen or jack."

Jim: "The modern play is equally safe. It is to run the nine first. If it loses to an honor; play the ace next. This play only produces four tricks if East holds the singleton queen or jack, but it produces all five if East holds one or two small clubs. Hence, it is preferable."

PRIMARY NURSES
Hiring has now begun for RNs to staff the second unit at the Glenbrook Hospital, a completely new facility in suburban Glenview. The hospital features 144 medical/surgical beds, 8 ICU/CCU beds, 5 modern surgical suites, and a 24 hr. fully equipped Emergency Dept. The Emergency Dept. includes 3 major trauma rooms, around - the - clock physician specialists and a heli-stop to aid the transport of critical patients. The department of Nursing at the Glenbrook Hospital believes that patients are entitled to humane, competent and individualized nursing care. We provide this care through Primary Nursing, where patients have their own primary nurse accountable for their nursing care. Primary Nurses help plan patient care in cooperation with the physician, the patient, and the patient's family. The Glenbrook Hospital is owned by the Evanston Hospital, and is affiliated with Northwestern University Medical School and the McGaw Medical Center. Our select nursing staff will be able to expand their clinical expertise and enjoy the excellent salary and fringe benefits that a full-service hospital offers. To arrange an interview contact:

PRIMARY NURSES
Hiring has now begun for RNs to staff the second unit at the Glenbrook Hospital, a completely new facility in suburban Glenview. The hospital features 144 medical/surgical beds, 8 ICU/CCU beds, 5 modern surgical suites, and a 24 hr. fully equipped Emergency Dept. The Emergency Dept. includes 3 major trauma rooms, around - the - clock physician specialists and a heli-stop to aid the transport of critical patients.
The department of Nursing at the Glenbrook Hospital believes that patients are entitled to humane, competent and individualized nursing care. We provide this care through Primary Nursing, where patients have their own primary nurse accountable for their nursing care. Primary Nurses help plan patient care in cooperation with the physician, the patient, and the patient's family.
The Glenbrook Hospital is owned by the Evanston Hospital, and is affiliated with Northwestern University Medical School and the McGaw Medical Center. Our select nursing staff will be able to expand their clinical expertise and enjoy the excellent salary and fringe benefits that a full-service hospital offers.

PRIMARY NURSES
Hiring has now begun for RNs to staff the second unit at the Glenbrook Hospital, a completely new facility in suburban Glenview. The hospital features 144 medical/surgical beds, 8 ICU/CCU beds, 5 modern surgical suites, and a 24 hr. fully equipped Emergency Dept. The Emergency Dept. includes 3 major trauma rooms, around - the - clock physician specialists and a heli-stop to aid the transport of critical patients. The department of Nursing at the Glenbrook Hospital believes that patients are entitled to humane, competent and individualized nursing care. We provide this care through Primary Nursing, where patients have their own primary nurse accountable for their nursing care. Primary Nurses help plan patient care in cooperation with the physician, the patient, and the patient's family.
The Glenbrook Hospital is owned by the Evanston Hospital, and is affiliated with Northwestern University Medical School and the McGaw Medical Center. Our select nursing staff will be able to expand their clinical expertise and enjoy the excellent salary and fringe benefits that a full-service hospital offers.

PRIMARY NURSES
Hiring has now begun for RNs to staff the second unit at the Glenbrook Hospital, a completely new facility in suburban Glenview. The hospital features 144 medical/surgical beds, 8 ICU/CCU beds, 5 modern surgical suites, and a 24 hr. fully equipped Emergency Dept. The Emergency Dept. includes 3 major trauma rooms, around - the - clock physician specialists and a heli-stop to aid the transport of critical patients.
The department of Nursing at the Glenbrook Hospital believes that patients are entitled to humane, competent and individualized nursing care. We provide this care through Primary Nursing, where patients have their own primary nurse accountable for their nursing care. Primary Nurses help plan patient care in cooperation with the physician, the patient, and the patient's family.
The Glenbrook Hospital is owned by the Evanston Hospital, and is affiliated with Northwestern University Medical School and the McGaw Medical Center. Our select nursing staff will be able to expand their clinical expertise and enjoy the excellent salary and fringe benefits that a full-service hospital offers.

The Bible gets mixed reviews at Maine North

by DIANE GRANAT

Gus Graziano stood in the hallway of Maine North High School in Des Plaines Monday, handing out copies of "The New Testament" to students.

"Have you ever tried drugs?" he asked a group of boys standing nearby.

After receiving wary nods from the boys, Graziano offered them small, red-covered editions of the Bible. "Try reading this," he said. "This will make you high — spiritually speaking."

GRAZIANO AND William Albrecht were at Maine North, 9511 Harrison St., as representatives of The Gideons International, an organization which distributes Bibles in hotels and hospitals. The Gideons recently began passing out Bibles in public schools, according to Albrecht.

"It's good to hand them out from about fourth grade on. Then they can start reading the word and get acquainted with it," Albrecht said.

"If people would read God's word, our whole world would be improved," he said.

Albrecht said the Gideons "hand out the word of God wherever the opportunity presents itself. We seek an opportunity to go wherever they let us in. But a lot of places won't let us in."

THE GIDEONS HAVE visited Maine West High School in Des Plaines and Maine South High School in Park Ridge. Permission for Monday's visit to Maine North was granted by the school's administration, said Tom Cacchur, assistant principal.

"We've given them an area off the beaten track," Cacchur said, adding that High School Dist. 207 policy "allows this sort of thing."

John Benka, assistant superintendent for administration and personnel, said the district permits the Gideons to set up a booth at the high school," "just as we might for Oakton Community College," to recruit students.

"They are both entitled to make material available because they are part of the community," he said.

Benka said the district believes the presence of the Gideons "would not be contradictory to any sort of rules and regulations regarding the separation of church and state."

BENKA AND CACCHUR said the students are not coerced into accepting the Bibles. Albrecht also stressed that point. "We don't force them on anyone," he said. "If they want to take it they can. If not, they can leave it."

Some students walking by the Gideons' table stacked with Bibles were glad to accept the free gifts.

"Where else would you get one?" said Judy Gagliardi, a junior from Niles. "I think it's pretty neat. It's better at school than on the street. At school, since everyone has one, you don't feel weird."

While some students did not seem interested in the Gideons' visit — several accepted the Bibles but left the books on the school's steps — a few students were angry.

"I THINK IT'S illegal," said Sherri Gilman, a senior from Glenview. "They should not do it in a school. Let them go out in the street if they're going to do it."

"I can't believe this school is letting people solicit Bibles here," shouted one boy as he walked past the booth.

Donna Marie Stupple, an English teacher, said in the nine years she has worked at Maine North "this is the first time anyone has been here handing out this kind of stuff. They usually don't do anything that has strongly religious overtones.

"I wonder about the precedent," Mrs. Stupple said. "One wonders if next week we will have someone here from the Unification Church or the local rabbinical council."

Teamsters membership asked by Harper guards

by RENA COHEN

Six security officers in the Harper College public safety department have apparently become the latest group of Northwest suburban public employes to ask for representation by the Teamsters Union Local 714.

Harper Pres. Robert Lahti and Board Chairwoman Shirley Munson last week received a letter from Teamsters attorney Marvin Sacks indicating the union had been "chosen as collective bargaining representative by an overwhelming majority" of the public safety department.

Asked Monday what constituted an "overwhelming majority," Joseph Martucci, Teamsters Local 714 business representative, said the union had the support of the six Harper security officers — the only employes in the department eligible to join the union.

THE PUBLIC safety chief, lieutenant and 15 part-time student cadets cannot join the union, Martucci said.

The Teamsters are battling the Palatine vilage board for recognition on behalf of the village's patrolmen and public works employes, and are waiting for the Rolling Meadows board to act on the request of its patrolmen and firemen for Teamster representation.

Martucci said Harper public safety employes approached the union "three or four weeks ago." He said, as of Monday, he had not received a response from Harper on the Teamsters' request for a meeting between the union and college representatives.

Mrs. Munson said Monday the board of trustees had not yet met to discuss the request.

HARPER PUBLIC Safety Chief Gordon Wallace said Monday he had not received a copy of the Teamsters letter and was not aware of union activity in his department.

"To tell you the truth, I didn't know this was coming about," Wallace said Monday. "It must have been a closely guarded secret."

Wallace said he wasn't surprised because of heavy Teamster activity in the Northwest suburbs, but could not think of any grievances which might have pushed his employes to contact the union.

"They're all paid for overtime, and they have good sick benefits and insurance," Wallace said of his six security officers, who serve as law enforcement agents, firefighters and safety inspectors for the Harper campus.

PUBLIC SAFETY Officer Charles Mueller refused to comment on possible complaints in the department, but said he hadn't heard that all six security officers had signed up with tht Teamsters.

Martucci cited aging squad cars and inadequate self-defense as bones of contention mentioned in his discussions with Harper security officers.

"I remember talking about faulty equipment — squad cars with hundreds of thousands of miles on them," Martucci said. "Also, according to law, (Harper security agents) are supposed to have all rights as far as arrests are concerned but they're not entitled to carry any kinds of guns. They're not 100 per cent concerned about this, but I guess they've come across assailants or students that have had weapons, and they had to have hand-to-hand combat."

FORMER PUBLIC safety cadet Brenda Pulla said there were rumors of Teamsters sympathies within the department, "for at least a year," before she quit in October.

"The public safety officers are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week," Pulla said. "It's possible they want better pay for the unusual hours."

Martucci said the possible six-person Teamster membership at Harper would not be the union's smallest affiliate.

"We have operations with one, two or three people," Martucci said. "If they want us, we'll represent them."

If the public safety division is successful in its bid for Teamster representation, it would become the third department in the college to unionize.

Harper faculty voted a year ago to affiliate with the American Federation of Teachers, and Harper custodians are represented by Service Employes International Union Local 11. Both are AFL-CIO affiliates.

Hospitals to test blood pressure

The Bible gets mixed reviews at Maine North

by DIANE GRANAT

Gus Graziano stood in the hallway of Maine North High School in Des Plaines Monday, handing out copies of "The New Testament" to students.

"Have you ever tried drugs?" he asked a group of boys standing nearby.

After receiving wary nods from the boys, Graziano offered them small, red-covered editions of the Bible. "Try reading this," he said. "This will make you high — spiritually speaking."

GRAZIANO AND William Albrecht were at Maine North, 9511 Harrison St., as representatives of The Gideons International, an organization which distributes Bibles in hotels and hospitals. The Gideons recently began passing out Bibles in public schools, according to Albrecht.

"It's good to hand them out from about fourth grade on. Then they can start reading the word and get acquainted with it," Albrecht said.

"If people would read God's word, our whole world would be improved," he said.

Albrecht said the Gideons "hand out the word of God wherever the opportunity presents itself. We seek an opportunity to go wherever they let us in. But a lot of places won't let us in."

THE GIDEONS HAVE visited Maine West High School in Des Plaines and Maine South High School in Park Ridge. Permission for Monday's visit to Maine North was granted by the school's administration, said Tom Cacchur, assistant principal.

"We've given them an area off the beaten track," Cacchur said, adding that High School Dist. 207 policy "allows this sort of thing."

John Benka, assistant superintendent for administration and personnel, said the district permits the Gideons to set up a booth at the high school," "just as we might for Oakton Community College," to recruit students.

"They are both entitled to make material available because they are part of the community," he said.

Benka said the district believes the presence of the Gideons "would not be contradictory to any sort of rules and regulations regarding the separation of church and state."

BENKA AND CACCHUR said the students are not coerced into accepting the Bibles. Albrecht also stressed that point. "We don't force them on anyone," he said. "If they want to take it they can. If not, they can leave it."

Some students walking by the Gideons' table stacked with Bibles were glad to accept the free gifts.

"Where else would you get one?" said Judy Gagliardi, a junior from Niles. "I think it's pretty neat. It's better at school than on the street. At school, since everyone has one, you don't feel weird."

While some students did not seem interested in the Gideons' visit — several accepted the Bibles but left the books on the school's steps — a few students were angry.

"I THINK IT'S illegal," said Sherri Gilman, a senior from Glenview. "They should not do it in a school. Let them go out in the street if they're going to do it."

"I can't believe this school is letting people solicit Bibles here," shouted one boy as he walked past the booth.

Donna Marie Stupple, an English teacher, said in the nine years she has worked at Maine North "this is the first time anyone has been here handing out this kind of stuff. They usually don't do anything that has strongly religious overtones.

"I wonder about the precedent," Mrs. Stupple said. "One wonders if next week we will have someone here from the Unification Church or the local rabbinical council."

Teamsters membership asked by Harper guards

by RENA COHEN

Six security officers in the Harper College public safety department have apparently become the latest group of Northwest suburban public employes to ask for representation by the Teamsters Union Local 714.

Harper Pres. Robert Lahti and Board Chairwoman Shirley Munson last week received a letter from Teamsters attorney Marvin Sacks indicating the union had been "chosen as collective bargaining representative by an overwhelming majority" of the public safety department.

Asked Monday what constituted an "overwhelming majority," Joseph Martucci, Teamsters Local 714 business representative, said the union had the support of the six Harper security officers — the only employes in the department eligible to join the union.

THE PUBLIC safety chief, lieutenant and 15 part-time student cadets cannot join the union, Martucci said.

The Teamsters are battling the Palatine vilage board for recognition on behalf of the village's patrolmen and public works employes, and are waiting for the Rolling Meadows board to act on the request of its patrolmen and firemen for Teamster representation.

Martucci said Harper public safety employes approached the union "three or four weeks ago." He said, as of Monday, he had not received a response from Harper on the Teamsters' request for a meeting between the union and college representatives.

Mrs. Munson said Monday the board of trustees had not yet met to discuss the request.

HARPER PUBLIC Safety Chief Gordon Wallace said Monday he had not received a copy of the Teamsters letter and was not aware of union activity in his department.

"To tell you the truth, I didn't know this was coming about," Wallace said Monday. "It must have been a closely guarded secret."

Wallace said he wasn't surprised because of heavy Teamster activity in the Northwest suburbs, but could not think of any grievances which might have pushed his employes to contact the union.

"They're all paid for overtime, and they have good sick benefits and insurance," Wallace said of his six security officers, who serve as law enforcement agents, firefighters and safety inspectors for the Harper campus.

PUBLIC SAFETY Officer Charles Mueller refused to comment on possible complaints in the department, but said he hadn't heard that all six security officers had signed up with tht Teamsters.

Martucci cited aging squad cars and inadequate self-defense as bones of contention mentioned in his discussions with Harper security officers.

"I remember talking about faulty equipment — squad cars with hundreds of thousands of miles on them," Martucci said. "Also, according to law, (Harper security agents) are supposed to have all rights as far as arrests are concerned but they're not entitled to carry any kinds of guns. They're not 100 per cent concerned about this, but I guess they've come across assailants or students that have had weapons, and they had to have hand-to-hand combat."

FORMER PUBLIC safety cadet Brenda Pulla said there were rumors of Teamsters sympathies within the department, "for at least a year," before she quit in October.

"The public safety officers are on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week," Pulla said. "It's possible they want better pay for the unusual hours."

Martucci said the possible six-person Teamster membership at Harper would not be the union's smallest affiliate.

"We have operations with one, two or three people," Martucci said. "If they want us, we'll represent them."

If the public safety division is successful in its bid for Teamster representation, it would become the third department in the college to unionize.

Harper faculty voted a year ago to affiliate with the American Federation of Teachers, and Harper custodians are represented by Service Employes International Union Local 11. Both are AFL-CIO affiliates.
